By Terence Smith

WASHINGTON - In Houston 300 women protesting the proposed Equal Rights Amendment, legalized abortion and lesbian rights march out of the National Women's Conference singing "God Bless America."

In Orlando, Rep. Robin L.
Beard Jr. of Tennessee brings southern Republican Party officials to their feet when he declares: "You're looking at a hard-core, right-wing conservative reactionary."

In California, the Legislature overrides the governor's veto of the death penalty.

And here in Washington, White House pickets chant, "Keep the American Canal."

A wide sampling of pollsters, political scientists and Democrats and Republicans around the country agree that these are not unrelated developments.

They see these events and others as evidence of a subtle but percepitible shift to the right in political opinion on a broad range of social, economic and foreign policy issues.

While opinions differed on the causes and dimensions of the trend, there was a consensus that the nation has entered a cautious period that has major implications for the 1978 congressional elections and thereafter.

It was also agreed that this more conservative mood is being exploited more effectively than ever before by a new breed of farright activists. Financed partly by the computerized direct-mail fund raising of Richard A. Viguerie, the far right has grown more effective on a wider range of issues.

"The far right has adopted the

"The far right has adopted the tactics of the left," observed Sen. Gary Hart, the Colorado liberal who, as manager of the George McGovern campaign in 1972, learned about political inlighting. "It doesn't mean the country agrees with their politics," he said, "but it does mean that they are "but it does mean that they are better organized, better financed and more effective than they were litical mood. To Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., the minority leader who concedes he has an eye on the 1980 Republican nomination, it is a "definite, measurable shift to the right that I and my colleagues must take account of."

To Fred Wertheimer, chief bbyist for Common Cause, it is "a wary, prudent mood among the public about the capacities and limits of government."

To John Sears, manager of Ronald Reagan's drive for the 1976

Republican nomination, it is "a" new pragmatism that cuts across party and ideological lines from Great Society liberals to old-fash-ioned conservatives." The American voter today, he says, "is more pragmatic than ever, more inclined to judge both issues and candidates individually, without regard to party label or ideology."

HAMILTON, Bermuda - In response to an appeal from Bermuda Saturday for British troops to help-quell rioting that broke out over the execution of two murderers, Britain dispatched a company of sol-diers today to its Atlantic island

The British Defense Ministry reported early today that a company of 150 men from the Royal Regiment of Fusiliers was being sent and could be reinforced quickly if needed. The soldiers went in trucks from their Oakington base to the Brize Norton airfield, 90 miles away, in central England. There they boarded Her-cules aircraft for the seven-hour flight.

British Prime Minister James

Callaghan made the troop decision at his official residence during talks and dinner with visiting Israeli Prime Minister Menahem

Damage from the rioting and arson across Bermuda, a favorite vacation spot for American and British tourists, is estimated at more than $4 million. Disturbances

A spokesman for the Bermuda government said Saturday night that Gov. Sir Peter Ramsbotham, on the advice of Prime Minister

David Gibbons, had asked for troops as a "precautionary measure... to insure that the security forces of Bermuda are not overextended."

Nine hundred policemen and members of the Bermuda Regiment were deployed or placed on alert under the governor's emergency declaration

U.S. may take more 'boat people'

By Bernard Gwertzman

WASHINGTON — The State Department, in an effort to ease the plight of the growing number of Indochinese refugees has decided Indochinese refugees, has decided to seek the emergency admission of 10,000 Vietnamese "boat people" — refugees stranded throughout Asia often living on the small boats they used to escape from Vietnam, administration officials said Saturday.

Officials said that if, as expected, the formal "parole authority" is granted, nearly 5,000 "boat people" now in Asia would be people" now in Asia would be admitted promptly. The other 5,000 places would be kept open for refugees expected to flee Victnam in the next few months. The rate of Vietnamese leaving by boat without permission has risen from 500 a month to more than 1,500 a month,

In an unrelated Vietnamese development, the State Department said the Vietnamese government had asked for a postponement in talks with the United States that were supposed to take place next Wednesday in Paris.

The department remarked that Hanoi said the delay was for "technical reasons." This would have been the third round of talks aimed at normalization of relations, blocked so far by Vietnam's insistence that the United States agree to provide economic assistance to Hanoi — something this country refuses to do.

In addition to the latest request for "parole authority" the State Department has agreed with a key congressman to seek a comprehensive approach that in the future would eliminate the need for using the "parole authority."

The congressman, Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., head of the judiciary subcommittee on immigration, must by tradition give his approval before the attorney general will accede to the State Department's request for emergency admission of refugees.

Eilberg has sponsored a bill that would allow the United States to admit refugees on an emergency basis without going through the current elaborate consultations.

Undersecretary of State Philip C. Habib telephoned Eliberg

Friday, and discussed with him the two-part administration approach, seeking an emergency authority for 10,000 more refugees and support for Eilberg's overall approach.

An Eilberg aide said the con-gressman believes strongly that refugees should be admitted on a comprehensive basis and that his legislation offers a vehicle. In addition, Eilberg would like the administration to support his proposal for an international conference on refugees to encourage other countries to admit more Indo-

As to the emergency request, the aide said Eilberg had not yet received a formal request for consent, but that he was sympathetic to the problem.

At that time, the Carter administration approved the entry of 15,000 Indochinese refugees. Of that total, 7,000 were Vietnamese "boat people," and 8,000 were drawn from the nearly 100,000 refugees in Thailand's camps. Most of those in The 15,000 places have been allo-

Administration officials said they expected Eilberg to support the new request.

On another related matter of interest to Eilberg, Attorney General Griffen Bell is expected to announce soon the use of his "parole authority" for the emergency admission of 5,000 Soviet and East European refugees, mostly Jews, who have been in Italy awaiting visas to the United States.

Q and A

Non-white defends S. Africa

Improving the image of the white-ruled Republic of South Africa is the goal of Richard F.W. Davis, a South African senior information officer based in Los Angeles. Davis' job is to justify to the American public South Africa's apartheid policy, a practice of strict racial segregation and discrimination against the country's blacks. He was interviewed last week by staff writer Brad Altman the South African press and information office located on the 18th floor of a Century City

Q. What is your background? A. I was born in Cape Town 42 years ago. I attended a teacher training college there and taught junior high school for three years. For six years, I worked on an education magazine called Alpha, first as photographer journalist and later as editor.

Since August 1976, I have been a civil servant in the foreign service department. My wife and two children, ages 2 and 9, moved to California six months ago.

Q. You are a black man by an American's definition of that word. In South Africa you are a colored person. A. That's right. In South Africa, you have the white group, colored (mixed race), Asians and the black group. In the South African context I'm referred to as a colored person. Here in the United States you do not have the distinc-

Q. Isn't it unusual to represent a government that is run by whites?

A. Let me tell you, there are thousands and thousands of blacks, colored and Asian people working in government service in various activities. However, this is the first time the government has appointed non-whites to its foreign service outside South Africa. There are four of us. One here, one in New York and two in the embassy in London.

Q. Is it tokenism?

A. Well, if it was tokenism I would just be sitting here as a token and not working. No, it is part of the government's policy that non-white people must be appointed to senior positions in the various categories of jobs it has.

One controversial issue over approval of the proposed Sohio oil tanker project in Long Beach remains the least understood by the

and how to control it.

Government agencies and industry now agree the two berths operated by Standard Oil of Ohio in the proposed four-berth marine project at the foot of Pier J will spew tons of pollutants each day from the terminal, adjacent and remote storage tanks, and from the super-ships unloading millions of barrels of high sulfur crude oil from Alaska.

At the core of the controversy is the expression "trade-off," which most simply means "exchange."

The expression came into fashion among economists and diplomats about 10 years ago, but today is seen by environmentalists and the business community as perhaps the only practical means of allowing necessary industrial growth while protecting vital natural resources and human health.

Smog consists primarily of hydrocarbons and oxides of nitrogen which, when exposed to sun-light, tend to harm the respiratory systems of humans, animals and plants. There are other pollutants in the air which, though non-reac-tive to sunlight, still take their own evironmental toll.

In the case of the Sohio project pollutants generated at the Pier J terminal and the Dominguez Hills tank farm — where Sohio will store up to 3.7 million barrels of oil at any given time — will include oxides of nitrogen, hydrocarbons, sulfur dioxide and carbon dioxide as gases, and particulates as microscopic solid matter.

The politics of smog however, are apparently much hazier than its components.

Government agencies concerned with air quality at the re-gional, state and federal level must comply with the Clean Air Act of 1970. Simply stated, the act mandates that air pollution from new sources must not exceed specified levels If it does, the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will allow these pollution sources to operate if they "trade off" their emissions, that is, arrange to remove more pollution from the air than they generate. While the EPA seems willing to apply no more than the minimum standards, states have the discretion of adopting tougher air quality standards if they don't conflict with sederal law.

That has happened in California where the Air Resources Board (ARB), under its chairman, Tom Quinn, has sparked a howl of protest over pollution controls from auto makers, steel plants and oil industries.

At the local level, the South Coast Air Quality Management Dis-trict (AQMD) has limited jurisdiction in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties

In Sohio's case, the AQMD will be the first of the three agencies to issue air quality permits for allowable pollution from the oil receiving and storage operation, but the other two agencies (EPA and ARB) must concur before permits are is-

A Detroit woman believed to be the lirst black member of the Daughters of the American Revolution says she was warmly welcomed into the organization after she traced her lineage to a white Revolutionary War soldier from Penn-

Mrs. George Baylies, president-general of the DAR, said the organization's conservative, clitist image of the past is changing.

"Our organization is changing, as are many of our national institutions," she said. "We want people to realize that we are not concerned with a prospective member's race or place of national ori-

Mrs. Farmer said she believes that other blacks could find Revolutionary War connections in their ancestrics. Eminent black historian John Hope Franklin of the University of Chicago estimates that 5,000 blacks served the American cause in the Revolution.

Mrs. Farmer said that soon after she began researching her family last year she learned that a maternal great-grandmother, Jennie Hood Weaver, was a white woman from Waterford, Pa., married to a black man from Cleveland. Mrs. Farmer followed the Hood line until she found an ancestor named William Hood, a Continental Army soldier.

"If you think an interracial couple faces problems today, think of what it must have been like 100 years ago," said Mrs. Farmer, "Jennie Weaver must have been a wonderful woman."

Irish immigrants

How can I learn which ports of entry were used by the Irish immigrants in the 1880s and 1890s? I'm looking for certain names on immigrant lists. G.C., Lakewood.

In the late 19th century, most Irish and European immigrants entered the United States at New York, Boston or Philadelphia, but passenger lists for that period are incomplete.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service does not have any arrival records prior to 1891, and some of the records for the early part of the 20th century were destroyed in a fire. INS will supply what arrival information is available on immigrants if a person is doing genealogical research on his ancestors

To obtain such information, you must file a G-641 form at the INS office, 300 N. Los Angeles St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90012. We've sent you one of the forms. There is a $3 fee for each search of the records.

The National Archives, Washington, D.C. 20408, has some passenger lists dating from 1820, but most are not indexed by names and a search of these records would involve checking each list.

The genealogical library at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) Temple, 10741 Santa Monica Blvd., West Los Angeles, has microtilmed copies of some of these passenger lists, but a spokes-woman for the library said the names on the lists often were misspelled or England was mistakenly listed as the place of origin instead of Ireland. Suspect in stranglings

A man who was being questioned in the strangulation murders of 10 young women is not believed by investigators to be involved in the killings, Los Angeles police said

Saturday. Lt. Dan Cooke said "it does not appear" that Bennett Merrett, 26, of Hesperia was involved in the socalled "Hillside Strangler" killings.

Merrett remained in custody on a robbery-rape charge in a case involving another young woman. He was to have faced a police lineup early next week, but it was not known whether that was still MERRETT was booked Friday for the investigation of robbery and rape in a separate case reported by friend of the Hillside Strangler's first victim, Yolanda Washington. The friend, whose name was not released, had reported being robbed and sexually attacked.

peared to be a major break in the case. Several articles of clothing were found in his car and were checked to determine whether they belonged to any of the victims. Merrett is a clothing salesman, police said.

Merrett's car, a gray-and-white Cadillac, was impounded and inspected for fingerprints. A witness told police she saw the latest vic-tim, 18-year-old Lauren Wagner, entering a vehicle with a dark body and light top. However, Cooke said Saturday that Merrett's car did not fit that description.

COOKE SAID the special around-the-clock Hillside Strangler Task Force investigation was continuing, with patrols ordered in areas where victims' bodies have been recovered. The task force also is considering stationing female-decoy officers in the area.

Reward money for the killer or killers will total $140,000 Monday, when an additional $25,000 reward authorized Friday by the Los Angeles City Council takes effect.

Mrs. Besedin spent Friday night trying to get herself and her daughter ready to meet Victor, who was to arrive Saturday night at Los Angeles International Airport.

"Victoria has her little dress — oh, it's so cute — and I have a new outfit," Besedin, 24, met and married Elaine Gutierrez, also 24, while she was an American exchange student at Moscow University almost two years ago. Elaine returned to the United States in August 1976. She was seven months pregnant.

But the Soviet government refused to grant Besedin an exit visa, and he had to stay behind. As head of a family, they said, he had to live in Russia. When he persisted, Elaine said, he was dis-missed from his job as an electronics technician, then asked to leave Moscow because he was unemployed.

In the meantime,

Elaine, an insurance company employee in Orange County, asked the American government to intervene in Besedin's behalf. She started with her congressman, Rep. Jerry M. Patterson, D-Santa Ana. He contacted the State Department.

Three days before Mrs. Besedin planned to go to Washington last month to meet with senators, representatives from the State Department and the Soviet Embassy, and even a presidential aide, she received word that Besedin's visa had been granted. All that remained was to get his final papers in order, favored in poll

A4 MDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM Long Beach, Calls., Sun., Doc. 4, 197

WASHINGTON (AP) majority of Americans agree with positions taken by the recent national women's conference in favor of the Equal Rights Amendment and abortion on demand, an Associated Press-NBC News poll shows.

The poll also found an over-whelming 92 percent of the 1,604 adults interviewed agreed with another position taken by the Houston convention - that women doing the same work as men should be paid equal wages.

Both the ERA and abortion got majority support from both men and women. Opposition tended to come from older people, Catholics and more conservative Americans. the telephone interviews Tuesday and Wednesday found.

Fifty-three percent of the respondents said they favored passage of the ERA, which would write into the U.S. Constitution a prohibition against sexual discrimination. Thirty-seven percent said they opposed the amendment, with 10 percent unsure.

On abortion, an issue that has tied up congressional action on a major appropriations bill for months, 53 percent agreed with the statement that "Every woman who wants an abortion should be able to have one.

Opposition to abortion on demand was expressed by 45 percent, with the rest saying they were un-

On the issue of non-discrimination in wages, only six percent of those interviewed said they oppose equal pay for equal work - versus 92 percent in favor of equal treatment. Two percent said they were not certain

The ERA drew wide support in the pull, with men slightly more positive than women. Fifty-six percent of the men favored passage, while 50 percent of the women backed the amendment.

In all but one age group, ERA backers had the edge. For example, those 18 to 24 favored the ERA 74 percent to 23 percent. In the over-65 group. ERA was opposed 48 to 42. However, because the error margin for that subgroup is larger than the six-point gap, this finding can best be described as a close-to-

Thirty live states have ratified the ERA leaving it three states short of the 38 needed for inclusion in the Constitution. The amendment needs to be ratified by March 1979, but the deadline can be extended by Congress. Three of the states that ratified have tried to withdraw their ratification, but the Justice Department has said there is no precedent for that. Most of the 15 states which have not ratified are in the South or the heavily Mormon intermountain states.

The poll found opinion in the South split on the ERA, 48-46 against the amendment. Again, because of the error margin, that finding is not conclusive. Midwestern sentiment on the ERA also was split, while it drew strong support in the East and West.

The ERA had more supporters than opponents among both married and single women and among women with children and those without any.

Abortion on demand drew widespread support.

Among the younger age groups, 62 percent of those 18-24 supported abortion, compared to 34 percent opposed. Opposition to abortion was stronger among those over 50 years old, but even among that group the split was smaller than the error

Among every religious group in the poll, abortion found greater support than opposition. The only group whose opinions were split on the issue was the Catholics. By 49-46, they favored abortion. But, again, the error margin was larger than the difference, meaning that one can only say opinions are divided among that group.

With this poll, as with every sample survey, the results can vary from the actual views of all Americans simply because of chance variations in the sample. For a poll of 1,804 adults, it can be said with 95 percent confidence that interviews with all Americans would vary no more than three percentage points up or down from the results of the AP-NBC News

The shift in public sentiment seems most striking on social issues - welfare, busing, abortion, affirmative action, gay rights and the equal rights ameniment - issues on which government action seems to threaten the stans of the individual and the nuclear family.

This new "social conservation," as some politicians call it, has given rise to a rach of phenomena. including the auti-abortion backlesh, the demand for unrestricted use of Lac-trile, the auti-ERA drive the indignation aroused by the Bakite case, the so-called reverse discrimination case now before the Supreme Court. Many politicians believe these movements reflect a broad change in public attitudes toward the role of government.

The trend that so many politicians sense is documented by recent Gallup public opinion polls. In their most recent survey on the question, a striking 47 percent of the respondents described themselves as "right of center." 32 percent as 'left of center." and only 10 percent as "middle-of-the-road."

This is in sharp contrast to a similar Gallup survey in 1964, at the outset of the Johnson administration's War on Poverty and the large scale American involvement in Vietnam. when 37 percent characterized themselves as liberals. 34 percent as conservatives and 29 percent had no opinion.

Clear-cut as they seem. these figures can be misleading, in the opinion of Warren E. Miller, director of the Center for Pulitical Studies at the University of Michigan.

Rather than shifting to the right, he believes, the country is regaining its political equilibrium after a period of abnormal activity on the left. The bulk of American political opinalways been to the right of center and is merely reasserting itself after the progressive activism of the Doubts about the desirability of Big Government solutions to social problems are as widespread among Democrats as Republicans. In fact, the intellectual leadership for ''new pragmatism'' has been provided by a group of once-liberal writers and academies, nearly all Democrats, dub-bed the "neo-conserv-

On the practical politi-cal level, the neo-conservatives have banded together in the Coalition for a Democratic Majority, an assemblage of Carter's election seemed to fulfill that goal, and the Coalition briefly considered disbanding. Instead, however it has revived in an effort to push Carter to the right on sensitive issues such as the Middle East, negotia-tions with the Russians

Carter plans $300 cut in personal tax

By Edward Cowan New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The administration is assembling a package of proposals that includes tax cuts of up to about $300 for individuals and a crackdown on deductions for business meals and dues for membership in clubs, according to

Although President Carter has dropped several of the more far reaching and controver-sial tax "reform" ideas he tentatively embraced in September, he is said to be likely to stick to his earlier plan to ask Congress to disallow 50 percent of the cost of business meals and to bar deductions for club dues altogether.

Under "active consideration," according to administration sources, is a tightening of the exemption for corporate profits that are earned and reinvested abroad. Big companies are certain to fight such a change with all the lobbying resources they can muster.

More far-reaching "reform" ideas; such as ending preferential treatment for capital gains and easing the double taxation of corporate dividends, could be revived in a second round of tax reductions that the Carter administration is new thinking about for 1980. "They tell me that Congress likes to cut taxes in an election year, one senior administration tax planner said with

Lobbying by the hotel and restaurant industries against any change in deductions for business meals is well under way. But Carter's advisers believe that he must, in the words of one White House aide, present "substantial and tough reforms," even in a curtailed list. The president has repeatedly criticized deductions for business meals, especially meals in fashion-able restaurants, as benefiting executives at the expense of rank-and-file workers who pay for SUCH TIGHTENING UP would presumably irritate business people, but the administration is hopeful that they will be won over by two proposals for permanent tax relief for business - an across-the-board cut in the corporate tax rate and a broadening of the eligibility for the investment tax credit.

These two proposals and the possibility of others will be presented as evidence that the Carter administration understands business needs. In this vein, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal says temporary tax relief is neither what business wants nor what the administration will propose.

"Whatever action we should take on business taxes should be permanent." Blumenthal said when asked about earlier plans to lift the investment tax credit temporarily above its present 10 percent level. The credit, first enacted on the initiative of former President Kennedy, allows a business to reduce its taxes by 10 percent of an eligible investment outlay.

The credit is to return to its "permanent" level, 7 percent, in 1981, but Carter is expected to ask Congress to make it 10 percent indefinitely. He is also expected to ask that it be broadened to include buildings as well as equipment and that the limit on the credit be raised from 50 percent to 90 percent of profits.

Tax relief for individuals is expected, as before, to be concentrated in lower- and lower-middle-income brackets. The most likely proposal, officials said, is for cuts that would be worth about $300 a year for a family of four in the $15,000-to-$20,000 bracket. This hypothetical family now pays roughly $1,700 a year in federal TAXPAYERS IN HIGHER and lower brackets would get smaller cuts, but no one, except possibly a few people who earn more than $100,-000, would suffer a tax increase, officials said.

In all, the income tax reductions for individuals and business are likely to total more than $20 billion, possibly $22 billion. The exact numbers will depend on the taxes that would be raised by the Social Security and energy bills now in House-Senate conferences.

A major theme of the Carter tax package will be simplification. To this end, the president is expected to propose ending itemized deductions for state gasoline taxes and for state and local sales taxes

These and other changes would increase the proportion of taxpayers who take standard deductions, as opposed to itemized deductions, to about 85 percent, according to an informed source, from about 70 percent under present law. Another change certain to be in the January package, according to administration tax planners, is conversion of the personal exemption to a tax credit.

Since September, Carter has abandoned several far-reaching tax "reform" ideas for two reasons — less support and more resistance in Congress than the administration expected and a growing need to enact a tax-cutting bill in early 1978 to pump new vigor into the economy in the second half of the year. Additionally, the energy and Social Security bills will raise extra billions of federal revenues that the administration wants to put back into consumer spending by income tax reduction.

The present thinking is that most elements The present training is that most elements of the tax bill would take effect Jan. 1, 1979, but that the individual and corporate rate reductions would take effect sooner, probably July 1. Officials hope that the "announcement effect" of such a proposal in January will encourage upward revisions in planned business investment spending in 1978 and 1979.

Enactment by midyear would require fast work by Congress in contrast to its usual pace, but not impossibly fast work, according to officials

THE CONVERSION of the exemption of $750 for each dependent into a tax credit of $250 for each dependent would have a burden-shifting effect. For persons in tax brackets below 33 percent, the change alone would mean a tax saving. For those who pay more than 33 percent on additional income, the change would mean a tax increase. A tax credit is deducted from taxes owed, whereas an exemption, like a deduction, is subtracted from taxable income.

Smog remains a hazy issue for standards, and by differ-

All three agencies, and Sohio, now generally agree on how much pollution can be expected from the Sohio project. But there was a time when itappeared they never would agree.

One major disagreement in how to measure project pollutants came when the ARB insisted that Sohio be charged for the emissions from electrical utilities providing er for the terminal.

Sohio disagreed, claiming that electrical power for the Long Beach area comes from as far away as Oregon. Why should the Long Beach project be charged for pollution in the Northwest, Sonio argued.

In the end, though,
Sohio accepted the ARB

Another area of disagreement was whether emissions from tankers at sea should be charged to Sohio. And if they were, how far out to sea should they be measured?

The ARB wanted Sohio credited with emissions when the tankers reached Pt. Conception. It based this argument on a theory that Pt. Conception is, as Quinn expressed it, "an Quinn 'expressed it, air pollution window' the Los Angeles basin. for Sobio countered that emissions should be charged when the tankers reached Pt. Mugu. In the meantime, the Port of Long Beach has developed evidence that wind pat-terns between the two landmarks will carry tanker pollution to Santa Barbara, not Los Angeles.

There has been no decision on the question of Pt. Conception versus Pt. Mugu, but Quinn may have lost that round.

In determining sources of port-related pollution from the Sohio project, all sides have generally agreed those sources will include the eight proposed 615.000-barrel storage tanks at Pier J and in Dominguez Hills; so-called "fugitive", emissions from tankers in port, pumps and sump tanks; genera-tion of electricity; and operation of tanker boilers in port.

On an average day, then, emissions from portrelated operations will generate 5,814 pounds of hydrocarbons, sulfur oxides, particulate matter, nitrogen oxides and carbon monoxide.

The figures are found in a joint Port of Long Beach-Public Utilities Commission supplement to the project's initial environmental impact report. Transit (tanker) emissions will add another

2,560 pounds if measured from Pt. Conception, or 1,102 pounds if measured from Pt. Mugu.

But some days will be worse than others, and this "worst case" projec-tion assumes two 165,000 deadweight ton tankers -- each almost twice the size of the Queen Mary - will each be unloading 100,000 barrels of crude oil an hour on a hot summer day while four tugs scurry around the terminal.

Under the "worst case" projection, a total of 11,784 pounds of emissions will be generated from port-related facilities.

Because no one can predict when the "worst case" might occur, the agencies and Sohio determined a frequency of maximum emissions that would be exceeded only one day a month. They call it the "97th percentile," and it is the starting point from which Sohio will have to trade off pollution. Under the "97th percen-port-related total emissions alone are projected to be 11,112 pounds a day. Adding similar transit emissions to the equation means Solio faces a "97th per-centile" total of 16,268 pounds of pollutants a day if measured from Pt. Conception; or 13,666 pounds a day if measured from Pt.

Arguments in the Sohio controversy have centered around the amounts of pollutants the company must eliminate to win the necessry construction and operating permits.

A "worst case" ratio of 1.2:1 has been offered, but Sohio is reluctant to accept it, The ratio means that Sohio must eliminate 1.2 pounds of pollutants from existing stationary sources in the Los Angeles air basin for every pound generated by the project on the busiest day of each

The difficulty with establishing any specific trade-off ratio is that, re-gardless of the ratio, ARB policy requires there be no degradation of air quality

Right now, levels of sulfur oxide, nitrogen oxide, hydrocarbons and particulates exceed government

ing amounts.

One suggested solution has been to link trade-off ratios in a proportion to which the specific pollu-tant exceeds the stand-

But there's a catch here, too. Should total emissions in the air basin today be considered the existing "baseline" against which improvements are made?

'Morning after' pill seen

New drug safer, needed less often

By Ronald Kotulak

A new drug that may provide the long-sought sale substitute for the birth control pill has been synthesized by a University of Chicago chemist.

The drug could revolu-tionize birth control practies by making the "morning after" pill a safe reality and by possibly reducing the frequency with which women must take oral contraceptives to once a month instead of every day.

Preliminary tests in animals show that the new compound may avoid the major side-effects linked to the pul.

The drug is a synthetic derivative of a naturally occurring chemical that causes labor at the end of a pregnancy. Experiments in monkeys show that the compound can prevent pregnancy in a totally different manner than the pill, making it potentially simpler, safer, and cheaper than the pill.

THE DRUG, which was synthesized by Dr. Joseph Fried, chairman of the U. of C.'s chemistry department, does not contain either estrogen or progesterone.

These two powerful female sex hormones are used in the current pill. and they have been associated with an increased risk lof heart attacks, strokes, and cancer.

Women have become increasingly apprehensive about the pill because of the growing awareness of the associated hazards. Many have switched to sterilization, intrauterine devices, or other means of

The more we get away from estrogen the better off we'll be," said Fried. "The important thing is that we have shown that this new type of con-traception is possible. There was a great deal of pessimism that it could be done," he said.

THE DRUG still is in a very early stage of development, and extensive animal tests are required to prove its effectiveness and safety before clinical trials begin in humans. If everything works out all right, the new con-traceptive could be available for general use in five to 10 years," Fried said. Fried's research is supported by the National Institute for Child Health and Development, which is looking for a safe substi-tute for the pill. Because of the troubles with oral contraceptives, drug companies have tended to shy away from research on newer contraceptive medications. Manufacturers cite the high costs of developing and testing new contraceptives and the huge losses they would incur if they were not approved.

THE NEW drug is called ent-15-epi-13 dehy-droprostaglandin F2 droprostaglandin Alpha. It is a member of the prostaglandin family of drugs, which have been called the "miracle drugs of the 70's."

Prostaglandins are hormone-like chemicals that enable individual cells to communicate. Regular hormones are chemical messengers that cause entire organs to react, but prostaglandins are made by individual cells to communicate with neighboring cells.

No one knows exactly how many different kinds of prostaglandins the body produces, but each separate type of cell appears to make its own.

Because the chemicals play a key role in cellular behavior, prostaglandins are being intensively studied for treatments for such widely ranging disorders as ulcers, heart disease, arthritis, asthma, high blood pressure, glaucoma, and others.

FRIED'S synthetic prostaglandin is chemi-cally derived from the Chemical related to that for 'pill'

Chicago Tribune Service

Clinical trials on a do-ityourself abortion technique using a new drug developed by the Upjohn Company are expected to start soon, according to a company spokesman.

The drug is another member of the prostaglandin family and was synthetically derived from a naturally occuring prosta-glandin called PGF2alpha. This natural chemical is responsible for inducing labor by causing the smooth muscles of the uterus to contract.

Although both the abortion drug and a new birth control drug developed at the University of Chicago are related to the prostaglandin that causes labor, each has been synthesized in the laboratory to alter many important proper-ties of the natural com-

BECAUSE of the changes in their molecular structures, each of the two synthetic compounds works in different ways The Upjohn drug induces abortion while the U. of C. drug prevents pregnancy

The chemical synthe-sized by the Kalamazoo, Mich., drug company is called 15 methyl PGF2-alpha methyl ester.

The compound has successfully passed animal salety tests and is scheduled to be tested at three medical centers to induce abortions in early pregnancies, the company spokesman said.

The drug is contained in a slow-melt suppository that a woman can insert when a pregnancy is suspected from one to several weeks after she has missed a period.

The synthetic prosta-glandin acts on the uterus to contract the muscles and to induce menses within hours. Any ferti-lized egg that has been im-planted in the uterus would be washed out.

If the tests are successful, the drug may be available for use in two to four years, said the spokes-man. The drug would be available by prescription but could be used on an out-patient basis, he said. A similar drug used as prostaglandin called PGF2-alpha. One of the main jobs of the natural chemical is to cause the smooth muscles of the uterus to contract to in-duce labor.

But by making certain changes in the chemical's molecular structure, Fried was able to eliminate the chemical's ability to con-tract muscles while retaining it's ability to shut off progesterone production.
This second feature of the chemical is what makes it potentially useful as a new contraceptive. Progesterone is necessary during a woman's regular monthly menstrual cycle to prepare her uterus so that a fertilized egg can become implanted.

Without progesterone, the inner lining of the uterus will not accept an egg so that no fetal development can take place.

Dr. John McCracken of the Worcester Foundation for Experimental Biology Shrewsbury, Mass. where the original birth control pill was developed in 1956, recently tested Fried's synthetic prostaglandin on monkeys and found it caused a nearly complete shutdown of progesterone.

By eliminating the prostaglandin's ability to cause muscle contractions, Fried was able to eliminate the side effects associated with the chemical, such as nausea, fever, headache, and bronchial constriction.

U.S. agencies against—and for—smoking

By Chris Connell

WASHINGTON — Task forces in two major government agencies are grappling with problems related to tobacco, but their efforts scem aimed at conflicting goals.

Experts with the Agriculture Department are looking at ways to strengthen and modernize the $60 million-a-year tobacco price support program, while the Department of Health, Education and Welfare is working on a campaign to discourage smoking.

The price support program guarantees the nation's nearly 600,000 tobacco farmers a minimum price for their crop, thus encouraging the continued harvesting of tobacco.

HEW, MEANWHILE, is spending roughly $10 million a year to dissuade people from smoking, and — failing that — to devise safer cigarettes.

Doctors and health planners also are working on what HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. has vowed will be "the most vigorous, hard-hitting public education campaign to make sure that the American people know that cigarette smoking kills them."

. The campaign won't include an attack on tobacco price supports, however.

Califano, himself a former heavy smoker, says he won't take on the tobacco price support program, which has the support of both President Carter and the Agriculture Department.

"There's nothing I can do to eliminate the tobacco subsidy," he says. " . . . I am not going to tilt at that windmill."

Califano and Agriculture Scerctary Bob Bergland engaged in some verbal sparring on the issue this summer.

Bergland said afterwards that the pair finally agreed Califano would quit talking about price supports and Bergland would refrain from discussing health issues.

Nonetheless, Agriculture Department officials are disturbed by what they consider a misconception by Califano and the public, that the price support program makes tobacco cheaper or more plentiful for smokers. They contend that without the program's quotas on how much tobacco can be grown, more would be on the market and thus would be available at a cheaper price.

"The tobacco program has nothing whatsoever to do with the amount of cigarettes people smoke," said John P. Duncan III, vice chairman of Bergland's task force.

It's wrong to think that if the government abandoned the program, "then these awful people who walk around with cigarettes in their hands would have to quit smoking because there wouldn't be any tobacco around," he said.

The Agriculture Department has lost only $57 million to farmers since the government began lending them money 40 years ago, although the amount of tobacco crop under loan was $373 million last year alone. The loans have soared since 1974, and part of the task force's job is to make sure the situation does not get out of hand.

"We've always been able to dispose of this tobacco with no loss. We certainly want to keep that posture," said Duncan. "We don't want to add that to the health ammunition — that it's costing money."

Daniel Horn, whose National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health in Atlanta has a $1 million budget to promote anti-smoking efforts, said, "We get nickels when they get hundred-dollar bills for that (tobacco) program."

Horn said the federal anti-smoking effort' also is "dwarfed" by the $300 million or more that the tobacco companies spend each year to promote the sale of cigarettes.

The National Cancer Institute's division of cancer cause and prevention spends more than $6 million on smoking research. And its deputy director, Dr. Gio Batta Gori, said, "Certainly we are not spending sufficient money to attack this problem."

Both officials agreed, however, that the government is making headway in discouraging

The government estimates that 50 million Americans smoke. But 29 million Americans are said to have kicked the habit since the surgeon general's first report in 1964 citing health hazards from smoking.

CIGARETTE SALES have kept pace with population growth, however. Some 620 billion cigarettes were sold in 1976, representing more than 11,000 cigarettes per smoker.

Some surveys have shown that nine out of 10 smokers would like to quit, which is one reason why the cancer institute is spending $4.5 million on trying to develop less hazardous cigarettes.

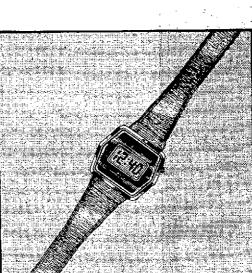

The Agriculture Department is studying the impact of the tobacco industry on the American economy. Cigarette taxes alone pour $6.1 billion into federal, state and local coffers. American farmers produce nearly 2 billion pounds of tobacco yearly, worth more than $2 billion, and a third of the crop is exported.

Califano is expected to receive the task force recommendations this month and to unveil a new anti-smoking program in January. Bergland's task force expects to complete its work around the first of the year.

DETROIT - More than 1.3 million cars built by Chrysler Corp. since 1975 have design flaws that can lead to chronic engine stalling problems, company records show.

The problems were discovered in 1976 and assembly line changes were made last spring to correct them. Repair kits and service bulletins were sent to dealerships, but most owners never have been told that Chrysler has acknowledged the problem and developed ways to fix it.

COMPANY documents indicate Chrysler has no plans to recall the cars because it doesn't consider stalling a safety problem.

But Knight-Ridder Newspapers has learned that the company is fixing some of the cars free under a selective and unpublicized repair pro-

But others are not aware that the company has apparently found the cause of the problem and developed ways to fix it.

Chrysler officials refused to be interviewed on the matter or to answer questions submitted to the company's public relations department.

COMPANY documents show that the problems exist: on, 1975, 1976 and some 1977 models with 318cubic-inch V8 engines or 225-cubic-inch six cylinder engines. Most of the cars involved are Valiants, Darts, Aspens and Vo-

Research on the problems intensified in early 1976, after complaints from owners and field service personnel that a large number of the cars were stalling repeatedly until the engine was fully warmed up.

In a letter to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration last summer, the company admitted that the stalling problem existed, but said it had not recalled the cars because "we feel that these problems do not present an unreasonable risk to traffic safety."

Clarke Harper, the NHTSA investigator in charge of the case, said last week that at least 29 accidents may be linked with the stalling problem, and that nine of them in-

Although the company would not provide cost estimates, one service manager at a Detroit-area Chrysler dealership said the repairs cost from $10 to about $30, depending on the type of car involved.

However, some service managers contacted said that the company has been liberal in bending the rules when owners bring in out-of-warranty cars that have the stalling problem.

Although Chrysler never has told all 1.3 million owners that the stalling problem has been diagnosed and can be lixed, some owners have re-ceived special attention from company field service representatives.

A reporter located several owners who were contacted by Chrysler after they had complained to NHTSA or to Chrysler corporate headquarters. Repairs were made without charge.

Other owners, after numerous unsuccessful attempts to have the prob-lem corrected at dealerships while their cars were under warranty, have paid for repairs at independent garages or abandoned hope of cor-recting the problem.

In a statement issued. Friday afternoon, the company said in part:

"The particular stalling experienced by owners of certain 225- and 318-cubicinch engines is correctible at Chrysler dealerships. Once these stalling causes were determined, neces-

Blacks score Riles for vote on UC entries

SACRAMENTO (AP) leaders in California are angry with state schools Superintendent Wilson Riles for his vote to Lighten University of California admission standards.

Riles, who seven years ago became the first black elected to statewide office in California, is running

Marion Woods, a black who is director of the State Department of Benefit Payments, wrote a letter to Riles extremely critical of Riles' vote on the issue. But Woods said Saturday he will vote for Riles in 1978.

Liberals rip Carter and Brown

By Doug Willis

President Carter has betraved Democratic Party principles by sponsoring repressive legislation, a coalition of liberal California political groups charged Saturday in Los Angeles.

And Gov. Brown is almost as bad as Carter from the liberal perspective, the coalition said.

Brown was accused of compromising liberal principles for expediency or for his future presidential ambitions, said members of the coalition, which was led by Americans for Democratic Action and the California Democratic Council.

Frank Wilkinson of the American Civil Liberties Union said since Carter took office in January "we have had a record of lost opportunities and of betrayals.

WILKINSON said because of public revulsion to the Watergate scandal and other abuses of government power, Carter had "a real opportunity" that other presidents didn't have to curb the FBI and CIA.

Instead, Carter has sup-ported legislation that "will allow the FBI and CIA to do exactly what they have been doing the past 25 years, only under legislative sanction."

Carter is also supporting bills to extend rather than curtail wiretapping and to revise the criminal code with dozens of "repressive" provisions.

A dozen liberal groups were represented at the day-long "evaluation con-ference." Carter's appointments and policies were criticized by nearly every participant while the report on Brown - although critical overall was mixed.

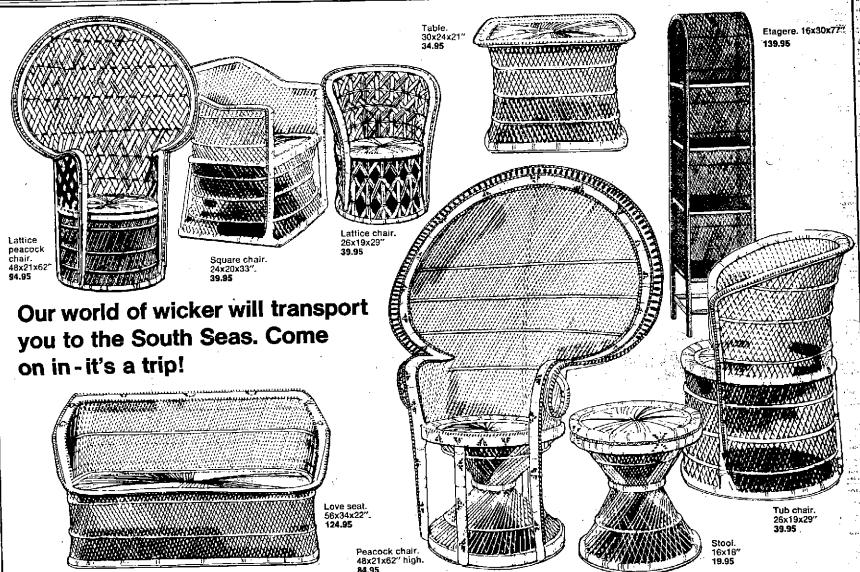

"When he first came into office, my impression was that he had a vision of what could be done, and that it involved a commitment to helping people and to being an activist governor," Dean Tibbs of the California Tax Reform Association said of Brown.

"I THINK in the last two years, the commitment to helping people has been replaced by personal goals," Tibbs said. "I think what happened was be decided to run for president.

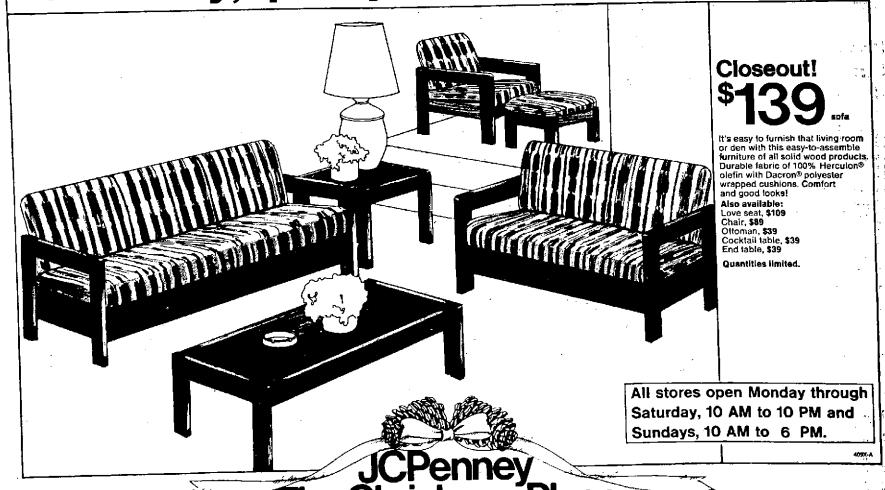

William Bennett, Demo cratic chairman of the State Board of Equalization, also criticized Brown, who challenged Carter last year for the Democratic nomination for president, for changing his positions for political motives.

What is very disturb ing is apparently the pat-tern is growing. Whatever public posture President Carter takes on issues, Gov. Brown takes the opposite, within reason, Bennett said "It's very easy to find expediency in changing from support of the 160acre limitation to opposing it," Bennett said.

ERIA' HAWTHORNE PLAZA PUENTE HILLS RIVERSIDE RIVERSIDE IRVINE (AP) — Low levels of nitrogen dioxide usually found in the air on smoggy days can destroy human and animal lung cells, contends a team of UC Irvine scientists.

The five-member team said its research shows for the first time that such cells cannot survive a low level of nitrogen.

Nitrogen dioxide is one of the key ingredients of smog. The brownish haze often seen in the skies is attributed by scientists to nitric oxide emitted from automobiles and then oxidized in the atmosphere to

It is part of our function to correct the misrepresentations that are so often made here in the United States about South Africa.

We have the Cape Province, where I come from and the location of Cape Town, the mother city of South Africa and where you find the bulk of the colored population; the Natal province, where the city of Durban is located, containing the bulk of the Asian and Indian people; then you have the Transvaal, where you will find the bulk of the black peo-

A. This is a most regrettable action on the part of Polaroid. One doesn't know what pressure was exerted on Polaroid to take this type of action. It's not only Polar-oid that abbors apartheid. There are more than 300 U.S. firms in South Africa, and they all say that. S. African press assails Biko 'no-fault' ruling

By Maureen Johnson

South JOHANNESBURG Africa - White opposition newspapers reacted angrily Saturday to a magistrate's finding that no one was criminally responsible for the prison death of black conscious iness' leader Steve Biko.

Johannesburg's Rand Daily Mail gave front-page display to U.S. condemnation of the finding by Magistrate Marthinus J. Prins, and in an editorial criticized the brevity of the verdict and its failure to comment on Biko's treatment by security police during three weeks of detention.

The verdict delivered Friday rafter 15 days of hearings accepted the fact that Biko died Sept. 12 from extensive brain damage, but said there was no proof that anyone

The U.S. State Department and *U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Wald-heim expressed shock over the verdict, and the British House of Com-mons signed a motion condemning 'the murder of Steve Biko.'

The Mail asked why Prins said nothing about Biko's treatment, in-cluding being kept naked, handcuffed and shackled in Port Elizabeth, and driven 750 miles to Pretoria without medical care the day before his death.

This testimony "has been passed over without a word," said the Mail. "And the impression that gives is very bad indeed."

In an editorial headlined,

"Biko: It Can Happen Again," the Johannesburg Star said the inquest has created, not answered, ques-

"It has disclosed, in their full horror and inhumanity, the abuses which can arise when a man is held in custody without access to anyone who might protect his interests -including his right to stay alive," the Star said.

"On the evidence available, the magistrate may not have been able to find anyone criminally responsible for Mr. Biko's death.

'But the evidence on the way he was handled by police displays an entirely unacceptable callousness. Unhappily, there is not a shred of evidence to suggest the government proposes any measure to prevent the entire tragedy from being repeated."

In an editorial reflecting some embarrassment, Johannesburg's Afrikaans daily, Die Transvaler, usually a strong government supporter, said it had confidence in the judiciary and accepted the finding.

But it added that Biko's case had shown the security police in a "bad light" and its handling was full of "glaring mistakes."

We must learn from these mistakes. We cannot afford another Biko case," the paper said.

Meanwhile, sources said about nine blacks, including Biko' brother Khaya were detained and later released Friday. Black sources said the arrests came in pre-dawn raids eight hours before Prins issued his ruling.

The arrests did not appear to be related to the inquest, the sources said. At least four other blacks arrested at the same time in the black township of Soweto remain in custody.

U.S., Calif. agree on Sohio smog

Brown's administration has reached agreement with the Carrey administration on pollution control standards which Standard Oil of Ohio must follow in order to build a terminal in Long Beach to receive Alaskan oil.

The Carter administration. which had sought to play the vole is mediator between the state and Solito, has strengthened California's pargaining position by swiveing to support the state's objectives, according to a story in the Sacramento Bee.

California has sought tougher smog control standards than those set by the traditionally less-agressive federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

The federal-state accord was reported by the newspaper based on a meeting Friday in Washington between Tom Quiun, Brown's anti-smog chief, and James Schlesinger. President Carter's energy secre-

Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties, must issue Sohio a permit before the ARB and the EPA approve the project.

"An agreement between state and federal officials doesn't necessarity mean the AQMD is also in agreement," Schaadt said. "I'm confident that we will not be asked to do more than the law requires on anti-smog measures.

Quinn and Sohio have different opinions of what the law requires. Quinn said Sohio has offered to spend about $50 million on antismog measures as a "trade-off" for the new air pollution the tanker facility would add to the Los Angeles basin.

Sohio, to get state and federal environmental permits, would have to increase that amount by $30 miltion to $50 million, Quinn said, to install scrubbers at a Southern California Edison electric generating plant.

He told The Bee that such an investment should be an "easy" decision for Sohio and its parent firm, British Petroleum, since they have a $5 billion investment in Alaska oil development.

But Schaadt said money spant on the project to meet one objective must be kept separate from money spent to meet other objectives. There were no alternatives to spending $5 billion on the north slope of Alaska to get the oil but there are alternatives involved in the proposed Long Beach terminal.

"Each effort to meet an objective must stand on its own feet financially," Schaadt said.

He said he expects the AQMD to reach a decision by the end of December and that decisions from the ARB and EPA would follow within 60 days.

Gov. Brown was scheduled to meet Saturday night in San, Francisco with officials of Sobio in ar cifort to convince the Clevelandbased company that it must spend considerably more money than it has pledged on anti-smog meas-

Gray Davis, Brown's executive secretary, said in Sacramento, "We're getting close to a resolu-tion, and this meeting should speed that resolution."

Outlook on Sohio smog far from clear

Or, in the case of specific pollutants generated by the project pollutants that don't contribute to basin-wide photochemical smog should the quality of the air in the region immediately adjacent to the project be considered the "base-

What about still another factor? Emissions from the terminal and storage tanks won't be constant, as at a steel mill or glass plant.

The Sohio project will be running full throttle some days, idling on others and, a few days a month, mearly standing still. Consequently, the nature and amount of emissions will vary widely.

In other words, by what method will the calculated operational emissions be derived? Alter all, this total emission value is the basis against which the trade-off is

There is no agreement on the "baseline" value. Depending on which set of figures is used which in turn depends on how many tankers are in port, what sort of fuel they're using, time of day and even the month of the year sulfur dioxide ratios, for instance, could far exceed acceptable stand-

That's a seemingly small difference, but it means millions of dollars to Sohio that may not have to be spent if Sohio can hold the final trade-off ratio close to 1:1.

The foundation of Sohio's argument is that 1:1 still represents an air quality benefit as required by law. That's because, Sohio claims, the 1.1 figure is "worst case," occurring only a few days a year, if

"On any other day, you'd see an air quality benefit as high as nine-to-one for oxides of nitrogen when no tankers are in port," says Bob Schaadt, a vice president with Sohio Transportation Co. Schaadt is careful to explain that his company does not want to remove only as much pollution as it generates. "We've always said that we'd remove more emissions than we'd create," he says. "But we've contended it is inappropriate that we be asked to remove emissions at a ratio which is more than one-to-one for the maximum emission level for the maximum emission day which would occur no more often than about one day in 30.

Even at this level, we would provide emission offsets on the average of about 3:1.

Schaadt says that "many press reports focusing on worst case emission levels are just exaggerations.

"And to say that thousands of people in Long Beach will be subjected to heavy concentrations (of sulfur dioxide and sulfuric acid) is misleadingly inaccurate.

"The facts are that the federal standards for sulfur oxides are almost never violated, and the new state standard is violated only a Iew times a year."

Schaadt argues that rather than set a specific trade-off ratio, Sohio ought to be allowed a "worst case" ratio of 1.1.

"(The AQMD's offer of) 1.2.1 is very rigorous," Schaadt says, "be-

"For example, you can't emit pollutants in Long Beach and try to trade them off in the San Fernando

Talks fail to free S. Korea prisoners

By Andrew Malcolm New York Times Service

SEOUL, South Korea -Secret negotiations be-tween the government of President Park Chung Hee and domestic opponents over the possible release of a number of political prisoners have totally broken down. And participants say there appears little likelihood of any resumption in the near fu-result is a Continued confrontation ~between South Korea's efficient internal security apparatus, headed by the Korean CIA, and the band of Christian dissidents opposed to Park's virtual one-man rule.

"It's useless to continue," said one dissident.

THE stalemate means no immediate end to South Korea's nagging human rights problems while relations with the Carter administration are already strained over the Tongsun Park congressional influence-buying scandal and the pending phased withdrawal of American ground troops.

The situation also provides some insight into South Korea's unique form of authoritarian rule and Courrent circumstances that leave room for such negotiated movements between the government and its opponents.

Meanwhile, an esti-mated 200 political prisoners continue to be held, some under life sentences, under spartan conditions in South Korea's aging prison system. Their friends and relatives say even additional warm clothing permitted by prison authorities are insufficient against the bit ter Korean winds that blow down off Manchuria and, last week, brought the season's first heavy

The behind-the-scenes talks, which began in October, involved a committee of three prominent Park opponents - Bishop Daniel Chi, Prof. Ahn Byong Mu and Park Hyung Kyu. In recent weeks they met secretly with aides of Kim Dae Kyu, the former minister construction whom President Park appointed last year to run the KCIA, the South Korean govern ment's principal intelli-gence and internal security arm

THE TWO sides met a half dozen times. The ses-sions were described as cordial though at times strained. The three-man committee was told it could meet with most individual prisoners so long as the visits concerned the prisoners' release. Usually, the prisoners are allowed only infrequent, five-minute visits with family members.

The bargaining sessions locused on the drafting of a statement to be signed his or her release. The statements concerned the prisoners' past acts and future conduct and their opinion of the release.

According to well-in-formed sources, the government's position basically was that the statements must be virtual confessions of past wrongdoing, promises of future "good behavior" and "appreciation" for the release.

The dissidents, who themselves were divided on the appropriate bar-gaining strategy, sought more vaguely worded more vaguely statements that spoke of South Korea's need for true democracy, contained no admission of illegality and simply "welcomed" the releases. Fragmentary word-of-mouth reports of these meetings have prompted rumors of imminent releases.

The government opponents relused to admit they had done wrong by speaking out against the government of Park, a former army general who seized power in a 1961 coup. In 1972 the constitution was rewritten, and the president has issued a number of emergency decrees since which prohibit demonstrations and criticism of the president. The ban also covers criticism of the ban on criticism.

One counterproposal reportedly involved the prisoners making a simple, short declaration supporting a democratic constitution and promising to follow peaceful careers.

"WE TOLD the KCIA," another opponent added, that we could try to persuade all the prisoners to sign something like that. But we couldn't tell them to admit wrongdoing, illegalities, and to promise to forsake future political work. We couldn't sign something like that ourselves, so how could we pressure others to do it?"

But the dissidents were also divided among themselves between hard-liners who demanded the release of all political prisoners by spring and a more moderate group willing to settle for a phased prisoner release.

This would begin perhaps with the so-called "March 1 prisoners," who issued a call for President Park's resignation on March 1, 1976, and proceed through the ranks of imprisoned clergy and students.

.The hard-liners also demanded that the KCIA set an exact date for the release of Kim Chi Ha, a poet convicted under the anti-Communist law and sentenced to life imprisonment for his satirical poem "Five Thieves." poem "Five Thieves." These demands proved lapsed.

CIA sale told of dolphins taught to kill

By Holly Kurtz
Associated Press

HONOLULU — Some government-trained dolphins capable of killing enemy swimmers and ferrying weapons were sold to Latin American countries by researchers connected with the Gentral Intelligence Agency, a former Navy scientist has testified.

Michael Greenwood, a delense witness Friday in the trial of Kenneth Le Vasseur, said left his civilian research job with the Navy in 1972 because of a disagreement with the intelli-gence community over the use of dolphins as biological weapons and their sale to Latin American nations.

Le Vasseur, 28, and Steve Sipman, 26, are relarged with theft for the release of two dolphins from University of Hawaii research tanks in May. They claimed they were freeing the dolphins and the case is considered by many as a test of "animal rights."

Sipman is to stand trial in February.

DOLPHINS at the Navy Underseas Center at Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii, were trained to be used as "weapons platforms," Greenwood said.

Research also was carried on at a CIA marine mammal center at Key West, Fla., where Greenwood worked for a period of time.

Weapon-carrying dolphins were trained to attack Russian nuclear cruise ships in Havana Harbor, Greenwood said in an interview outside

These dolphins were sold to Latin American countries either by the CIA or by intelligence workers disenchanted with the CIA, he said.

In Washington, Dennis Berend, a spokes-man for the CIA, said he had no knowledge of CIA sales of such trained dolphins but added that he could not make a firm denial of Greenwood's charge.

Greenwood also described one set of experiments at Key West, titled "swimmer nullification," in which dolphins were used to kill enemy swimmers by injecting high-pressured gas into them. The gas cannisters and a needle were carried on the dolphin's beak.

THE EXPERIMENTS were continued at Kaneohe Bay and in Camranh Bay, Vietnam, in 1971, said Greenwood. He said he was not sure if any swimmers actually were killed. "This is unconscionable and indicates a sort.

of syndrome in the scientific branch of the Pentagon which says you can justify anything," said Greenwood, who now teaches in Moorehead,

'The dolphins could place the weapons in the wrong place," he said.

Greenwood said he has given confidential testimony on the experiments to the U.S. Senate.

The dolphins, named Kea and Puka, had been trained by the Navy to return to their home base at the Navy Underseas Center in Hawaii, Greenwood said, adding that he could foresee the eventual return home by Puka.

Greenwood said that because of the dol-phins' homing training, Le Vasseur did not intend to permanently deprive the University of Hawaii of its property.

WASHINGTON - Sen. WASHINGTON — Sen.

BUT THE West Virginia Democrat said that, based on the treaties and his talks with Panama's leader Brig Gen. Omar Torrijos Herrera, "I don't think that there's any question that we have a right to defend the canal" under the proposed pacts.

Panama ruler said periled if treaties fail

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) - The regime of Gen. Omar Torrijos is in danger of being overthrown if attempts to se-cure new Panama Canal treaties fail, says the Panamanian ambassador to the United Nations.

The treaties are "an insurance policy for the Torrijos government," Jorge Illueca says.

He made the remarks in an interview at Central Michigan University, where he participated in a seminar.

The treaties were signed by President Carter Sept. 7, but face stiff opposition from a block of conservative U.S. senators.

The prospect of new treaties has been sort of an insurance policy for his government. Adverse American opinion against the treaties is of great concern to Panama, standing" of the pacts modeled on the language of a joint statement issued by President Carter and Torrijos here last Oct. 14.

They said that under the treaty in which both countries pledged to defend the neutrality of the water-way, they "shall have the right to act against any aggression or threat di-rected against the Canal or against the peaceful transit of vessels through the canal."

Byrd said he did not believe the necessary two-thirds majority was yet in hand to approve the neutrality treaty and the treaty under which control of the canal and the canal zone would pass to Panama by the year 2000.

BUT HE said it was an "extremely hypothetical" question, because many senators had not yet had time to educate themselves fully. He had only read the treaties once himself, he noted.

Byrd said he had writ-ten to Sen. John Sparkman, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee; last week to ask him to get the treaties reported by the committee by about January 25. And he said he had asked Sen. John C. Stennis, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, to complete any hearings he wanted to hold so that Senate debate could begin early in February. In his discussion of the issue, Byrd said there were two basic questions, and he framed them in a way that suggested that he was, leaning increasingly toward support of ratifica-

HE SAID the impact of ratification or rejection had to be weighed against "continued use of the canal.by the United States and other countries" and on "United States relations, economic, political and otherwise, with Cen-tral and South American countries."

Supporters of the treaties have argued that approval of the transfer of control is necessary to prevent threats to continued canal operations. They have warned that Latin American resentment at the United States would endanger relations over a broad range of

Byrd said the only measure which could compete with the canal treatics for Senate altention would be an expected proposal for a tax cut. He said the Senate might go "doubletrack" sys tem, considering the canal issue for part of the day and then turning to the tax question, so that it would not be blocked behind an expected lengthy debate

One other priority measure, the revision of the entire tederal criminal code sponsored by the late Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., would be taken up after the treaties, he said:

Castro, at 12, wrote to FDR

By Donald Sanders
Associated Press

WASHINGTON - A letter written by Fidel Castro to Franklin D. Roosevelt in November 1940, asking for a $10 bill and saying he knew of rich iron deposits in Cuba has just been uncovered.

Specialists at the National Archives and Records Service are convinced that the writer, then a school-boy, is the man who is now president of Cuba.

The handwriting and the signature are similar to relatively recent examples of Castro's handwriting; he was a student at the Roman Catholic school from which the letter was sent; and the age fibes fairly closely.

Further, Castro grew up in the area where he said rich iron mines were to be found. He did not make payment of the $10 a condition for supplying such information. The offer was more or less a WRITTEN ON A lined schoolboy's tablet and containing some misspellings, the letter to "my good friend Roosvelt" expresses happiness that Roosevelt has just been re-elected to a third term. It continues:

"I am 12 years old. I am a boy but I think very much, but I do not think that I am writting to the President of the United States.

"If you like, give me a ten dollars bill green american, in the letter, because never, I have not seen a len dollars bill green american and I would

"If you want iron to make your ships I will show to you the biggest (mines) of iron of the land. They are in Mayari, Oriente. Cuba."

The letter has just been found bound in a volume of old State Department documents being examined by the Archives' records declassification division by Byran T. van Sweringen, who said the discovery among thousands of routine papers was a pleasant

"I feel that this letter was indeed written by 'the' Fidel Castro, Cuban head of state," he told a re-

THE WRITER DID not get the $10 he asked for. The letter was sent to the U.S. ambassador in Havana for acknowledgement. Castro got this somewhat unresponsive reply

"Dear Fidel: "The president has directed the embassy to acknowledge, with an expression of appreciation, your letter of Nov. 6, 1940, written on the occasion of his re-election."

The letter was signed by Willard L. Beaulac, embassy counselor, who has told officials he has no recollection of the incident.

There have been no diplomatic relations between Cuba and the United States since Castro took over from Fulgencio Batista on Jan. 1, 1959.

Standard reference gives two dates for Castro's birth: Aug. 13, 1926, and Aug. 13, 1927. Assuming the latter to be correct he would have just turned 13 when the letter to Roosevelt was written on Nov. 6 1940. The reference to himself as being 12 might be human error.

The letter was written from Colegio de Dolores. One biography says that Fidel "was transferred by his parents to the Colegio de Dolores, operated by the Jesuits, to complete his grade schooling." Researchers have not been able to find the dates.

MEXICO CITY — The 235 Americans held in Mexican jails will start streaming back to the United States this week, and many Americans may be surprised to find out what kind of people they are.

Most of them were convicted of drug violations, and there is a widespread impression that they were mustly vacationing youngsters, subjected to harsh treatment in a foreign land for relatively minor

"Well, I'll tell you one thing: They aren't the poor little Joe College types caught with one joint of grass in their pockets," said Michael Abbell, of the Justice Department, who is spearheading the prisoner transfer.

"These are serious offenders. Although there have been cases of unfortunate prosecutions, the McKican government is being wrongly charged with prosecuting minor violations harshly," he said.
"Many of these people would have gotten stiffer sentences in the United States."

The prisoners are being allowed to return to the United States under a new treaty with Mexico that went into effect Nov. 30.

The first batch of 112 prisoners will be flown to the San Diego Metropolitan Correctional Facility next Friday. Some will be released a few days later because of the time they served in Mexican prisons. But the rest will remain in custody until parole hearings that may take place within weeks or

A SURVEY of the prisoners interviewed by Justice Department shows that most are not of college age, as many Americans believe.

The average prisoner is 31 and the median age is 28, higher than in American penal institutions. Several are more than 50 years old. Almost half of those charged with marijuana possession were transporting 100 kilos or more, amounts worth an estimated $10 million. "That's about 220 pounds of grass," said Abbell. "That shows you'what we're dealing with."

About 40 percent of the narcotics violations involve cocaine, and one-third of the prisoners possessed two kilos (4.4 pounds) or more. Abbell also said almost two thirds of those surveyed had at least one prior arrest and half had two or more.

"As many as 10 percent are wanted on outstanding warrants in the United States, and I think these statistics paint a different portrait of what kind of prisoner is languishing in a Mexican jail cell," he

"The facts speak for themselves. I had no idea what we were dealing with when I was assigned the responsibility for implementing the treaty. Like so many other people, I had been misled into believing that the vast majority of Americans in Mexican prisons were there for minor offenses. Most of the offenses were very serious.

During interviews in Santa Marta Prison, few prisoners maintained their innocence, but many felt they had been denied the right to an American trial that might have resulted in probation. They consider transfer almost as a deserved diploma.

VICTOR GRIPPALDI, 32, of New York City, a former osteopath serving time for cocaine smuggling, considers many of his fellow prisoners crybables considers many of his fellow prisoners crybables.

"It will be good riddance to all that whining and complaining about how they got busted," he said.

"Mommie's little babies got busted for trying to make a fast $2,000 for selling dope and got caught."

The basso-voiced Grippaldi, wearing dark, horn-rimmed glasses, said Mexican prison life is better than anything offered by the American prison systems.

TRIPOLI, Libya — Hard-line Arab leaders moved Saturday to form a "resistance front" against Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and try to block his

In Cairo, the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram said today that Sadat has recalled Egypt's ambassadors to the Soviet Union and four Arab countries taking part in the Tripoli summit conference — Algeria, Iraq, South Yemen and Syria. It said the ambassadors had been summoned to Cairo for urgent

But President Hafez Assad of Syria was reported resisting such a drastic step, partly out of concern for the poverty of Egypt's 40 million inhabitants. The Syrian president urged his caution on Khadafy, suggesting a broader front to pressure Sadat and, it was hoped, overshadow the influence of conservative Arab states such as Saudi Arabia, conference sources said.

"The question is not to take spectacular steps to retaliate against Sadat, but to prevent what he is trying to do," said a high-level Syrian source close to Assad. "Whatever measures we may take, it will not be an adventure.

Habash, a pediatrician-turned revolutionary who leads the radical Marxist PFLP, appeared to win some support for his fervent opposition to resumption of the Geneva Mideast peace conference.

"We are not thinking about Geneva any more, because it's dead," said Nayef Hawatmeh of the Democratic Front, a moderate Marxist guerrilla group which previously followed Syria's lead and supported talks. "The Palestinian resistance is moving out of the Saudi-Egyptian orbit."

Syrian sources said Assad is convinced that the Geneva talks have been derailed for the foreseeable future by Sadat's mission to Jerusalem and the ensuing uproar in the Arab world.

Begin, British leader huddle

Prime Minister Menahem Begin, once Britain's most wanted guerrilla in Pales-tine, met for 90 minutes Saturday night with Prime Minister James Calla-

The Israeli leader spent the Jewish Sabhath at his hotel until sundown, when he began the official part of his six-day visit to Britain. Then he rode to Callaghan's residence at 10 Downing St. in a convoy of vehicles flanked by police. Other police cordoned off the street and kept a small group of Palestinian demonstrators 200 yards away and out of sight.

Begin left all aides and advisers behind and met alone with Callaghan, who was the first Western leader to be briefed personally on Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace mission to Jerusalem two weeks ago.

Begin made no state-ment after the meeting. A Downing Street spokesman said Callaghan told Begin that if he and other Mideast leaders can work out a peace settlement, they will be doing a service not only to the Middle East but to the entire world.

British officials have de-clared that Sadat's inititives could result in a separate Israeli-Egyptian peace that would set back chances for an over-all Mideast settlement and disrupt Arab oil supplies

Israel has been trying to get Britain to halt arms sales to Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait and to try to soften the European Common Market's support for a Palestinian home-land. Foreign Secretary David Owen has said Britain feels there is a need for such a homeland, but not necessarily for a sovereign state.

After the talks, the two leaders joined their wives for a dinner at the official residence. Sixty guests attended, including Owen; former Prime Minister Sir Harold Wilson; Joe Gorm-ley, a leader of the coal miners' union, and John Davies, the foreign affairs spokesman for Britain's opposition Conservative Mideast king puts off visit to U.S.

The White House did not spell out specific reasons for the cancellation and no. new date for a Carter-Hassan meeting was given.

"Because of recent developments in the Middle East in which Morocco is deeply interested, the visit of His Majesty King Hassan II to President Carter has been postponed by mutual agreement, the White House said.

Bomb explodes in Jerusalem; 6 hurt

JERUSALEM (AP) - A bomb exploded in a crowded market street in Jerusalem's walled Old City on Saturday, wounding six persons.

Police said the injuries were not serious.
Two West German tourists, three Israeli Jews and one Arab were treated at hospitals. Israel state radio said police blocked off the area and began a search for more explosives. A number of suspects were detained for questioning, the radio reported. The bombing came 13 days after Egyptian President Anwar Sadat visited Israel and stopped to pray at the Al Aqsa mosque in the Old City, Islam's third holiest shrine. Sadat's visit provoked angry criticism from Arab states, who accused Sadat of shattering unified Arab policy toward Israel.

'Napoleon' of Africa crowns himself today

The steamy capital of the Central African Empire glittered with fresh paint, banners and gold imperial eagles Saturday in anticipation of the coronation of self-proclaimed Emperor Bokassa I, a ceremony billed as postcolonial Africa's "Event of the Century.

This morning - exactly ne year after proclaiming his underdeveloped, landlocked republic of two million an empire, and 12 years after seizing power in a bloodless coup — Jean Bedel Bokassa will take a diamond-studded crown fashioned by a Paris jeweller and place it on his rule in 1960. On New Year's Eve 1965, he seized power, later naming himself field marshal of his 1,500-man army and president-for-life of what then was the Central African Republic.

Observers in Bangui believe the stocky, bearded leader decided to become emperor in part to be re-garded as a traditional African chief, not only by his own tribe, but by all of the 80 tribes in his largely illiterate nation.

But much of the inspiration for the ceremony was from Bokassa's idol, Napoleon. It was from Napoleon that he borrowed the idea of planting a crown on his own head, although unlike the French emperor, he was unable to get the pope to hand him the crown.

Costumes for the event were made by the same embroidery house which provided the coronation robes for Napoleon 173 years ago.

The imperial robe, weighing 32 pounds, is embroidered with 758,000 pearls and 1.2 million crystal beads, matching the emperor's slippers, which are adorned with 3,000 pearls. The ermine-trimmed robe has a 12-yard train of red velvet embroidered with golden thread, fringed with gold bees— Napoleon's own symbol— and topped by embroidered gold eagles on front and back.

The cost of the robe has been estimated at nearly $150,000. To accommodate his thousands of guests, Bokassa has imported 200 luxury cars and 40 trucks. and air-conditioned about 200 bungalows.

For entertainment on coronation day and during the "Week of Joy" to follow, thousands of his subjects have been preparing native songs and dances.

French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing received a special invita-tion from Bokassa, but declined to make the journey. Britain and several other countries also have declined to send special representatives.

Msgr. Joachin Ndayen, archbishop of Bangui, will say a special Mass for the imperial couple after the coronation ceremony and the procession from the stadium to Bangui's Notre Dame Cathedral.

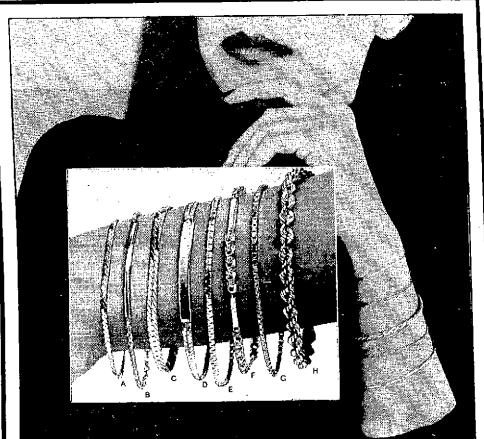

LONDON (AP) - British Foreign Minister David Owen has invited two Rhodesian black nationalist leaders to London for talks on political develnoments in that whiteruled country, Foreign Office officials said Satur-

Diplomatic sources said the invitation came after the United States and Britain privately agreed on the advisability of a meeting with Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, co-leaders of the militant

Ancient temples rise again China said operating new high-yield oil wells

By Earleen F. Tatro For The Associated Press

ASWAN, Egypt — With the help of frogmen and giant cranes, the ancient temples of Philae Island have been rescued from a watery grave beneath the Nile and are rising slowly on another island.

Block by block, the temple of the goddess Isis is being reassembled, "like crossword puzzles," says Sami Farag, resident Egyptian archeologist at the reconstruction site.

The island of Philae has vanished in a pool of stagnant green water behind an encircling cofferdam between the high Aswan Dam and the 75-year-old low dam. Soon the cofferdam will be torn down, leaving nothing to mark the spot which was the sacred island of Isis from history's most remote times until the 6th century A.D. when her cult, the last flicker of Pharaonic civilization, was snuffed out by Christianity.

THE LITTLE ISLAND, 600 miles up-river from the Mediterranean Sea, was the final sanctuary of Isis. Greeks, Romans and Coptic Christians conquered the Nile Delta, bringing their religions to Egypt and erecting their own temples on Philae, but Isis endured.

Finally, the technology of the 20th century threatened to do what wars, plagues and religious zealots could not: destroy the monuments.

When the British built the low Aswan Dam in 1902, the Nile crept over Philae, submerging the temples for nine months every year. The high Aswan Dam, completed in 1971, trapped Philae in a rising pool of water between the two dams.

In the early 1970s, the monuments were dismantled by a team of Egyptian workmen, Italian engineers and Egyptologists funded by UNESCO and the Egyptian government. Nearly 50,000 stone blocks were labeled, cleaned and stored behind a barbed wire fence deep inside a military reserve.

prepared on nearby Agilkia Island, a much higher island with few archeological treasures. The island's rocky contours were blasted into a plateau. The debris was used to shape Agilkia's outline to resemble that of Philae.

Last March, the first pieces of the monuments were brought to the island, and reassembling began. Eight months later, the two pylons — thic trapezoid-shaped walls covered with inscriptions stand partially completed in front of the foundation for the main temple of Isis.

The project, expected to be completed in about two years, has given Egyptologists a rare opportunity to study Philae.

'The history of Philae is really not clear, be cause for many years, the water made it impossible to excavate inside the island," Farag says. "During the dismantling, we discovered three new temples, so we have changed the history of Egypt."

While much of Philae's history has been obscure, it is known that the island played a prominent role in the religion of the Pharaohs.

ANCIENT EGYPTIANS at very remote times of history believed that there was a family of gods who ruled the Nile Valley," Farag says. "Osiris was the head of this family. Ancient Egyptians loved this god very much, because they believed that he taught them all the means of improving life. This put envy in the heart of his brother Set, who got rid of him by cutting his body into several pieces and lossing them along the Nile Valley. When Isis, the wife of Osiris, started searching for his body, she started on Philae, so Philae became sacred for Isis."

Just as the remains of her husband were scattered, the remains of her temple lie scattered today. With the pieces of Philac's other monuments, they lie in rows in the eight-acre storage area, waiting to be taken to Agükia.

We call this the cemetery of Philae," Farag Signs mark the pieces of each monument. Down a sandy lane marked "Arr," for example, are lines of blocks from the temple of Arrsenofes, a Nubian god.

IN ADDITION to the 42,000 blocks removed from the monuments, archeologists found 2,500 blocks scattered around the island where she sang at Connie's Inn. Then, in 1924, a cabaret singer in Paris — a friend — became ill, and Bricktop was called to take her place.

When she arrived, she oked at the "12 or 14 looked at the tables" in the tiny cafe and asked, "Where's the cabaret?" They told her she was looking at it, and Bricktop burst into tears. A young busboy comforted the sobbing redhead in the kitchen. He was Langston Hughes, later a famed writer. So it is with Brickton; her special magnetism draws special people.

"DARLING, I have met in my life all the kings, all the popes, and the movie stars; of course Jack Diamond was a great friend; vou remember he was the killer of killers. They weren't just my clients;

BOC guitar relieves Arena tedium Santana's, with spiraling, soaring highs and long sus-

The Blue Oyster Cult's Buck Dharma demonstrated an ability to play guitar at least as well as Carlos Santana. But BOC's concert at the Long Beach Arena Friday night was more an exercise in tedium than a showcase for Dharma's talent.

Employing nearly every tired stage trick over the span of the evening, the three-band slate (Motors, Black Oak, Blue Oyster Cult) was a 1960s flashback.

Continually, the same question was screamed by every band's spokesman: "Long Beach, are you ready to rock 'n' roll?"

The answer was, of course, an emphatic "Yes!" People don't pay $8.50 for a ticket unless they're ready Predictably, "I can't hear you!" followed the audience's reply, and so on.

The music was as trite as the stage hanter. The Motors was bored with its music, and the audience was still trickling in, paying little attention to the punk-rock band.

REVIEW

Black Oak received considerably more attention, but its music was simplistic hard rock, a sound that served the group well in its earlier days. The band's failure to progress creatively shows as lead vocalist Jim Dandy mechanically struts about on stage, movements devoid of the sparkle that used to compensate for the band's lack of serious musical talent.

It was after 10 p.m. before Blue Ovster Cult, the headline act, came on stage. It was still another feature of the '60s and early '70s when audiences waited hours for the band they came to see.

BOC is a power band, but with a distinct, almost mystical aura that separates it from other hard-rock bands. It's been referred to as neo-fascist music, often dealing in morbid, sometimes lurid lyrics. BOC's saving grace is lead guitarist Dharma. His style is similar to

Dharma's one extended solo, in conjunction with a laser light show, was the redeeming moment of the night and one of the most intense experiences I've found at a rock concert. The laser light reflecting off the mirrored orbs on the Arena ceiling was at first opressive but soon became obsessive. The fluid, bowed effect of Dharma's guitar had a transcendental effect on the crowd.

But Dharma isn't featured nearly enough; instead we get more of the just plain rock 'n' roll, with unim-pressive drum solos, blaring, gut-level rhythm-guitar work and a pounding bass line. Plenty of noise.

'Westside Story' is given innovative LBCC staging

By Hal Lowe Staff Writer

College actors and singers are in training. A re-viewer or any other member of the audience should keep that in mind while watching "Westside Story," the current musical production at Long Beach City College.

The important question is whether the show is entertaining It is.

Since it is, in essence,
"Romeo and Juliet" in a contemporary New York setting, "Westside Story" is at best a difficult production to stage. The students under the direction of Shashin Desai, head of the theater arts department, carry the production off well.

A unique feature of this performance is that the audience is seated on risers over the orchestra pit, placing them almost on stage. The effect is similar to theater in the round, where every facial expression of the perform-ers and every word they speak can be seen and

L.B. shoppers buying early for Christmas

By Bob Keefer Staff Writer

'Tis the month of Christmas and all through the Southland, consumers and retailers are winding up for the annual holiday sales spree that keeps store ledgers in the black.

Long Beach merchants generally anticipate the Christmas shopping season, which opened Monday for most Southland stores, will be one of the greenest ever, as consumers plunk down their cash and credit cards to make the holiday

There is, however, some disagreement on the timing of the retail rush.

"People are buying more and buying earlier this year than they have in the past," said Gary Somes, manager of Buffums department store at Broadway and Pine Avenue. "Business has been very good, all through November. It's up like 20 percent over last Somes said removing parking meters and making streets two-way in the downtown district have contributed to "a good, positive cli-mate for buying" in the area. A manager at the Long Beach

Broadway store, however, thinks the best is yet to come.

"We think it's going to be a good one," he said. "But we think, as it was last year, we won't see the big volume until just the week before Chistmas.'

The Broadway manager, who would not be identified because of "corporate policy," said many potential customers had spent a lot of money on homes and cars in the "Discretionary income past 'year. Discretionary income is rather limited," he said.

"Christmas is still a very good business month," he concluded.
"When I realize it's a week before Christmas and I haven't started my shopping yet, I run out and spend more than I really should. I think many customers are this way."

A check through several Long Beach shopping areas tended to confirm his more conservative view of the holiday rush.

Buffums' downtown store was nearly deserted a half hour before its 7 p.m. closing time. The store is oriented to a daytime shopping crowd, a manager explained.

The few shoppers who strolled through Marina Pacifica Shopping Village had no problem with park-ing, waiting in line or any of the other usual headaches of holiday shopping.

Many of them, in fact, weren't Christmas shopping.

"Mine's all done," said one woman, enjoying a quiet cup of coffee with her mother. "I give the kids money . . . They're grown into teen-agers — you can't buy them clothes."

North Long Beach resident Herman Jacobs was looking around, but said he couldn't quite muster up the holiday spirit just yet. "Give me a few more weeks," he

Jacobs said his gift shopping would be limited, though, to smaller, more inexpensive gifts this year than in the past.

Several other shoppers agreed with Jacob's approach, preferring to give more and cheaper presents to their friends and relatives. "I'm giving bric-a-brac and fun gifts," commented a young woman. "No clothes or anything like that."

Retailers, however, report clothing has not yet gone out of fashion, as sales in men's and women's departments continue to

"We're experiencing good business in menswear," said Jack Harris, manager of Robert's department store in Bixby Knolls. "We're salling let a growth shirts." selling lots of sports shirts.

Buffums manager Somes credited "a switch to women wear-ing dresses and skirts" with in-creases in the dress business, which he said "has been soft for a

A researcher at Security Pacific Bank in Los Angeles pre-dicted consumers would be most interested in "fun-type gifts" such as space toys, skate boards and video games.

Assistant Vice President Richard W. Ayer also projected a 5 percent gain over last year's Christmas shopping season, be-cause of employment gains that bave produced an increase in personal income.

Generally, though, retailers reported no surprising trends in consumer tastes for the holiday sea-

'There's nothing like the Pet Rock this year, nothing that ex-traordinary," said John Weiler, as-sistant manager at Buffums. "Peo-ple are getting down to basics."

Robbed jeweler is 'fed up' with L.B.

By Brad Altman Staff Writer

Window shoppers strolling by a tiny jewelry shop in downtown Long Beach might assume Owen & Son Jewelers has gone out of busi-

The showcase at 350 E. Broadway displays only a few wristwatch bands and the door is locked during regular business hours.

Co-owners Ted and Gary Owen started bolling the door last June 3, the day after a gumman entered and took 80 rings and watches valued at $7,700.

Since the robbery, the window display has been almost empty. Insurance covered only a third of the loss and the Owens can't afford to replace all stolen merchandise.

By early January the storefront will be vacant. This month the Owens are moving to a new business location in Garden Grove after six years in downtown Long Beach.

Ted explained why he, his wife, Vera, and their son Gary were pulling up stakes. In a letter to the Long Beach City Council he said:

I was robbed at gunpoint during the daylight hours, the cost of my business license doubled in price, numerous stores in my area that were clean and thriving have either gone out of business or moved to other locations."

City officials think the "Owens are giving up too soon. Two city employees contacted Ted, saying, "'Surry you're leaving,' that sort of thing," he recalls.

Despite the talk about a new downtown shopping mall and thebrighter future it promises to bring to the neighborhood, the Owens can't afford to wait for better

L.B. plant to fight asbestos citations

By Dennis McDougal

One of three Long Beach area firms cited under a tough new anticarcinogen law is appealing the state Division of Industrial Safety's citations, according to the firm's Asphalt Products Oil Corp. 2405 South St., will appeal a series of citations issued against it Sept. 23 by the state at a hearing scheduled for Jan. 6 at 9 a.m. in the industrial safety division's Long Beach offices at 230 E. Fourth St.

The company was fined $1,000 under a five-month-old state law that outlaws or severely restricts the industrial use of 18 cancer-caussubstances. Next year, the list will be expanded to include three more such substances, according to the State Department of Health.

IN THE case of Asphalt Products, the substance was asbestos. The aspestos concentration in the air at the plant was over six times higher than the allowable state standards, according to state Health Department research writer Pete Weisser. Asbestos is a proven cause of lung cancer, mesothelioma (an intestinal cancer) and a terminal lung ailment called asbestosis, Company President R.N. Brans said the company probably was in violation of some of the law's provinces.

sions "technically speaking," but not to either the degree noted in the citations nor to the level suggested by subsequent media publicity.

"It's like traveling down the freeway, and you can go 56 or 57 miles an hour and the Highway Patrol can pull you over and cite you for it, but you're only a mile or two over the limit," he said.

Brans said the company is aphad, at the time, installed special equipment that, he contends, met state standards. Since receiving the citations, the company has spent additional money on safety installations, he added.

ASPHALT Products has spent about $15,000 upgrading its plant to meet state standards, and the company only realizes about $100. 000 in profits annually, Brans said.

NOTRE DAME is safely in the Cotton Bowl, and with a victory over Texas the day after New Year's can win the national championship. So I think it's safe to tell you about Bill Arnold Sr. and his T-shirts.

Bill lives in Downey and works at the South Gate Post Office, but his heart is in South Bend, the home of the Fighting Irish. And that heart was bursting with joy the day Notre Dame whipped up on the Southern California Trojans. In fact Bill was so eestatic that his heart almost popped through his

Notre Dame T-shirt. Thank goodness, the T-shirt stayed unpopped. Bill needs it for the Cotton Bowl and next season and all the seasons after. He doesn't want to borrow a N.D. T-shirt from his two sons and daughter, who wouldn't give theirs up, for they're as dedicated to Irish football as their father.

Bill's wife thinks her husband and children are balmy, which is heresy coming from a Norwegian lady. Has she forgotten that it was a Norseman named Knute Rockne who led Notre Dame into the promised land of big-time college football? Surely, those halftime pep talks he gave, invoking the name of George Gipp — and every saint, angel and martyr he could muster—were more than smorgasbord.

And what about Rock's national championships, his Four Horsemen and Seven Mules? They've got to cut some ice with Mrs. Arnold.

Bill and I are going to have some missionary work if we're to get Mrs. Arnold in emotional shape for the Cotton Bowl. I can see that, plain as I saw what happened to the Trojans at South Bend some

To err is human, to win is Dan Devine. That's the way Bill Arnold and I view the situation. We're wearing our Notre Dame T-shirts Jan. 2, and we're not dressing for a wake.

Bill has more nerve than I. The Monday after the Irish polished off the Trojans he wore his N.D. T-shirt to the post office where he works. And not a hand was raised against him, to quote me sainted Irish grandmother, who went to her reward to the sight of a Notre Dame pennant tied to her bed post.

signt of a Notre Dame pennant lied to her bed post.

I have yet to wear a Notre Dame T-shirt to the office, nor to venture into Seal Beach after dark on St. Patrick's Day. A few years ago, however, the occasion of a Notre Dame defeat by Southern California (another in a long series) caused me to sport a black armband as I went about my newspaper duties on the black Manday after the cause event.

on the black Monday after the cruel event. But that was some years ago. Time heals all wounds. Besides, that black armband has now been dyed green, to match the color of the few Treasury notes I'm placing in behalf of the Irish against Texas.

I recognize that I may be one of a few lonely shamrocks blooming in a field of Trojan legions, but I must confess where my loyalties lie. My politics may be search but my allariance to Notre Dema is one. be secret, but my allegiance to Notre Dame is open for the world's inspection. Like Horatius at the bridge, Bill Arnold of Downey and F.C. Anderson of Long Beach stand ready for the assault of the Texas Longhorns. Our T-shirts are ready to drip sweat for the cause. Tis only justice we seek — plus a national championship. If we're lost in the effort, then I'll bequeath all the blarney I own — and that's quite a bundle — to the USC Trojans.

My shillelagh and hoard of Irish coffee is to be willed to the Irish who come after me. Most Irish who have come after me have bricks in their hands. And mortar, Loo, to better cement relations.

I cotton to the idea of the Cotton Bowl, a cotton candy dream for the sons of Notre Dame. What cotton is left over we'll use to knit a gross of Irish T-shirts for the likes of Bill Arnold and me. Should we be able to enlist the skeptical Mrs. Arnold as a Notre Dame rooter, there'll be a T-shirt for her, too.

HAPPY NOTES: I was treated to some special notes by Solon Hinshaw while I was in the hospital. They were baritone notes and issued from the concert staged for me at Memorial by Solon, Herb Zimmerman, Ken Dodge and Norm Rogers, members of the Long Beach chapter of the Society for the Preserva-tion and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

But Solon delivered the best note of all when he told me that SPESQSA has a purpose more serious than the musical education of an ailing columnist. Since 1941 the organization's national project has been the Institute of Logopedics, Wichita, Kans., which treats children whossuffer speech and hearing handicaps.

Through the years the 35,000 barbershoppers have contributed more than $2 million to the Institute. That, friends, is something to sing about.

The gift of Hanukkah

Since biblical days, the history of the Jawish people has been one of struggle, of battles - often unnsuccessful — to preserve a people, of uprisings against conquerors to retain freedom of religion and civil liberties.

More than 2,000 years ago, under Antiochus Epiphanes, the powerful Syrian Empire had spread over the Middle East with extermination of all vestiges of Judaism as its goal.

Thousands were slain. Scripture scrolls were burned. Circumcision and observance of the Sabbath were forbidden. All over Israel, pagan altars were erected and villagers were forced to bow low to the new "gods."

ONE DAY A Syrian envoy compelling Jews to kneel before a pagan altar was attacked and killed by the Maccabees — a lather and five sons. The family fled to the hills, where the father died. The sons, led by Judah the Maccabee, carried on the fight.
Their three-year struggle marked the first successful use of guerrilla tactics. In the final batthe in 165 B.C., a Judean army of only 3,000 routed the Syrian force of 47,000.

The Temple in Jerusalem, which Antiochus had stripped of all religious symbols, was cleansed and rededicated. After his return to Jerusalem, Judah the Maccabee relit the eternal flame in the Temple. The ceremony required a special sacred oil and there was only enough for one day. Somehow, the flame burned for eight days.

Ever since, Jews have celebrated eight days of Hanukkah. Its distinguishing ceremony is the lighting of the Menorah, the traditional candelabrum. One candle is lighted each night until eight tapers burn on the final night.

Hanukkah begins at sundown this evening, and temples throughout the area will conduct services.

FROM NOON UNTIL 3:30 p.m. today, the Long Beach Jewish Community Center, 2601 Grand Ave., will hold a "Family Hanuk-kah Happening," at which members of all faiths are welcome.

There will be music, folk dancing and workshops in which gifts can be made either for Hanukkah or Christmas, and a display of original pottery and crafts. A songfest and candle-lighting ceremony will be held at 2:15 p.m.

Hanukkah is a samily time, with the giving of gifts to children. But the great gift of Hanukkah was the determination of the handful of the faithful more than 2,000 years ago not to succumb to tyranny, and their successful defense of religious freedom.

Who runs schools?

Local school boards may soon become obsolete, according to the California School Boards Association (CSBA), a voluntary association of locally elected school offi-

The CBSA is concerned that responsibilities of locally elected school trustees are being usurped by-state and federal governments through mandated programs and policies, and by legislation which gives increased power to employee organizations.

There are mandates on curriculum; on how much money a local board can raise and spend, on the question of teacher tenure. There also is an imbalance between school boards and school employee organizations in the matter of affecting state legislation.

Because school boards operate with public funds, they cannot get into legislative lobbying to the degree that employee organizations can, nor can they contribute to election campaigns of legislators or legislative candidates. We are outnumbered and outfinanced, outgunned in every way." said Jack Germain, the CSBA's legislative consultant.

These factors have a cumulative impact on the ability of locally elected school officials to make effective decisions on what goes on in the classroom, what the students are being taught.

As the powers of local school boards are diminished, the public becomes less concerned about the selection of board members. It is this situation that leads the CSBA to speculate darkly about the future of local school boards.

If a poll were taken and California voters were asked whether they want to retain local control over their schools, we are confident the response would be an overwhelming "yes." Yet, state legislation continues to be adopted which moves in the exact opposite direction.

The average voter believes the men and women elected to local school boards are important to the quality of education being given students. Unfortunately, this is becoming less and less true.

The trend away from local control must be halted before our schools are run by Sacramento and possibly by employee organizations given too much power by state legislators.

They're beating the drought

Let's hear it for Californians!

WASHINGTON - California and Californians are trend setters. But the state and its people are not getting credit for one tremendous accomplishment.

The state — despite some helpful rains — is still in the midst of an historic drought. The drought is such that California's cities should be dying. They aren't.
Industries should be closing down.

Agriculture should be desperate. It isn't. Instead, in some areas, record crops are being produced.

People should be fleeing. They are staying. Consider the blows nature has thrown at the state.

The 1976-77 water season, which ended Sept. 30, was the driest year of record in California. The drought started in November of 1975, and as a result of the runoff from the snowpack was only 20 to 30 percent of normal. By the end of the water year statewide reservoir storage was down to 37 percent of normal.

Judging from graphs and figures showing past water use, and the amount of water now available, the state should have

Carter team makes U.S. look 'bush'

These are times of acute embarrass-ment for some of the old professionals of the press who work their beats on Embassy Row. First in the Middle East, then in Rhodesia, important events have passed them by. In the eyes of the world, the United States has been made to look, in the scornful word: bush.

The metaphor comes out of baseball. You have the major leagues, the minor leagues, and the bush leagues. On the playing fields of diplomacy, the same rules apply. Some leaders have class, some don't. The painful impression becomes more vivid with every passing month: The

James J. Kilpatrick

Carter team is little more than a bunch of thumb-fingered sandlotters who couldn't hit their way out of a wet paper bag. No wonder the old timers are wincing. Let me speak especially to the matter of Rhodesia. Before I visited Rhodesia for the first time, 10 years ago, I read great stacks of books on Africa — history, biography, treatises on tribal customs and tongues. When I set foot in Salisbury, I truly believed I knew something of Africa. What I began to discover was the danth of What I began to discover was the depth of my ignorance.

A second visit enlarged upon the first.

A third unveiled areas of uncomprehension barely sketched before. After a decade of trying to master something of Africa, I am still in the sub-basement of learning, and not even at the threshold. Old China hands tell me that not even the inscrutable Orient presents difficulties more complex than those of the dark continent.

ENTER NOW Jimmy Carter of Georgia, accompanied by those eminent states-men, Fritz Mondale and Andrew Young. The three of them swaggered into African affairs like three bush-league rubes on a beat-up bus. They had the help of Senator Dick Clark, the senior ignoramus from Iowa. Mr. Mondale brayed about "one man, one vote." Ambassador Flapjaw traveled about the continent, regaling his hosts with tales of how he worked things out in Alabama; and the ambassador did not understand why his hosts gave him such peculiar looks.

In the matter of Rhodesia, Ambassador Young had a great idea. It came to him in the middle of the night. This was his idea: The Ian Smith government in Salisbury would surrender wholesale, in a kind of abject capitulation, to an exiled gang of terrorists, looters, arsonists, and plain opportunists led by Joshua Nkomo, an old Marxist hand whose principal qualification for high office is his total contempt for the democratic process. The ambassador pressed this marvelous idea upon Messrs. Carter and Mondale, and they were captivated by it.

The British, who are rather more concerned with Rhodesian affairs than Mr. Carter could possibly be, regarded Mr. Young's stroke of brilliance with public equanimity and private consternation. Some subtle diplomacy, involving Rhode-sian elections among other matters, continued between London and Salisbury. Certain overtures were made to the Rev. Ndabaninghi Sithole, a key figure in all this. Other moves were made toward Bishop Abel Muzorewa, to see if he and Sithole might be brought together.

WEEKS OF CAREFUL maneuvering led to Ian Smith's statement of Nov. 24, saying that his government is now prepared "to accept the principle of majority rule, based on adult suffrage." The British promptly responded with modest encouragement. Conferences already have begun among the principals. Maybe events will move forward.

I say "maybe" out of a sure sense of ignorance. Smith's principle of majority rule may not be the same principle that Sithole and Muzorewa have in mind. Ten thousand details will have to be worked out. But if, six months or a year from now, a transition of power takes place that pre-serves white capital, know-how, influence and safety, Rhodesia will have provided a model for a prosperous multi-racial Africa.

The important thing is for Mr. Carler to keep his clumsy hands off the ball. Africa is the bush country, but it is no place for bush leaguers.

After all, great hunks of California naturally are either deserts or semi-arid areas. And the people have flowed to areas where there is little water, requiring the construction of the most elaborate set of Twenty-one million people, and their attendant activities, require a lot of water. For two years nature hasn't provided that

So who saved the people of California?

They did the job themselves.
The city of Los Angeles mandated a 10 percent cut in the use of water. During the four hottest months of the year, the citizens of that city averaged almost a 20 percent reduction in water use. In the Monterey area, desperately short of water, the people saved 51 percent. In the East San Francisco Bay area, the reduction in consumption was 44 percent.

And in the Paradise Irrigation District of remote Butte Couny, water use has been reduced by 63 percent.

There has been damage. Salt water still threatens the fertile Sacramento-San Joaquin delta. Underground pumping of water in the rich Santa Clara and Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys is causing subsidence. And the very existence of some of those underground water basins is being threatened by the desperate pump-

Skeptics, not cynics should cover governor

SACRAMENTO — Jerry Brown says and does many things, and because he is California's governor and a potential presi-dent just about everything he says and does is considered of public interest.

It is entirely appropriate that reporters view each of those things separately and cumulatively with skepticism. Reporters are paid to be skeptical, to say "You may very well be correct, but show me."

There is a difference, however, be-tween being a skeptic and being a cynic. And more and more of the press' coverage of Jerry Brown seems to be tinged with cynicism.

The skeptic doubts. He asks if what he is seeing is all there is to see. The cynic doesn't doubt, he knows "What I'm seeing," he says with certainty, "is not what's really there.

really there. And what's really there, he also knows, is ugly and bad. He is of the conviction, Ambrose Bierce wrote that there is "nothing good on earth." The reporter-skeptic observes what

Jerry Brown does, hears what he says, and inquires into motives, accuracy, adequacy, style, whatever. The reporter-cynic asks, What can I ding Jerry Brown with today?"
There just seems to be more and more of the latter kind of story appearing. One reporter did a long piece which unsubtly invited the reader to conclude that Jerry Brown doesn't really care about getting rid of smog in Los Angeles, that he's ordered the imposition of extremely high air quality standards so refineries in the area won't be able to burn high-sulphur, highpolluting California and Alaskan oil unless they invest in highly expensive retrofitting. Or import low-sulphur, low-pollutig Indonesian oil so Jerry Brown's father, who owns a chunk of the importing company, can get

The story makes not one suggestion that the governor took any action which he would not have taken bad his father not had the investment. It makes no suggestion of impropriety. Clearly, an impropriety was suspected, investigated, but not confirmed.

But the story ran anyway.

More recently, a number of women appointees to high state government posi-tions were asked by another reporter to give comment on the governor's attitude toward women and causes important to women. The consensus of those whose comments were quoted was that Jerry Brown was a male chauvinist at heart because he didn't consult with women, didn't relate to them.

The fact that most of the women probably wouldn't have been in those jobs had any other person been governor somehow was obscured in the rush to join the Put-

Down-Jerry Brown Club. The same reporter who wrote the story about the Brown family's investment in Indonesian oil wrote another piece detail-ing how the governor had embarrassed himself by careless treatment of the unitary tax issue. It said the governor flip-flopped on the issue and it said the governor had tried to shift the blame to someone else, and it supported the criticism. The shallowness of the Indonesian oil story, however, makes one wonder if the apparent depth of the unitary tax story was deceptive The point is, there is much to criticize about Jerry Brown's performance as governor. He has rid his office of much of its foolish ritual, and that is good. And he has brought in new people, and hence, new ideas, into government, and in the long run that is going to be one of his major accom-

There are other efforts for which he deserves praise.

The state's uncertainty about a highway policy is an executive branch deficiency. That's the governor.

There are more. Problems should be examined, and if the governor is contributing to the problems instead of mitigating them, it should be so reported.

But the reporter-skeptic's story about a Jerry Brown-related problem is less likely to produce the public reaction needed to apply pressure for a solution if the public has been subjected to a flood of "What can I ding Jerry Brown with today?" stories by reporter-cynics.

Navajos see parallel with OPEC on energy

by Tom Arrandale

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. - The Navajo people once lost this vivid, rugged homeland. Colonel Kit Carson's cavalry pillaged their crops and livestock and forced the Navajo to make a painful "Long Walk" in 1864 to a wretched four-year exile at Fort Sumner, N.M.

An 1868 treaty returned the Navajo to a reservation in their ancestral lands. Now, a century later, the valuable mineral riches beneath these lands are coveted by an energy-hungry nation.

The Navajo are trying to set their own terms for energy development, not trusting lederal or state governments to protect Indian economic and cultural interests. They joined other resource-rich tribes to form a Council of Energy Resources Tribes (CERT) that has begun consulting with foreign oil-producing nations.

"THERE WILL be no more cheap energy given away by the Indian nations until we can find a way of living together as neighbors with fairness and equity," declares Peter MacDonald, Navajo Tribal Council chairman.

Indian lands hold 12 percent of the nation's coal and as much as 55 percent of its uranium reserves, according to federal estimates. Tribal leaders contend existing contracts negotiated under Bureau of Indian Affairs guidance lock Indians into selling increasingly valuable resources at below-market prices.

The nation's largest tribe, the Navaio have also perhaps the most at stake in energy resource development. Their 15million-acre reservation, sprawled across the Colorado Plateau in New Mexico, Arizona and Utah, contains vast coal, uranium, oil and gas deposits. Mineral contracts produce more than $24 million a year for the tribe, but poverty, disease and unemployment still mar Navajo life.

Tribal leaders see a parallel between their position and that of Arab oil-producing nations before the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) began forcing world crude prices upward. They want technical assistance — from OPEC if not from the federal government — to bring in more money and build tribal — to bring in more money and build tribal self-sufficiency before the natural, resources are exhausted

Indian leaders acknowledge, however. their future energy development will inevitably be shaped by U.S. policies and

"We understand our resources may be needed for national survival and for the survival of our way of life — your way, my way, our way," MacDonald recently told a federal energy conference.

Seniors see extended working life as a civil right

by Nona Baldwin Brown

WASHINGTON - "To live is to work," The old aphorism, the credo by which Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes explained why he remained on the Supreme Court at age 90, the philosophic underpinning for 'American work ethic, has suddenly become a political slogan for the nation's older citizens.

With it, they have embarked on a fight to eliminate mandatory retirement for age from gainful employment as an immutable climax to productive years. In the process, they have raised farreaching constitutional and economic questions: Is an extended working life a civil right? A personal necessity? Or, very possibly, an economic necessity for the nation? Politics and demographics may soon forge answers to these questions.

CONGRESS, WHICH normally recoils from sharp changes in existing programs, moved with unexpected speed this year to raise from 65 to 70 the age most workers can be compelled to retire. In less than five months from its final formulation in the House in June, both chambers over-whelmingly approved legislation to effect this change.

The bills differed in some major respects, but both versions agree in amending the Age Discrimination and Employment Act of 1967, which established legal protection against discriminatory employment practices for people of ages 40 through 64. The new legislation, moving that upper limit to 70, is now in House-Senate conference to work out differences. Final approval may not be forthcoming until early next year.

The widely accepted argument for raising the mandatory retirement age — and eventually eliminating it — was stated by the House Committee on Education and Labor in these terms: "Increasingly it is being recognized that mandatory retirement based solely upon age is arbitrary and that chronological age alone is a poor indicator of ability to perform a job."

The report also noted that it would reconsider the idea of total abandonment of any age for compulsory retirement in two years, after receiving a report from the Department of Labor of the impact on the labor force of the age-70 limit.

From the outset, the measure was strongly supported by the "gray-power" lobby, organized forces of elderly Americans who feel strongly that "ageism" is as discriminatory as sexism or racism. With 23 million potential voters in the over-65 age group; Congress was understandably sensitive to these arguments.

Opposition led by business and educaopposition led by business and emea-tional groups lobbied intensively in the Sonate, basing their stand on fear that later retirement would block employment and promotion opportunities for younger people. They gained some exceptions, but could not stop the basic change.

THE MODERN history of mandatory retirement and the use of age 65 as the magic number are traced to Germany's Iron Chancellor, Otto von Bismark, who instituted the modern world's first comprehensive social insurance system as an antisocialism move in 1889. He picked 65 as the year when old age began; in many countries and for a variety of reasons, this age has since become the traditional one for public old-age pension systems and for many private ones

In the United States, when the Depression led to the Social Security Act of 1935, age 65 again was picked. After World War II, this age became the touchstone for many union-negotiated industrial pension plans which included the element of mandatory age retirement in exchange for improved pension benefits. It is estimated that at least 8.5 million workers are now affected Much has changed in the working population since Bismark's day, when life expectancy was about 45 years. Today, it is 68.7 years for male babies, 76.5 years for females — and for those who do reach 65, men can expect to live 13.2 years longer, women 17.5 years longer.

More than 10 percent of the population is 65 or older today and this proportion could rise as high as 19.2 percent by the year 2025, according to Census Bureau

At the same time, the proportion of children and teenagers is shrinking. This could mean, experts believe, that within 50 years, there may be only one worker paying into the Social Security system for each retired beneficiary, a condition which would be both financially and politically; untenable.

In 1974, Social Security found that 72 percent. of its new recipients were under 65. This trend, which has thrown such a heavy financial burden on the Social-Security system, seems to run counter to the agitation for removing age barriers to work beyond 65. Spokesmen for the elderly, say they simply want the "right" to work later. Demographers and social scientists like Peter Drucker are saying, however, that in another 50 years, extended working years may be an economic necessity.

Mopeds on bike paths

Mopeds have been increasing in popularity over the last few years. Therefore, today we find almost as many mopeds as bicycles on our city streets. What I would like to know is why mopeds aren't allowed on bicycle paths.

I think mopeds should be allowed on bike paths with the bikes simply because of their close similarities. They both are light-weight, both have pedals and are operated under the same rules and regulations. The only exception I could find is that a valid driver's permit or license is required to operate a moped in California; the reason for this being a moped has a small motor which can be used as an option rather than using the pedals

Most mopeds using the motor can move no faster than you could pedal a bicycle anyway.

Safety is the main reason I feel mopeds should be allowed on bicycle paths . First bicycle accidents started to increase be-cause both motorists and bicyclists were getting careless on city streets, so they constructed bike paths to keep a lot of the bikes off the streets. Today the accident situation is happening involving mopeds, so you can see the need for safety is once again entering into the picture.

Mopeds are a lun and inexpensive way of transportation, but like the bicycle, its rate of accidents and deaths is increasing. I'm sure there are many other people who feel the same way I do, whether it be for the same reasons I have stated or for some reason of their own. I definitely feel mopeds should be allowed on bicycle paths, which brings me back to my original nuestion. Why aren't mopeds allowed on bicycle paths?

Losing an ally

If our government's dismal record of making what they would have us believe are nothing more than "honest mistakes" in foreign policy in the past is any criterion of what we can expect in the future, then it is a safe bet that within a few years the pro-western government of the Union of South Africa will be overthrown with our of South Africa will be overthrown with our government aiding, abetting, encouraging and indirectly financing that overthrow. It would then, of course, be replaced by some sort of "people's republic" headed by a dictator of the same ilk as Idi Amin and with the same sort of Marxist Idi-ology (if you can pardon an Idi-otic pun on so grisly first because the Union of South Africa is the last strong pro-western, anti-Communist government remaining in Africa and secondly, because half of the world's gold comes from the mines of South Africa.

One can predict this for two reasons:

With the establishment of a "people's republic" that gold would then come under the control of the Communist bloc nations.' You know this, I know it, our U.N. ambas-sador, Andrew Young, must know it. Does anyonw actually believe our government doesn't know it?

And, under a white hating, racist "pcople's republic" any white people who have not gotten out of South Africa in time will find themselves in as dangerous a position as the Jews found themselves in when Hitler's "National Socialist Party" took over in Germany.

"On Nov. 18 you carried a front page Associated Press article headlined 'Smokeout called a huge success.' It said 38.7 percent of the state's smokers quit for the

and does not claim to be. In its reportage of the Great American Smokeout it merely served as a conduit for the statistics supplied by the American Cancer Society.

The ACS figures were arrived at through random samplings by telephone and projected in the manner employed by the Gallup, Field and Roper polls, etc. The method isn't foolproof but it has an uncanny record in predicting election re-

Even if the poll was off by a percentage point the results show the ACS is wearing an impressive number of smokers away from the vile habit. I think the integrity of the ACS is the best verification we have for the statistics gleaned in the Great American Smokeout.

In downtown Long Beach, the Owens rarely sell anything. Ninety percent of their income comes from repairing watches for large jewelry stores.

"It's the only way you can survive in Long Beach," Ted says of his trade work. "But it's sales we want to go after.

"The people who live around here just don't buy," adds Ted, a mid-50ish man who brought his family to California from England 15 years ago.

"Once I opened the back door and a wino fell in," says Gary, 24, a clock repair specialist. The other day Ted was startled to see a man using their alley water tap to wash himself.

(Police told the Owens that a man was arrested and convicted in connection with the robbery and is now in prison.)

A doughnut establishment is on one side of Owen & Son Jewelers. Toward Long Beach Boulevard is a used-book store, steam bath-massage parlor, meat market and food-stamp cashing business. Viola McDonald, who owns Rodden's Bookstore next door, is sympathetic to the Owens' problems.

"A lot of elderly people down here are on fixed incomes," the gray-haired woman says firmly. "They're not going ta buy jewelry."

A Long Beach school-bus driver for 21 years, Mrs. McDonald says the corner food-stamp business brings her custom-

"I once was robbed," she volunteers.
"I lost $50." Mrs. McDonald sighs wistfully. "I fig-ure, well, it comes with the times."

First District City Councilman Don

"You do a story on the fact that Mr. Owen is going to Garden Grove and not the fact that (developer Ernest) Hahn is hanging his reputation, with $187 million on the drawing board, to improve downtown Long Beach. The councilman continues, "Mr Owen's location is not the location to put a jewelry store. He should be on Pine Avenue where all the foot traffic is."

(The Yellow Pages lists 25 retail jewelry stores in downtown Long Beach, a dozen of them on Pine Avenue.)

Phillips adds: "I regret losing Mr.
Owen to Garden Grove. He does not see the future for downtown Long Beach which I see.

"As a small businessman, I recognize the gentleman's problems. These are pretty tough times, but we only have one direction to go — up."

Flight aid easing airspace snarls

A 30-cent cardboard flight aid available free to instrument-rated pilots may be the greatest boon to Southland flyers and air traffic controllers since the invention of radar.

The slipstick device shows at a glance designated routes and other information required for filing flight plans between 37 Southern California airports. It is designed to reduce the workload of both pilots and Federal Avialion Administration flight service personnel operating in the world's most crowded airspace.

Starting this week it also will cut down on radio message congestion between pilots and Hight service personnel in conservice personner in con-trol towers. With both working off the handy clearance information guide, flight plan filing can be condensed to a fraction of the time previously required.

The flight aid was devised by air traffic controllers and flight service specialists of the FAA's Western Region. Although it is useful as far south as San Diego, its basic pur-pose is to reduce departure delays and ease congestion in the Los Angeles-Orange counties basin, which includes five of the world's 10 busiest airports.

Long Beach Airport, which has been in the top 10 since 1963, ranked fourth in 1976 with 551,518 flight operations. Orange County Airport, with 627,-199 aircraft movements, was second only to Chica-go's O'Hare, the world's most active air center. Van Nuys, Los Angeles International and Torrance were third, sixth and eighth, respectively, adding a total of 1,540,410 takeoffs and landings.

The So-Cal Terminal Routes program went into effect Dec. 1. It is a first for the FAA, since it was tailored specifically for the unique local air congestion conditions.

"We're blazing a trail," explained James W. Lebman, chief of the Long Beach air traffic control tower. "So far it has been very well received by the pilots who are using it. We like it because of the way it speeds up operations."

He pointed out that the pocket-sized slipcard is easy to use, giving all the flight plan information on one line as a pointer in a vertical opening on the face of the card is lined up from the point of depar-ture to the destination.

The information slot at the bottom gives the proper route identification, clearance data, the expected altitude and whether or not jet aircraft are authorized on the route. Instead of repeating all this to the control tower, the pilot merely radios the number of his requested So-Cal route.

The controller then issues a clearance as filed, adding any instructions which differ from those on the printed card because of weather conditions.

"We're very enthusiastic about the program," said Lehman. "Anything that helps the pilot and the system is bound to be an

Winkler, Dornan head NOSI, new anti-canal treaty group

By Bob Houser Political Editor

Retired Air Force Maj. Ralph E. Winkler, Los Alamitos, has been elected national chairman of Not One Square Inch (NOSI), an association opposing the Panama Canal treaty.

Rep Robert K. Dornan, R-Los Angeles, was chosen honorary national chairman in a vote of the 47 persons who attended the group's organizing meeting last week in the American Legion Hall, Los Alamitos.

Organizers also adopted a constitution detailing their opposition to the treaty and asserting they will seek their objective primarily through petitions to U.S. senators.

What's Your Problem?

Free marketplace can impose severe hardship on renters

It's a free country, but there are times when the freedom — at least in the marketplace — can impose hardships for which there is no real relief.

Q. I have recently received two rent increases from my owner/ an increase can become effective with a 60-day notice.

My question is: Does the city or the amount of increases given to tenants? I have asked for figures showing the need for these in-creases, but the owner/landlord has refused to submit any justification for them. - H.W.A., Cincinnati

A. Except in a few areas where some of the old World War II rent controls have yet to be taken off the books, the rental market is very much a supply/demand situation. I know of no city or state that imposes the kind of rules or regulations that you mention (except, as I said in those hold over pockets of rent controls).

Whether your landlord's in-creases are justified is pretty much between him and his conscience. We know, of course, that all expenses associated with property ownership HAVE gone up — taxes, fuel; maintenance and what-not: I think it's poor public relations on his part in NOT giving you an explanation and, if he is too much out of line with his rent hikes, his vacancy problem is going to ac-

Q. I was interested in your recent column regarding real estate licensing examination. I am aware of one 19-year-old applicant, who after completing courses in real estate law and principles of real estate at an accredited college and a preparatory course at a county board of Realtors, flunked his salesman's examination.

Being a determined young man, he spent the summer studying at an independent real estate school operated by a college professor.

Although this fellow thought the second examination was not at all difficult and was confident he had passed, the grades were not appreciably higher than on his first. You inferred that it is not difficult to pass the examination and "except for a very few states, licensing examinations require not even the equivalent of a high school diploma." Do you rank Ohio among 'very few states"? - F.V.E., Mi⁴dletown

A. Since I haven't written on this subject for a long time, you've apparently got me mixed up with someone else. But that isn't really the point. Most states, of course, empower their board of real estate commissioners to license salesmen, conduct the examinations and then to police the business. The severity and/or ease of the examinations varies all over the landscape, and without comparing Ohio's against

Less than two months after its suc-cessful grand opening in Lakewood, C. Robert Langslet & Son Inc.'s Lakewood Shores is virtually sold out in Phase I of construction. The highly popular water-oriented community has a very few luxury lakeside homes available for sale in Phase I, with prices still at the 1977 level beginning at $62,900. Michael Engle Langslet vice presi dent points out that those who purchase their homes now will save considerably as compared to later, given the inevitable price increases in 1978. "We fully anticipate that the entire community will be 100 per cent sold out during the first quarter of 1978," Engle said. He added that the few homes re-

Q. My neighborhood is deterio-rating very fast and the security in rating very fast and the security in my apartment building is nill. I have been after the landlord to install peepholes and safety chains, but he refuses. Wouldn't he be legally responsible if anything happened? — Miss R.F., Allentown

A. Unfortunately, if the neighborhood is getting THAT rough, it might be a moot point if something does happen. If I were you I wouldn't quibble about it, but simply have the necessary hardware installed at my own expense. His argument, undoubtly is that the security measure are "adequate." How can you argue to the contrary until after the fact?

Q. I've been renting an apart-ment of $280 a month and recently got a roommate in order to cut expenses. So, the landlord raises the rent $40! Can he get away with that? F.F.P., San Diego

A. Ask him if he would have raised the rent if you had brought home a wife, instead. If you have a lease, and if no such dualoccupancy-increase is spelled out, then he's in violation. Why! not

By Kathy Cairns Staff Writer

Each Saturday morning, between September and March, more than 1,400 Long Beach youngsters, clad in baggy white shorts, colorful jerseys, cleats and shin guards, spend an hour running up and down large, grassy fields in pursuit of a small, speckled ball.

They are playing soccer.

Soccer — the sport followed avidly, almost obsessively, by sports fans in many parts of the world, the sport which has caused near-riots and death among fans and has yielded the world's highest paid athlete (Pele, formerly of the New York Cosmos), is now catching on in California, particularly among the

Four years ago, when a handful of soccer afficionados joined forces to start a youth soccer program in Long Beach, only a couple of dozen boys

This year in Long Beach there are 98 teams — 78 for boys and 20 for girls. They operate under the auspices of the American Youth Soccer League (AYSO), a non-profit, nationwide group which encourages the participation of all youngsters, no matter what their level

Unlike many other sports in Which only the best players get the chance to compete, all youngsters playing soccer for AYSO get to play, at least half a

And, according to team organizers, the growth in girls' soccer more than matches the growth in boys' teams.

"Two years ago, when we started recruiting girls to play," says Maureen Rule, girls' commissioner, "we had only four teams and their age spread was ragged - each team had girls from 8 to 14. Now we have more than 350 girls on teams, divided by ages from 6 to 17. The kids have a terrific time. We even had to turn away kids in the younger

THE RULES have five children, all soccer players, ranging in age from 10 to 17. Before moving to Long Beach four years ago, they lived in Torrance which "hotbed of soccer activity. All the kids wanted to play here, but the only organization we could find which sponorganization we could find which spon-sored soccer activity was the Pacific Coast League, which we found to be selective. Only the best kids got to play. "In our experience, you can't expect superstars right away, you have to teach the kids to play."

teach the kids to play."

Among the benefits listed by soccer buffs are increasing coordination, physieal stamina, greater assertiveness and, particularly for girls, practice in competition - learning how to win and lose gracefully.

"One of the beauties of the sport," says Mrs. Rule, "is that girls can compete as easily as boys. There is equality in equipment and training and parents are in it for their kids.

"One of our success stories hap-pened while we were still in Torrance. We had a physician with three little boys who wanted his kids to play, but one of them was handicapped. The doctor wanted this boy to play alongside his brothers.

"We told him we would be happy to have his son on our team. During the season he improved so much in coordination and self-confidence, it was remarkable. It was tremendously re-warding for us."

ACCORDING TO some experts, soccer is the fastest-growing sport in the America. When AYSO started in the south bay area in 1964, according to Dr. Warren Stevenson, a volunteer soccer coach in Palos Verdes and assistant

A relatively new drug called clonidine may help solve one of the big problems in the treatment of high blood pressure.

The problem: noncompliance, to use the medical term. In plain English it means refusing to take a medication as prescribed for one reason or another.

With many blood pressure drugs, the reason for noncompliance is that the medication makes the patient feel bad. So the patient quits taking it and feels better. But his blood pressure rises even though there may be no symptoms.

Clonidine, however, gives the patient a "good sense of well-heing," says Dr. Ray H. Rosenman, a San Francisco physician who spoke to doctors at Long Beach Community Hospital

"Clonidine, if used properly, is almost free of side effects," says Dr. Rosenman.

Dr. Rosenman is associate director of the Harold Brunn Institute of Cardiovascular Research at Mount Zion Hospital. He's widely known as one of the leading authorities on the Type A coronary personal-

Clonidine is also known as Catapres. Another useful drug contains Catapres in combination with chlorthalidone, a diuretic drug. (Diuretics are helpful in the treatment of high blood pressure.) The combination compound is known as Combipres

DR. ROSENMAN says only one pill a day is necessary with clonidine. There may be sleepiness and dry mouth but these will diminish after a few weeks or the patient will learn to tolerate these

Dr. Rosenman says there's little doubt that salt plays a major role in the causation of essential hypertension (high blood pressure in which the cause is not known). He notes there are at least 15 tribes in the world where high blood pressure is absent. Studies show there is only a small sodium (salt) intake.

Basically, treatment should include salt reduction in the diet and use of a diuretic to release salt and water from the body, he says. Hypertension accelerates the development of artery-clogging deposits of atherosclerosis. And it substantially increases the risk of heart attacks,

It is the most common of the diseases affecting the heart and blood vessels. High blood pressure may affect as many as 22 million persons in the United

Q: How true is it that Roddy Llewellyn, Princess Margaret's boyfriend, recently had a nervous breakdown? If so, why?

A: According to Llewellyn's friends, the one-time hippie suffered a nervous breakdown in 1974, when Margaret was on the Caribbean island of Mustique, making a last-ditch effort to patch up her marriage to Lord Snowdon.

Llewellyn was on the nearby island of Barbados, and as a practical joke, a friend told him that the Princess wanted to see him. Roddy hurried over to Mustique just as Margaret was leaving for England. Her welcome was icy, and a crestfallen Llewel-

A: Arab millionaire Bhatia Karani has just taken possession of a $146,125 goldplated, velvet-upholstered, dual air-conditioned car made for him by Rolls-Royce. The Phantom VI Landaulette is green with a white roof and $6,800 worth of gold plating, including a Flying Lady hood ornament with its own burglar alarm.

Q: Why doesn't Oscar de la Renta design clothes for the true American woman instead of for those anemic-looking types?

A: The designer replies with some disain: "Once, a lady about size 96 asked me why I didn't design for fat ladies. I answered — she had been very rude, you understand — "Madam, I am not in the upholstery business.'

Q: Is it true that Lady Antonio Fraser and Harold Pinter are ending their famous affair?

A: No way, says the Lady, who claims she long ago quit worrying about "her friends, the dirty press ... Harold and I have lived together for two years," she huffs, "we live together very happily, and there is no more to be said. There has never been an ounce of truth in the rumor that we have split up."

Incidentally, Lady Antonia's best-seller, "Quiet As A Nun," is currently being made into a television series.

Q: Please settle an argument. Which U.S. cities have the biggest Jewish populations?

A: According to estimates of the Jewish Federations, New York City is still an easy No. 1, with nearly 2 million Jewish residents, followed by Los Angeles (455,-000), Philadelphia (350,000), Chicago (253,-000) and Miami (225,000).

Q: Whatever became of that old man who was paroled a year ago after serving the longest prison stretch in history?

A: Johnson Van Dyke Grigsby, 92, who spent 68 years behind bars, lives a spartan existence in a small Indianapolis apartment, and that's the way he wants it. Although neighbors brought him furniture and pictures for the walls, he insisted they take them away. He has a bed, a battered dresser, a huge color TV given to him by Johnny Cash and two plastic bread wrappers hanging on the wall. Maybe it reminds him of his former home . .

The sunny, sweet-tempered, talkative gal who signs for room service chicken salad and iced tea writes "Mrs. Neil Simon" on the check. The waiter looks puzzled, shrugs, and leaves. Even the staff is convinced no movie star is staying here. "I was Marsha Mason four years ago," says the girl who made headlines when she married the world's funniest playwright. "But I've been Mrs. Neil Simon ever since. He is the star in the family and the rest of it is unimportant to me. There are reasons why I don't do interviews. There hasn't been a lot I've done that people have been interested in. Mine is not one of those across-the board success stories. Also, people never seem to remember me from one film to Meil Simon says she spends three hours in front of a mirror making herself look homely. She has no idea how attractive she is. Marsha laughs. "Streisand has an extremely clear image of herself. Such a thing just never occurred to me. When I step in front of a camera, whatever comes out that day is what you get. I have no image. And I like it. To be a Streisand, or a Jack Nicholson, or a Robert Redford - to have that kind of mass appeal - I couldn't cope with

Despite the chaos and the jumbled never-never-land values of a plastic world like Hollywood, she is adamant about one thing: "I want a career that is interesting and fulfilling, yet at the same time we have a private life that is normal. We have a cardinal rule. We don't do any interviews at home. We tried it once and the writer printed a story about our neighbor across the street, Henry Fonda. It's crazy enough out there already, with Grey Line bus tours through the front yard, and I can't get home at night because 3,000 tourists are in the street photographing Dean Martin's house. We try to stay sane in an insane environment."

IS SHE BETTY Boop or Betty Crocker? Until four years ago, she was just plain Nutsy Fagan. Born in St. Louis to strict Catholic parents, she "grew up with so many rose-colored glasses on, I didn't lose my virginity until I was in my '20s." Her father was a failed printer who ended up working for the Department of Vehicles ("something to do with license plates") and it took seven years of analysis to work out her feelings of suppression and guilt. She moved to New York in 1964 after four years of college, worked as a clerk for the New York Central Railroad, married an actor named Gary Campbell "out of a need to feel an attachment to Campbell "out of a need to feel an attachment to somebody — we were both scared and lonely" — and spent most of her time shuffling in and out of TV commercials with migraines. "It was a weaning period. We were both growing and learning, but I needed to stretch my wings." A role in the national tour of "Cactus Flower" led to two movies ("Blume in Love" and "Cinderella Liberty") and a divorce. "I was floundering and full of anger. I was 27, married, divorced, in therapy, and my father was still asking me, 'Are you being a nice girl?' The actors I met were either getting horrible divorces or they were homosexuals. I sort of gave up on ever having a mature relationship."

having a mature relationship.

Enter a cherubic, balding playwright with horn-rimmed glasses named Neil Simon, who had been married to his wife Joan for 20 years when she suddenly and tragically died of cancer, leaving him with a desk full of hollow jokes and two daughters to raise. Marsha had deserted a good, steady, wellpaying job on the soap opera "Love of Life" and was working hard in a San Francisco production of "Pri-vate Lives" when her agent rushed her back to New York to read for a new Neil Simon play called "The

She was bone weary, had no hope of getting the part, didn't want it anyway, kept thinking about moving to Los Angeles. The playwright stuck his head in and said, "Aren't you the girl from Love in Bloom'?" Getting the name of the movie backwards made her laugh. She didn't discover until later that in the blacksne dion't discover until later that in the black-ness of the empty theater where she was reading for the role she was "only a page and a half into the script when he leaned over to the director and whispered 'Hire her!' He says now that he remem-bered her from a Manufacturers Hanover Trust commercial that always played right in the middle of the

"It was just one of those extraordinary chemical things. On the first day of rehearsals, we were all sitting around this table reading the script aloud. We took a coffee break. He came around, put his hand on my shoulder, and I remember patting his hand with my hand like we were old friends. I can't explain it. It all sounds so silly. I was very embarrassed. We were married 21 days later."

IT WAS LIKE one of those comic slogans hanging over an analyst's couch: "Today is the first day of the rest of your life!" Marsha was like one of those leading ladies in B movies who wake up in somebody leading ladies in B movies who wake up in somebody else's bed, wearing somebody else's clothes, with somebody else's passport. "I could understand it," she says reflectively, "if I had been actively looking, but I had already made up my mind to devote myself to my career. I was in a Broadway show, I had two movies under my belt, I didn't need marriage or security. But I felt it was right. I just let myself go.

"Here was a man with growing children who were going through heavy changes, and I was a new wife with a ready-made family and responsibilities I never dreamed of, but they were so wonderful they made it easy. I decided to play it by eat and use my instincts. It was the girls who suggested we get married. I knew I couldn't replace their mother, but they said 'Why don't you come and live with us — we they said. 'Why don't you come and live with us — we won't tell our friends you're not married!' I had played it safe long enough and I knew what that was like. It was time to find out what a relationship was like."

The play was a flop, but Marsha got an Oscar nomination for "Cinderella Liberty." "We were getting married, I was sitting in New York with a whole new family getting roady to make the California was to California with a whole new family, getting ready to move to California into a brand new house. I was so nervous I went out and overdosed on hamburgers, malts and junk food, ended up with a gall bladder attack, and got the news about the Oscar nomination in a hospital room.

After we were married, Neil confessed to me he "After we were married, iven contessed to me he hated actresses. One day he announced: 'OK, this isn't going to work — either give up your career or me!' I thought for a moment, and said, 'OK, I'll give up the career!' I think he was floored. of my priorities in the right place. Ironically, at the same time he said 'You can't work again!' he turned around and wrote two movies for me to act in."

MOVING TO California, she says, gave them both the fresh start they needed to build a life on an equal level. He plays tennis, feels physically active, is writing more and better than ever. His new play, "Chapter Two," which opens today on Broadway, is "Chapter Two," which opens today on Broadway, is "very autobiographical, about a second marriage, readjustment and letting go." Marsha's career is jumping. She was a great success in a Los Angeles stage production of "The Heiress" last year, and finished three movies in a row: "Audrey Rose," in which she played the hysterical mother of a reincarnated child, "The Goodbye Girl" and the forthcoming Neil Simon parody of Bogart crime melodramas called "The Cheap Detective." She likes the latter two, frowns with crinkled disdain at the mention of "Audrey Rose." "I cried my eyes out in every scene. There were so many tears it was like a Greek. There were so many tears it was like a Greek tragedy, except that without a character to work with, I ended up being ultimately boring."

In "The Cheap Detective" she plays a combine-

tion of Claire Trevor, Gladys George and Gloria Grahame — "one of those maniacal, desperate, supportive women who never get the guy. I wear a blonde floozie wig, long eyelashes and look wonderfully cheap and trashy!" In "The Goodbye Girl" she found working with Richard Dreyfuss like "hitching myself to a skyrocket. He carried most of the comic thrust of the movie.

"I'm the one who had to root the movie in reality. I was always stirring spaghetti and telling the kid to go to bed, and what I really wanted to do was act crazy too. We read it aloud for Neil and he said we were better than the script, so he threw out 60 pages and started all over again. It proves his philosophy that if the story isn't strong, you're only

All of which still, amazingly, leaves plenty of time for a balanced home life. "It was a big adjustment for two New Yorkers who were trained to move in a certain rhythm, but life in California has given us peace. I got tired of the kids getting mugged or the lunch money on their way to school in Manhattan. the lunch money on their way to school in Manhattah.
"We get sick of the interminable sunshine in California, but I have a vegetable garden, fruit trees, two dogs and a cat. I'm reading up on canning. I get up in the morning and go down and cut some roses for the house. I like being back in New York, but I'm worried about my avocado trees. Neil has a separate office next to a sports club where he can look out from his typewriter and watch Jimmy Connors playing tennis.

Her unfulfilled fantasy is still to sing opera, but meanwhile she's just directed her first film for the American Film Institute — a 25-minute dramatization on videotape of the seduction scene from "The Good Doctor." "They give you a thousand dollars and you're on your own. It costs that much for food bills for the apparatus of the state of for the crew, so naturally you end up spending your own money. But now I have to go back and learn how to edit it. I still talk too much, but the best thing about my life now is that whatever I do, I've learned to do it with a sense of humor about myself."

The Great Wave of European immigration in America began in 1840. Most of the newcomers left behind them poverty or oppression, or both, in Central, Eastern and Southern Europe. They endured the Jerrible hardship of steerage on lengthy ocean voyages. The break with their ancestral ties was often heart wrenching. But a better and freer life becknowled even though this new life often took place in a ghetfo. Their labor helped make the United States the Tichest nation on earth. fichest nation on earth.

Leonard Dirinerstein, professor of history at the University of Arizona, and David M. Reimers, professor of history at New York University, in a brilliant look at the non-English immigration to America, tell is thing that us things that many of us never knew about our forebears. The authors tell us what brought the immigrants to this country, what manner of men and women chose to undertake what to them was the great adventure; the problems and struggles they found in the New World. The authors document the gradual assimilation of the immigrants and their progeny and their progeny's progeny. The cultural beritage of millions of Americans has nowhere been better illuminated.

Vonnegut in America. Edited by Jerome Klinkowitz and Donald L. Lawler. (Delacorte Press/Seymour Lawrence, $8.95) Cloth, $3.95 paperbound.)

This volume, a bird of many feathers, provides a Vonnegut bibliography, chronology, and photo album, several essays and a panel discussion drawn from the 1975 session of the Vonnegut seminar of the Modern Language Association (whose participants included Willis McNelly, William Veeder, Conrad Festa, Peter Reed, and the book's editors), and an extended piece by Donald Fiene on Vonnegut's popularity in the Soviet Union

It also proposes a thesis, set forth in the preface and in Jerome Klinkowitz' biographical "Vonnegut in America," that "Vonnegut's posture as a writer seems to grow out of his realization of the possibilities of our common American culture with its disparate energies and its eclectic forms. . . . Vonnegut rate energies and its eclectic forms. . . . Vonnegut has constructed his own personal mythology for dealing with the world. But unlike other modern writers whose system of values derives from an esoteric mix of philosophies and psychologies, Vonnegut never lets us forget that he is a familiar American type, content to remain so, given to practical jokes. .

The facts of his life lend some support to that assertion, but I'm less willing to assent to the proposition that "when Vonnegut was brought to prominence in the '60s by a wave of young people disaf-fected with the older generation, the image they were really celebrating in Vonnegut was that of their own fathers (with tie off and coat unbuttoned), whom they had chosen to reject in real life for other reasons."

The critics berein are very concerned with fiction, sattre, autobiography, or shaggy-dog-story-as-enabling-form-for-metaphysics? Classification may be only a rung above or below evaluation in the hierarchy of critical functions, but it must be admitted that important clarifications of Vonnegut's work do emerge from these discussions.

The colors of this book clash somewhat. In a sense it tries to do too much, while in a couple of ways it stops short — one misses the tensions that might have resulted were voices less sympathetic to Vonnegut to have been included, and one wonders why not a single review from a newspaper west of the Mississippi is listed.

But it will be a handy tool indeed for anyone embarking on a serious study of Vonnegut's writings.

Marijuana data contradictory

In an unexpected move, the American Medical Association and the American Bar Association last month issued a joint statement endorsing the decriminalization of marijuana.

For some of my law enforcement friends, this unified plea urging Congress and state legislatures to remove penalties for the private use of marijuana was a bit of a bombshell. Yet, in view of the increased knowledge today about marijuana,

Nine years ago, as a member of the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, we did some thinking about marijuana. We were impressed with the conflicting statements about marijuana and the last of research with juana and the lack of research at that time. We also were appalled at the harsh sentences meted out for marijuana viola-

In our final report, we did "most emphatically declare that classifying mari-juana users with the users of hard drugs is scientifically wrong, a wrong recognized by the young, a wrong that makes them contemptuous of the drug laws and to some extent of all law."

Further, we recommended that the National Institutes of Health work with selected universities to greatly expand re-search on the physical and psychological effects of marijuana use.

Since our report in 1969, that has been accomplished. The NIH has grown maritrol in the southern United States and made that product available to selected

RECENTLY, I heard a report on marijuona effects by Dr. Jared Tinklenberg

dr. walt menninger

who has carried out research as an associate professor of psychiatry at Stanford University Medical School.

He called attention to some contradictory effects of the drug, which make it hard to classify. Initially, it stimulates the central nervous system; later it causes depression and sleepiness. In high doses, it also causes changes in people's percep-

The effects are also determined by the mental attitude of the user and the setting in which the drug is used. In Tinklenberg's research, he found judges and police reacted quite differently from medical students and engineering students.
The active component of marijuana, tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), has a high margin of safety. The letahl dose in a dog is more than 3,000 milligrams per kilogram of animal weight. For the sake of compari-juana cigarette is only 5 mg. What are some of the predictable physiological effects of THC? It increases the heart rate. It causes a sulfusion of conjunctival blood vessels, i.e. bloodshot eyes. It decreases intraocular pressure (inside the eyeball) — making it of possible help to persons with glaucoma. It expands the bronchioles, air passages deep in the lungs, in some asthmatics.

WHAT ARE the behavioral effects? With a willing subject, it generally causes a euphoria, a pleasant mood. It does not seem to be useful, however, in elevating the mood of a depressed person.

THC affects the user's sense of percep-tion, particularly his sense of time, which scems slowed down. Events feel like they're talking longer than they should. Some users also experience a heightened sensitivity to nuances of music, taste,

When marijuana is smoked, it presents all the complications associated with smoking — short term irritation of the respiratory tract and long term potential of bronchitis and emphysema. In addition all of the cancer causing substances identified in tobacco are found in marijuana.

Marijuana can trigger a more profound emotional reaction in persons with a potential for emotional problems. It is thus more hazardous for emotionally unstable per-

The antibiotic ampicillin can no longer be considered the first-choice drug in the treatment of otitis media middle-ear inflammation.

Dr. Virgil M. Howie, a pediatrician of Huntsville, Ala., points out that the bacterium known as Hemophilus influenzae is involved in 25 to 35 percent of cases of middle ear infection. In some areas of the country nearly a third of these bacteria are resistant to ampicillin.

Those who treat otitis media should think of alternatives to ampicil-

Trouble is, this combination has not been approved for this disorder by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

The resistance of H. Ilu strains to Puppetry by master is art, too

By Elise Emery

'Puppetry is a transient art form, art in motion as are music and dance.

Rarely, however, is it considered true art - it is, rather, accepted as a form of entertainment, usually only for children, and its stories, although they may carry a moral, are trivial in content.

None of this is true of puppetry in the hands of Bruce Schwartz. He is a young man who deals with adult problems through the medium of his art; his tales are not designed for youngsters. He draws largely on material from the Middle Ages and the Renaissance because he first played to adult audiences at the Renaissance Pleasure Faire in Los Angeles, an enterprise with which he no longer is associated. Puppets, he says, can be traced to India; the oldest one known came from that country and appears to be about 4,000 years old which he makes himself. His unusual approach to his art makes him unique; he has attracted a large, admiring audience, especially in Los Angeles.

WEDNESDAY, Schwartz will bring his troupe of actors, inanimate until he instills them with his own animation, to Long Beach Main Library under auspices of Friends of the Long Beach Museum of Art. The performance will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the library auditorium, 101 Pacific Ave. Tickets are free but they must be picked up before the performance at Long Beach Museum of Art Bookshop, 2300 E.

Occan Blvd. The bookshop is open from noon to 5 p.m. Wednesdays through Sundays.

The program, for adults only, will consist of vignettes with traditional English melodies done in the Japanese style of song illustration. The rod puppets derive from the Japanese puppet tradition and from the 18th century French Funambules theater.

A professional puppeteer for more than 10 years,
Schwartz writes his own scripts, makes his puppets and performs his works. He has given programs at the Huntington Library, the Renaissance Pleasure Faires, the Seattle Center for the Performing Arts. Los Angeles County Museum of Art and the Egg and the Eye. His most recent appearance was on "The Puppet Show" filmed in London (he returned from London this week). He also appeared at the Theater Festival in Nova Scotia.

WISTFUL, haunting face is luminous example of Schwartz's puppets.

MORE NEWS from Long Beach Museum of Art: Next Sunday an exhibit of sculpture, drawings, photographs, and videotapes from Studio Z will open to run through Jan. 15.

Studio Z is a group of artists, musicians and poets who share ideas, materials and 5,000 square feet of studio space at Second Street and Slauson Avenue in Los Angeles.

Artists represented in the coming Long Beach show are Houston Conwill, Kathy Cyrus, Ron Davis, Greg Edwards, David Hammons, Maren Hassinger, Duval Lewis, Senga Nengudi, Franklin Parker, Joe Ray, Roho, and Roderick Young.

Since it opened in June, 1976, Studio Z has produced two contemporary music festivals, several performances by conceptual artists and a major group show on its premises. Both a dance group and a theater group use Studio Z for rehearsals.

BACK AT THE MAIN Library: Through Dec. 10 there will be a display of Metropolitan Museum Replicas and other objects from Long Beach Museum of Art Bookstore. This exhibit is in the library area known as the Popular Library.

From Dec. 12 through Jan. 2, 13 artists from the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program will exhibit paintings, jewelry, sculpture and photography. This, too, will be in the Popular Li-

And, in preparation for the King Tutankhamun exhibit which opens at Los Angeles County Museum of Art in February, the Main Library has scheduled several programs. On Dec. 8 and 15 at 7 p.m. Charles Boorkman will narrate a slide show about Egypt and its monuments. On Jan. 18 and Fcb. 4 at 2 p.m. the library will show a film, "Tut: The Boy King" in the auditorium. The 1977, 60-minute film, narrated by Orson Welles, explores the king's life as revealed by objects of gold, alabaster and precious stones found

Vorld War I doll is a true 'dough' boy

I purchased a Libert Boy doll for $5."

- Edna, York, Pa.
A. During World War I when America's fighting men were busy over there, many of their children were playing with the Liberty Boy doll over here. Trademark papers for this pleasing plaything were issued to the Ideal Novelty & Toy company, who produced the doll in 1917-1918. Its completely molded soldier-type uniform makes it recognizable, as does the felt army-style hat fitted with a cord. This all-composition doll jointed at hips, shoulders and neck can be correctly classified as a true dough boy for existing examples sell for between $80 and $90!

Q. "We're seeking data on our 'Village Wedding' pot lid." — Mr. and Mrs. R. F., Pawtucket, R. I.

A. The sought-after circular earth-enware pot lids, delightfully decorated with transfer prints applied under the glaze, were exhibited with notable success by Messrs. F. & R. Pratt at the London Exhibition of 1851. In fact these small pot lids are often called "Pratt," although other potters also produced them. Many Pratt lids bear the signature or initials of Jesse Austin, the man credited with perfecting this type of ceramic decoration. "The Village Wedding" was patented on Jan. 15, 1857, by the Pratt firm and continues to keep antiquers in a state of bliss despite its $75 price tag.

Marriageno time off for this behavior

DEAR ABBY: I am 41 and Mel is 44. We've been married for 20 years and have three nice children — one is still at home. We have no money problems and no sex problems, but all of a sudden Mel says he wants to be "free." No divorce, mind you, he just wants to be free to come and go as he pleases, so he rented an apartment and bought new furniture. I even helped him move.

He was gone for a week, then he came home. He said he missed our dog. I prayed night and day that he'd stay home, but three days later he went back to the apartment for the weekend.

I told him I loved him and begged him to give up the apartment. He said he liked me as a person, but he didn't think it was "love." Also, he didn't want to hurt me, but he had to be "free."

I don't think there's another woman. (There's hardly enough for me.) I'm so confused, it's tearing me apart. What should I do? — PART-TIME WIFE

DEAR PART-TIME: Marriage is a full-time commitment with no off for good (or bad) behavior. If your husband wants to be "free," give him his freedom (legally) and you take yours. If the dog dies, he'll have nothing to come home for.

DEAR ABBY: I met this great looking man when I was hunting for a house to buy. (He's a real estate agent.) I liked everything about him. He's not married and neither am I. I finally bought a house through him.

My question: How do I let him know
I would like to go out with him?

The escrow just closed and there is no reason for him to come around anymore. — IN THE MARKET

DEAR IN: You may be "in the market," but I think you're out of luck unless the real estate agent has a real interest in you.

DEAR ABBY: My girfriend's husband got on the wrong side of the law and might have to spend some time in prison.

My friend will be living all alone in a trailer, and she is very much preg-nant. I want to go and stay with her at least until her baby is born. I know she needs me She's my dearest friend. She and her husband took me in when I really needed it. They proved to be true friends, and I will never forget it.

My problem is my boyfriend. He says, "Forget them — they aren't worth bothering about."

He's never met the husband, and he met my girlfriend only once.

What should I do? I love my boyfriend, but I feel I owe my girlfriend something. — NEEDS ADVICE

-WILLIAM CONRAD, and his wife, Marianne, both lieutenant colonels in the Volunteers of America, take to piano and drums to provide toe-tapping music for listening and dancing at Sunset Club. The Conrads are commanders of the popular gathering Staff photos by TOM SHAW spot for senior citizens.

Seniors swing at Sunset Club

What do the older people need most?
"Well, they need most of the things young people need, but their special problems can be summed up in two words: hunger and loneliness," said Betty Vail, nutrition director of the Volunteers of America, 700 E. Broadway.

"Hunger and loneliness go together," she said. "Some older people are dreadfully poor, but even those who have good incomes often are starving. They get into the tea and toast complex. It is not good for anyone to eat alone.

"Socializing is a necessity. To be healthy and happy people must do enjoyable things together.

The Sunset Club and the eight branch Senior Centers of the Volunteers provide the nutrition and socializing necessary to the good life. Luncheons are provided five days a week. They are planned to give the correct nutritional balance - but they also are planned to taste good. Hot meals are served at 11:15 a.m. and 12:15 p.m. The other centers have their meals at noon.

Tables are festive and a party spirit prevails.

The cost is 50 cents, but anyone who doesn't have a half buck will be welcomed and fed. The only qualification is that the individual has celebrated a 60th birthday.

"Work is the best thing that can happen to senior citizens," said Helen Wakefield, executive director of Senior Opportunities and Services (SOS), 406 E. First

"We have seen many people change from dullness and despondency to cheerful alertness because we have given them meaningful jobs to do," she said.

"Our society is oriented to the work ethic. This was especially true in the first half of the century. People were judged by the jobs they held. And in the Depression those who couldn't find work ilidn't eat."

Sixty-six men and women who have found better lives by doing volunteer work for SOS were honored by the board of directors at a dinner Thursday at Buffums. Each received a marble plaque. The dinner was attended by representatives of the community organizations the volunteers have helped. "SOS has two ways of helping seniors," Ms. Wakelield said. "There are those who wish to help the community or other older people through volunteer services. These volunteers are older than 55. And there is an employment service for those past 65 who wish to supplement their incomes."

Generally speaking, the retired fall into two groups, she said. There are those who, having done their share of the world's work, feel they have earned the right to play. And there are those who can think of no meaningful life without work.

"The two ideas overlap," she said. "Those who want to play often discover that they don't know how. They must work hard to learn to play.

Those who must work to have satisfactory lives find that play is the reward. They enjoy social contacts and have social events."

SOS stands willing to help both those who need help and who want to help others. Its many services include regular phone calls to the shut-ins, home visits, transportation, counseling, referrals, employment, a variety of classes and a mailing service for nonprofit organizations.

Persons with problems or who want to help should visit the office at 406 E. First St. or call 436-9907 or 436-9908.

A major need is for persons to make home visits," said Belle Aronson, coordinator of volunteers. "Many persons are shy about this work. Such volunteers need cars. They should be of outgoing personalities and have a deep interest in people. Retired salesmen and retired ministers are usually very against prother.

Young Dave Hust is manager of Hubert's Cafeteria at 218 E. Broadway. His brother Rick, slightly older, is manager of Hubert's Cafeteria at 643 Pine. Ave. Each works enthusiastically with his staff of employees to make his cafeteria the best for food quality and service.

The competition is a bonus for the customers at shipshithe cafeterias, because Rick and Dave feature of graveekly specials at low prices which are very good deals. The entrees and prices are the same at each restaurant.

Starting Monday and continuing through Saturday, both Hubert's Cafeterias will offer the roast beef dinner (normally $3 and worth it) for $2.25. Served day and night, it's a generous, freshly prepared meal, including two salads per person, two hot vegetables, fresh roll or muffin, butter and coffee or tea. After 3 p.m., the special also includes dessert. The choice varies, ranging from cherry cobbler to perhaps bread pudding or pumpkin squares or

Next week, Monday through Saturday, both caf-eterias will offer beef shortribs for $2.25 on the special. Dec. 19 through 24, the special will be corned beef and cabbage for $2.25. From Dec. 26 through 31, beef and cabbage for $2.25. From Dec. 26 through 31, the special will again be roast beef for $2.25. The cafeterias are owned by the brothers' parents, Hubert and Joan Hust. Dave, Rick and their younger brother, Ron, have worked at the restaurants since they were small boys. They started as lowly helpers, doing odd jobs in the kitchen or helping earry the customers' trays. Gradually they were given more responsible jobs. Eventually each of the sons learned how to cook and were taught management techniques.

expaniments, including beverage and dessert.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL brother act can be found at El Encanto Mexican Restaurant, 1731 E.

The owners and hosts are Diamond and Damron Cecil, who recently introduced fascinating new menus offering a bonanza of good things to eat. Thanks to their new ideas, El Encanto (Spanish for "enchantment") is attracting scads of new customers

Damron and Diamond are the sons of the late
Grace Ashley, who helped found the restaurant Grace Ashley, who helped found the restaurant nearly 40 years ago, in 1938. The brothers began working at the restaurant when Diamond was 15 years old and Damron was 14. They started in the kitchen, doing some of the most menial tasks, such as washing dishes or "picking peppers." Sometimes they sat by the hour, patiently removing the stems and seeds from the dried red chili peppers used in many of the restaurant's entrees.

El Encanto is the only California restaurant I know that still makes its tortillas on an ancient machine. Most Mexican restaurants buy their tortillas ready-made. But El Encanto makes its "from las ready-made. But El Encanto makes its "from scratch," using a paste of ground corn with other ingredients. The machine came from Mexico many decades ago. It is very noisy. It usually goes into action around 8:30 or 9 in the morning, so its "clank, clank, clank" won't annoy the restaurant's guests.

Damron and Diamond have lived and traveled extensively in Mexico. El Encanto's recipes are a mixture reflecting the tastes of old Mexico, Texas, New Mexico and Southern California. The restaurant is handsomely decorated with tile, mirrors and ornamental iron work, resembling a Mexican hacienda. Although the food quality is top-notch and the menu most imaginative, the prices are low, compared to other restaurants.

The generous luncheons — served Mondays through Saturdays — start at $1.85 and include entree with gazpacho or salad, beans or rice, tortillas or sourdough bread. Dinner is served every night (and Sundays starting at 1 p.m.) The dinners start as low as $2.25 for a big beef taco with beans, rice, tortillas

El Encanto is definitely one of Long Beach's best Mexican restaurants, because of the great variety of ideas on the new dinner menus, printed in an attractive garden motif. Scores of entrees are offered. There are also lancy Mexican appetizers, seafood salad, children's dinners ($1.75), refreshing fresh fruit tropical cocktails, Mexican beers and an inexpensive wine list offering such premium California wines as Martini, Simi and Wente. Fine Inglenook tap wine is $1.85 for a half-carafe.

The fact that Long Beach doesn't have a soccer program is of consequence to Jack Bohannon, soccer coach

The Formula Plants grow without soil

While my feeling is that the best fruits and vegetables are grown by conven-tional methods, i. e., in soil rich in organic humus and natural fertilizer such as manure, there is an alternative method which should be offered as an option. This is hydroponic feeding. It can come in handy during the winter months

In hydroponic growing, soil is replaced by a medium such as gravel or sand. Whereas the function of soil is to feed the plant, gravel serves only as a medium to hold it in place. Nutrients are then fed to the bed in liquid form where they are absorbed by the plant. This is a basic description of hydroponie feeding, though there are modifications and combinations that are used. Here is a basic formula for a hydroponic solution.

You will need three tablespoons of POTAS-SIUM NITRATE, two tablespoons of CALCIUM SULFATE, two teaspoons MAGNESIUM SUL-FATE, one tablespoon

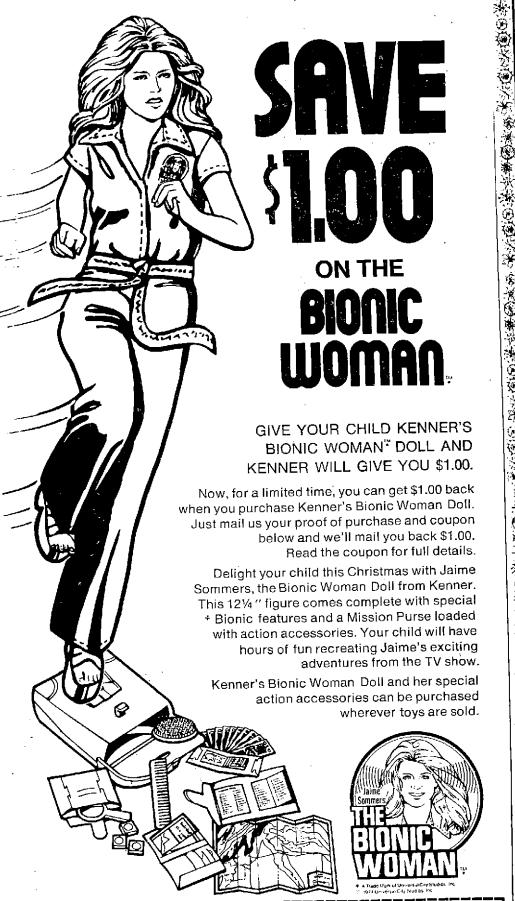

PHATE, one teaspoon AM-MONIUM SULFATE, and 10 gallons of WATER. (These are all agricultural chemicals that are available in most garden shops.)

Mix all dry ingredients together and dissolve in water. To use, apply liquid to bed as required with sprinkling can or by constant drip

Besides the satisfaction you get by making your own products for personal or home care, most formulas are real money-savers.

(Like any chemical product you use at home, you should store this one safely, label it — listing ingredients and noting any cautions - and keep it out of reach of children.)

Compilations of Dr. Stark's formulas are available in The Formula Book and The Formula Book 2, $5.95 each, or in slipcased sets of 1 and 2. for $11.90. Please indicate which volume and mail to FORMULA BOOKS, 6700 Squibb Road, Mission. Kan. 66202.

Apps and Stemkowski launch Kings to win

Syl Apps' two goals in the first period and Pete Sternkowski's 200th National Hockey League career goal fueled the Kings' 4-1 triumph over the Atlanta Flames Saturday night before a Forum crowd of 11,

The victory enabled the Kings to open a six-point bulge over the third-place Detroit Red Wings and remain eight points behind Montreal's division leaders.
The Flames, who have won only once in 12 starts at the Forum in six seasons, fell into last place in the Patrick Division. Atlanta's inbility to win on the road play them once again as their record on foreign ice dipped to 1-6-5.

Despite playing their seventh game in the last 11 nights, the Kings came out flying and jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first period.

Apps, whose last-gasp goal a week ago enabled the Kings to salvage a tie in Atlanta, banged his fifth and sixth goals of the cam-paign during the Kings' early explosion.

Apps's first goal came with only 2:50 elapsed. Tommy Williams made it 2-0 three minutes later while Apps connected for his first power goal of the year at 17:13. Rey Comeau spoiled Rogie Vachen's shutout bid with 1:43 remaining in the second period when he flicked in an eight-footer.

Earlier in the period, Glenn Goldup and the Flames' Richard Mulbern drew five-minute fighting penalties. A few minutes later Atlanta's Tom Lysiak was kicked out of the game for making an obscene gesture to fans behind the Linesman Swede Knox called it to the attention of referee Andy Van Hellemond who sent the Atlanta center to the dressing T00III.

Sternkowski, who scored only twice for the New York Rangers a year ago, then drew a standing ovation with his seventh goal of this season and No. 200 of his 15-year NHL career.

"I'm only 407 behind Phil Esposito now," the 34-year-old centerman laughed. "It's been an exact turnaround from last year. It sure helps to have regular wingers each Apps said he was especially happy to finally get a power goal.

"My job is to be in front of the net even though I know I'm going to take some punishment. But you often bring a penalty to them. The key is it bothers the goalie. If he has to worry about you he's not going to give his full attention to the puck and that has to be an advantage," Apps reasoned.

Kings coach Ron Stewart said, "I knew Apps was a playmaker, but now he's scoring again."

As for the win, which improved the Kings' home record to 8-3-3, Stewart said, "I'm happy because we gained some points on Detroit and Pittsburgh.

"The only thing I worried about was when they scored in the second period to make it 3-1. I was afraid il would give them a lift when they came out for the third period but instead we got a goal and that seemed to take ail the life out of them. I've seen Atlanta play bet-

LBSU's first win a thriller, 95-94

By Jim McCormack Staff Writer

Long Beach, State, surviving more heart-stopping crises than an hour-long episode of Emergency, toppled Wichita State, 95-94 in overtime Saturday night to secure its first win of the season.

"Boy, is that (the first win) a relief," said an exhausted Michael Wiley, who contributed 20 points and 13 rebounds to Long Beach's first success in three outlings.

The losses had been on the road, at Brigham Young University and Weber State, but Wiley con-ceeded that they had still dented the confidence of a young 49er

'Sure it bothered us," he said "You shouldn't be scoring in the 90's and losing. We realized we had to do more than score."

In the early moments of Satur-day's game, the 19ers didn't even

They dropped behind the well-disciplined Shockers, 23-12, and spent most of the evening trying to They didn't succeed until Francois Wise's 16-footer knotted matters at 81 with 1:48 remaining. From that point, many of the 5,071 onlookers on hand in the Long Beach Arena will probably agree that Santa Claus came early for the

They were excited about the prospects of a victory and on several occasions, like an anxious youngster trying to unwrap a present, they'd drop the box just as they were about to untie the bow.

Those occasions included: • Losing an 83-81 lead — created on Larry Gray's 12-footer

JOHN DIXON Sports Editor

SUNDAY, DEC. 4, 1977 Section S, Page S-1

at 1:05 - by twice losing the basketball on turnovers.
On the first, the Shockers tied the score on a 15-footer by Steve Kalocinski.

On the second, the 49ers fouled Wichita's brilliant Lynbert (Cheese) Johnson, but, with five seconds re-maining in regulation, the 6-5 junior missed the first try of a one-and-one and Wiley got the rebound. Wiley passed to Larry Hudson, who hit a 30-footer, but the shot came after the buzzer.

• Losing a 93-89 lead — established on a Hudson 16-footer, a Gray slam-dunk on a breakaway and a two-shot technical foul on the Wichita bench - with two more turnovers

Wichita closed to within one on the second miscue and could have tied the score if Cheese had made a second free throw.

Long Beach was able to surive that when Rickey Williams hit Iwo charity tosses at 0:11 to give Long Beach a 95-92 lead.

Johnson, who scored 21 points, twisted past three defenders to score on a layin at :03, and Wise held the ball until time had expired. The 49ers then walked off the court. where they are 111-5, as though they had just finished another day at the plant.

It was anything but that simple.

Wichita repeatedly exploited Long Beach's tardiness in making the transition from offense to defense, shooting 61 percent in the first half on the way to a 47-39

intermission advantage
"Whew," Gray said of the first half. "They were 20 of 31, they only missed 11 shots, and that makes you wonder about yourself a little."

The 49ers helped that shooting percentage. Five of the Shocker baskets were off the fast break, against a nonexistent 49er press, and another 10 came on wide-open, rlose-range shots from a well-designed, and well-run offense.

Long Beach couch Dwight
Jones made some tactical adjustments at halftime and the 49ers were better defensively in the second half, but Wichita, which doesn't have a senior on its roster, refused

Four times the 49ers trimmed a Wichita lead, which grew as big as 14 points (59-45), to live points or less and each time the Shockers responded with a basket of their own.

The last time would have broken a lesser team's back. The 49ers had scored six consecutive points to get within three, 76-73, at 5:48 and then gotten a 19-footer from Wise to offset two free throws by Bob Trogele at 4:46

UCLA looking sharp, 88-79

By Gary Rausch Staff Writer

It is becoming readily apparent that things are falling into place for the UCLA Bruins.

Facing their biggest test to date, they ran up a substantial lead on Santa Clara Saturday evening and then held on to post an 88-79 decision before 12,164 appreciative Pauley Pavilion fans.

Each opponent has been a little tougher test and the Broncos were just what Gary Cunningham ordered. They were big and mobile, patient on offense and choking on 'Santa Clara didn't die and just kept fighting back," said forward David Greenwood, the game's high scorer with 23 points and a dominant force on the backboards with 15 rebounds. "We let up the last five minutes and luckily we were strong enough to hold on. The only thing that kept us close were some missed one-on-one free throws.

UCLA was down by as many as seven points (18-11) and trailed for nearly 10 minutes of the first half before catching Stana Clara, 26-all, eight minutes before intermission.

The Bruins had hit 10 of 13 shots from the floor to that point. A 10-0 blitz harnessed the Broncos. UCLA sped to a 46-30 bulge to begin the second half, let the lead slip to 11 (58-47) and gunned it to 19 (78-59) before turnovers and an uunfamiliar delay game allowed the visitors

"Our conditioning was the dif-ference tonight," Greenwood continued. "They got tired and when their substitute came in, our guards just out-ran them."

Greenwood, who also blocked three shots, had plenty of help from former Verbum Dei teammale Roy Hamilton. The junior guard tossed in 20 points and handed out 10 assists. He also was the rebound runnerup with six.

"We had a few bad moments out there, but we bounced back," said Hamilton. "We could have played better.'

where the Bruins stand.
"Tonight was our biggest test before Notre Dame (next Saturday night)."

Hamilton was performing with a bruised thigh, suffered against Colorado Friday night. It didn't show in his play.

"Notre Dame's starting five is awesome," said Greenwood. "If we come ready to play and beat Notre Dame, we should be ready for the Pac-8."

SC loses to Utah, 93-67

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Utah countered a 20-point performance by freshman forward Purvis Miller with a balanced, feam-oriented at-tack to easily subdue USC, 93-67, before 14,120 fans Saturday night.

It was the Trojans' second suc-cessive lopsided loss — both on the road - after opening the season with a pair of encouraging victo-ries. Utah, the defending Western Athletic Conference champ, raised its record to 2-0. d scorer last season with a 20.6 average, contributed a game-high 21 points. He was joined in double figures by teammates Greg Deane and Buster Matheney, both of whom tallied 14 points while playing about half the game.

Miller, the CIF 4-A Player of the Year at Compton High last season, enjoyed his second successive big game. He had 14 points to lead USC during its loss to Illinois Thursday night. Junior guard Steve Smith was the only other Trojan in double figures Saturday, scoring 12.

Neither team seemed able to get in gear during the early going, both burdened by excessive fouling, and the game remained close through the first seven minutes.

Poly slips past Saints, 49-43

Highly-regarded Poly High held St. Anthony to only two points in the third quarter Saturday night and went on to post a 49-43 season opening basketball victory in the Saints' downtown Long Beach gym.

The Saints, who are now 1-1 on the young season, more than held their own for three quarters only to their own for three quarters only to be done in by a disastrous eight-minute stretch after halftime. Poly, which had problems at the outset trying to penetrate a 1-2-2 zone defense by the Saints, was outscored 10-3 over the final 4:40 of the second quarter and left the court trailing at halftime, 23-19. Forward Mike Ramsey scored eight of his game high 24 points to spark the spurt which had the seen the Saints rally from a 16-13 deficit The third quarter was a different story, however, as Poly took command of the game after 6-7 Ray Whiting blocked two shots, Reggie Bell stole the ball and unanswered points and at 2:36 led, 81-75.

The 81st point came on a free throw by Charles Brent, the game's leading scorer witth 26 points. Brent had been shut out in the Shockers' season opener with Hardin Simmons

Long Beach countered with four consecutive hoops by Wiley, Hudson, Wise and Gray, who scored 23, for an 83-81 lead that set the stage for the final six, madcap minutes.

Jones felt it was a definite, honecourt victory.

"I've always believed that the crowd doesn't make the other team play badly, good players will play good basketball, which Wichita proved tonight," Jones said.

"But the crowd does help the home team," Jones continued. "It keeps the home team playing harder, keeps encouraging the home team. Our crowd did that tonight. The crowd was super and so was the band. We'd have never been able to keep coming back like we did if we had been the visiting

How much was the home court worth? "At least one point," Jones said

James McDonald hit baskets to put the Hares ahead for good, 25-23. The Saints' only points of the quarter came on a baseline shot by Ramsey at the 3:33 mark. Guard Steve Griffin was Poly's most consistent player, scoring 14 points while Whiting had points 10 – eight in the second half to go with 10 rebounds.

The Hares were 13 of 23 from the field the final 16 minutes after going only 9 for 27 the first two periods.

The one surprising aspect of the Saints' first half play was their ability to stay even with Poly on the backboards even after their tallest player, 6-6 center Rob Robinson, drew his third foul five minutes into the first quarter and was taken out of the game. Ramsey was the only Saint to hit with any consistency from the field but also missed a half-dozen free throws, all in the fourth quarter when the Saints tried to rally. Poly's biggest lead was 45-30 with three minutes to play. The Saints with Borney Robinson and

L.A.'s '84 Olympics won't be the same

"The '32 Olympics was such a beautiful layout ... all the athletes from all the different countries in one place. The stars would come up from Hollywood every night and put on shows for us. We had a lot of fun there."

Frank Wykoff

Was 1932 so long ago, if Frank Wykoff can recall growing up in Glendale years before that with a single ambition in life?

was only in the sixth grade and I'd bring my ribbons home. I can remember my dad asking me, 'What do you want to do, son?' I said, 'Someday I want to be the world's fastest human.'"

Now the scrapbooks are heaped upon the dining table in his clean, modest home in Alhambra, bulging with proof that he achieved that bold aim and much more. Wykoff, 68, shows off the translucent glass portrait pictured here. "See this?" he says.

And as he flicks on the light behind it, his youthful image and the '32 Olympic Games come to life.

Wykoff, who held the world record of 9.4 seconds in the 100yard dash for some time, never won the 100 meters in the Olympics, finishing fourth in '28 and '36, but he ran on the U.S. 400-meter relay teams that won gold medals and set world records in '28, '32 and place.

''I think it's great. The '32

"They all had their separate dining rooms. It was very interesting to go from one to another to see what they atc. France even had wine. The stars would come up from Hollywood every night and put on shows for us. There wasn't a dull moment. It was quite a thrill to go outside the gate and sign auto-

Los Angeles plans to keep costs down by housing the athletes in dormitories at USC, UCLA and elsewhere. There will be no Olympic Village.

"They won't have the same "In '36 in Berlin they had a beautiful Olympic Village. But the day the Olympics were over and we moved out, the German army moved in. It was really built for Unfortunately, none of them was considered official enough to file a record claim.

That was the first race of the day and the official timers hadn't arrived yet," Wykolf says.

AT ONE TIME or another, Wykoff defeated every top sprinter of the day except Jesse Owens, who came along near the end of Wykoff's career, beat him twice and matched his world record.

Wykoff was visited by Owens a few months ago on a very special

"It's for the birds," he says with the disgust of a man who has lived a robust life.

BUT THE discomfort diminishes when Frank Clifford Wykolf

He recalls a "pre-Olympic" meet at the Coliseum in 1930. It was at night, and Mary Pickford ceremoniously turned on the stadium's lights for the first time. Jack Dempscy sparred an exhibition.

"If there was a professional track meet in those days, that was one," Wykoff says with a chuckle, "Percy Williams had won the '28 Olympics, and his manager told me he was getting a thousand dollars to come down here from Canada to run against me.

"They were going to give me a new Ford. You could buy a new Ford for $500. I said, 'I don't want a new Ford. I'd be a professional. I want to be paid $800 cash.' So that's what they told me they'd give me.

"So I won the race and went up to get my money. They said, 'Well, we have to pay our expenses, we have to pay this . . . 'I never got a penny, which I suppose was just as well "

WHEN HE WAS at USC a fraternity brother bet Wykoff $20 he couldn't run 100 yards in 10-flat in a football uniform.

"I didn't have $20, but there was an old man who used to come around and watch us work out. He said, 'You go ahead and run, Frank. If you lose, I'll pay it. If you win, you get it.'

"That was with the heavy shoes, the pads. The hardest thing was the helmet. It felt like my head was gonna bounce off. But I ran 9.8, which they said was a world record in a football suit—and he

Raiders' new image: a polite executioner

Intimidation having considerable to do with the psychology of professional football, it is no accident the Oakland Raiders wear black shirts and have a pirate and crossed swords on their hats.

If Otis Sistrunk, the defensive end from the University of Mars has a shaved head bobbing around on 270 pounds of muscle, it is not likely to enhance the confidence of the opposing side.

The image is hardly damaged if defensive back George Atkinson gets accused of being part of a "criminal element." It is neither here not there that to talk with George is to get the impression he would not harm a fly — unless the fly was wearing the uniform of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Fred Biletnikoff flaunts his ugliness and snarts at all moving things. Biletnikoff acts like he would suck a lemon in front of the coronet player in the Salvation Army band.

Ken Stabler is more deceitful than mean and ugly. The Snake may hill you with his soft Alabama tones but he'll pick you to pieces, if you think you have a pass defense.

ANYWAY, such is the image of the Oakland Raiders.

Now, with the Raiders in our town to meet the Rams today, you detect a change of pace quite probably prompted by the state of affairs confronting the Raiders in de-fense of their Super Bowl championship. The Raiders are 9-2. including a loss to the little San Diego Chargers, and are faced with the distasteful prospect of entering the NFL playoff tournament as a wild card.

Whatever, instead of shoving the physical brute image down the throats of opposing teams, the Raiders are shoving a fullback named Mark van Eeghen. The other night van Eeghen carried the other night, van Eeghen carried the lootball over the 1,000 yard mark for the season to become the first player in Raider history to reach the plateau on two occasions.

If you think running for 1,000 vards against NFL defenses is an ordinary accomplishment, you have not been paying proper atten-

This is what makes van Eeghen a change of pace. He does not fit the image of the Oakland Raiders or, for that matter. the mold of professional football players. In his fourth year, Mark is still in awe of pro footplayers largely because he

VAN EEGHEN never expected to be around them. He entertained no notions of a pro career even after he was drafted out of Colgate.

"Then, all of a sudden, I was playing behind Marv Hubbard who had always been my idol at Colgate," van Eeghen says. "I couldn't believe it.'

WHEN Hubbard was hurt in 1976, it took half the Raider squad to convince Mark he didn't get the Colgate University recently received scholarship grant of $2,500 out of van Eeghen's Super Bowl check and a pledge of $1,000 a year to maintain it.

"It's not because Colgate made me a football player," van Eeghen explains. "It's because it helped me become a human being.

When I went to Colgate, I was the shvest and most retiring guy in the world. If I entered a room with other people. I would look for the closest wall and walk along it, excusing myself all the way.

"Colgate taught me to stop walking along the wall." The Raiders taught van Eeghen to run through the wall but not to slop excusing himself.

DARRYL ROGERS didn't say yes and he didn't say no. And why should he commit himself? Rogers recently signed a five-year contract with Michigan State and he isn't courting job

But the Independent, Press-Telegram had learned that Rogers would soon be contacted by the University of California, which needs a head football coach now that Mike White has been dismissed.

"I don't have any comments about the California situation," said Rogers, who played high school football at Long Beach Jordan and is a former I, P-T carrier boy in North Long Beach. "I'm at Michigan State."

Would his five-year contract stand in the way of a change? "No, my athletic director would allow me to do anything I want. But I do like coaching in the Big Ten."

Would he be interested in returning to California, where he coached at Fresno State and San Jose State before going to Michigan State?

Well, I was born and raised in California." Would he visit the Berkeley campus if invited by Cal athletic director Dave Maggard? I wouldn't want to comment on that unless I receved an

Two things are obvious from the conversation with Rogers. After going 6-1-1 in the Big Ten this past season, he's not an active candidate for the Cal position, but if the Bears want to talk to him.

That's not a bad bargaining position in which to be situated.

Although he had a verbal agreement with the Angels to manage the team in 1978, the club also was courting Gene Mauch of the Minnesota Twins.

But when Minnesota president Calvin Griffith barred Mauch

But he also advised Garcia that the Angels had a better chance for an American League pennant in 1978 than Milwaukee.

Garcia must have appreciated all of this sudden affection.

CUFF STUFF: Naturally, there will be denials all over the place, but it's more than just a rumor. When it appeared during the off-season that Ram coach Chuck Knox would be shifting his base of operations to the Detroit Lions, USC football coach John Robinson quietly made inquiries in the correct places about succeeding Knox with the Rams. But Ram owner Carroll Rosenbloom veloed the Detroit move by Knox and nothing more came of Robinson's bid. If I were a betting man, I'd wager that Tampa Bay coach John McKay will move to a front-office position, probably vice president and general manager. The switch will be come after this season or the conclusion of the 1978 campaign. . . I wouldn't wager against a return to the professional ranks by Stanford coach Bill Walsh, who compiled the best college record on the West Coast this past season when the Confinel word 3. Walsh was a highly respected offensive when the Cardinals went 8-3. Walsh was a highly respected offensive coordinator in the National Football League before going to Stanford. From inside the University of California camp comes a report that deposed coach Mike White was crushed after the Bears lost to UCLA on Oct. 22 and were virtually eliminated from Rose Bowl contention. The reason for White's state of depression was that he thought he had a good chance to succeed Dan Devine at Notre Dame if he took the Bears to the Rose Bowl. There are those who say a formal announcement of Devine's resignation is only a matter of lime — that he informed Notre Dame officials the week after the Fighting Irish crushed USC that he wouldn't return in 1978. Who could blame Devine for leaving South Bend after the abuse he's

OOPS! SO SORRY: Two weeks ago in a story about the ills that had befallen USC lootball, I quoted Fresno State coach Jim Sweeney as saying: "Another genius, Paul Hackett, bites the dust."

Sweeney, a good Iriend and a helluva coach, phoned the other day to correct the record about Hackett, a Trojan assistant.

"I didn't say that about Paul," said Sweeney. "To the contrary, I think Paul Hackett is one of the finest football minds in college football.

"I came down to USC for three or four days last spring and spent the time picking Hackett's mind. He gave up a lot of his free time to help me, and he was tremendous. I don't want him to think

No one, including Sweeney, is demanding a retraction. But what is right is right. When you blow it, you might as well admit it.

One of the tragedies of correcting the record is that many of the people who read the first statement don't see the second one. Jim Sweeney and Paul Hackett are deserving of apologies, and

GAME OF THE WEEK At Los Angeles Coliseum Oakland 20, Rams 17

Possible Super Bowl preview finds Oakland in situation where win is virtually imperative. Rams have their act together with four wins in a row and and six of last seven, including five of last six vs. spread. However, none of their victims carry credentials of Raidersespecially with Stabler at the controls, as he is expected to be today. This is only the second regular-season meeting between the pair. Oakland won that one, 45-17, five years ago. The Raiders also blanked the Rams, 21-0. in a preseason game this year.

knee surgery that followed his injury in the third game of the season against San Francisco.

In his place at a wide receiver position will be a rookie, Billy Waddy, opposite the very professional Harold Jackson—two good examples of the "talent" Jessie talks about.

"He's doing a real good job," Jessie says. "He's keeping the pressure off Harold."

There will be plenty of that. The reputation of the Raiders' defensive backs—especially safeties George Atkinson and Jack Tatum—precedes them around the National Football League.

Jackson will draw his share of their attention. With 40 pass receptions, he shares the NFC lead with Drew

"They say the DBs in Oakland are cheapshol artists," Harold says, "but I don't think they are. They just play very aggressive defense." Jackson discussed this personally with Atkinson at the NFL Players Association convention in Las Vegas last January, before George lost his "criminal element" suit against Pittsburgh coach Chuck Noll.

Jackson relates Atkinson's remarks. "He said,

'Hey, look, I never cheapshot you or anything. There are just some holdog receivers in the league who, when they Jackson decided to agree. "George thought people were going around giving him a dirty name."

Should they score today, Harold and Billy will be very polite about it. They may even say they're sorry.

One thing is certain: the Raiders also must give Waddy more than the average rookie's respect. He led Ram receivers with six catches at Cleveland last week. "Billy's doing a super job," Jackson says. "We're throwing the ball to him more and that's what we've got to do for both of us to be effective."

Only in Waddy's first start, the Monday night game at Chicago two months ago, did an opponent seem to be ignoring him at the expense of Jackson.

"I lett a little tight," Waddy admits. "I had mistakes on my mind. But I'm learning a lot, being around Harold and Jess."

The Rams drafted Waddy out of Colorado on the second round after their scouts clocked him in 4.3 seconds for 40 yards-perhaps their fastest player ever. But the Bullaloes tried to use his speed as a kick returner, wingback and running back. He caught only six passes last season.

This is my first big experience at wide receiver," he says.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. 'We ain't second rate no more," Florida State football coach Bobby Bowden croaked as he joined his players in celebrating a 37-9 victory Saturday over bitter-rival Florida before a stunned crowd of 63,563 and a regional television audience. Bowden was hoarse from hollering "WHOO-00-00" in the jubilant winners' dressing room celebrating the first foot-ball victory over Florida in 10 years in 10 years.

"We thought they were weak in secondary," Bowden said. It was an understatement as his quarterbacks, Jimmy Jordan and Wally Woodham, completed 20 of 31 passes for 344 yards.

"I just go back, look and the guys would be open," said Jordan, who hit wide receiver Roger Overby with three touchdown tosses.

Florida coach Doug Dickey said the outcome was a matter of Florida running for 143 and a sea-State's strength concentrated in the area where Florida was weakest — in its mjury-plagued defensive secondary.

"We knew they talked all week about defensing Larry Key, so we faked the ball to Key and threw downfield," Bowden said.

Key, who became the first Seminole in history to gain more than 1,000 yards rushing, wound up the day son total of 1.117. Florida State will take a 9-2 record into the Tanger-ine Bowl at Orlando Dec.

SAN JOSE (AP) — San Diego State has only one complaint about its 10-1 season — it ended a month too soon.

The Aztecs, who had the same record and a na-tional ranking last year, would like to have received a bid to a post-season bowl. But they had to settle for a dramatic 37-34 win over San Jose State on regional television Satur-

Davis completed 22 of 40 passes for 325 yards and four touchdowns to lead the Aztees to their come-from-behind 37-34 victory over San Jose State and finished the season com-pleting 60 percent of his passes for a total of 2,360 yards and 24 touchdowns.

"We would have liked to have gone to a bowl game, but what's done is done," said David Turner, who gained 111 yards rushing Saturday to set a San Diego season record with 1,252 yards. "We thought that this was like our bowl

Campbell is class of Heisman field

By Tracy Ringolsby

As the entries head down the stretch in the 43rd running of the Heisman Trophy Classic, Earl Campbell, a sure-legged phenom out of the University of Texas stable, is out front by several lengths.

Rapidly (alling back along the rail is Terry Miller, a Colorado-bred entry running out of Oklahoma State University. Longshot Doug Williams of Grambling is trying to make up ground on the outside, but seems to be liring in the stretch.

Can Williams save enough ground to catch the high-spirited Campbell in what is considered a subpar field? It is doubtful.

The nation's college football writers have cast their ballots on the issue and the votes are being tabulated by the New York Athletic Club. The winner will be announced on national television Thursday.

The Heisman Handicap:

EARL CAMPBELL, 6-1, 224, running back, Texas — Handled by the nation's No. I collegiate stable. Campbell has been instrumental in gaining the Longhorns their postion atop the rankings, leading the nation in rushing (158.5 yard per game) and scoring (19 touchdowns). Campbell was a bit wild as a youngster, smoking two packs of cigarettes a day when he was in junior high school and "hanging out with the wrong crowd of guys."

A stern mother, widowed in 1966, Ann Campbell broke her son of his bad habits and he has been a first-class performer since.

I told him if he kept on and got involved with the police, he'd have to stay in jail because I couldn't afford to bail him out," recalls Ann Campbell of Earl's training days. "I told him if he stayed out of trouble, I could feed him and keep clothes on his

Now opponents spend Saturday afternoons trying to tear the clothes off his back and Earl just smiles. Against SMU, he lost six tearaway jerseys.

"I just wanted to give them something to remember me by," he said.

Campbell should have a permanent spot in college football's memory when the trophy winner is paraded in the winner's circle.

TERRY MILLER, 6-0, 196, running back, Oklahoma State — Early lavorite; but had to carry added weight of losing team (4-7), which caused him to stumble coming around turn (team lost final four).

A two-time all-America who holds Big Eight career rushing mark, Miller ran for 152.7 yards a game, despite being the only Cowboy offensive starter back from 1976 and the main target of opposing defenses.

"I'm just thankful to be alive the way I've been hit this year," said Miller.

A fourth-place finisher in the Heisman race last year, Miller would be thankful if he won the honor this year, but the only other player from a losing team to win the race was Notre Dame's Paul Hor-nung in 1956. Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer, an expert analysis of college football talent, likes Miller's blood-

"Both Miller and Campbell are great backs, but Miller has more acceleration," said Switzer, who has coached against both annualy for four seasons. "The Heisman Trophy is an individual award and team records should not be considered. I think Miller should win the Heisman.

Chalk horses don't always cross the finish line

DOUG WILLIAMS, 6-4, 214, quarterback, Grambling — Has performed at major tracks (Yankee Stadium, Astrodome, Superdome, Silverdome in Pontiae, Mich., and Japan), but usually in non-stakes races. Suffers from lack of national acclaim. Form voters will give Williams some support.

Statistically, he leads the nation in total offense (291.6 yards per game) and set NCAA career records for touchdown passes and passing yards. He never competed against the top horses of college football.

"He's the best pro prospect I've ever coached," shouts Grambling coach Eddie Robinson. "If he played for a major university there would be no question about who the Heisman Trophy winner would be. It would be Doug by a landslide."

That may be an overzealous trainer spouting the praise of his stable. People can't forget the build up Silky Sullivan got before racing in the Kentucky Derby, against top class horses for the first time, and finishing last.

KEN MacAFEE, 6-4, 250, tight end, and RUSS BROWNER, 6-3, 247, defensive end, both Notre Dame — Coupled entry for the Fighting Irish, which means neither has received deserved attention.

Browner is a sure bet to win second Outland Trophy as outstanding lineman in college football - not bad considering he was a 6-1, 175-pound yearling.

"Mom once refused to let me play football because she thought I was too Irail and would get hurt," said Browner. Only thing that might get hurt now is his pride when he doesn't win the Heisman.

MacAfee has won all-America honors three times and may be the first player selected in the NFL draft. He suffers from the lack of flashy stats required for Heisman support. Finished 12th in nation in receiving with 49 receptions, but it is hard to put his blocking abilities into figures.

GUY BENJAMIN, 6-4, 202, quarterback, Stanford — Average candidate in a weak year, whose main claim to fame is leading the nation in passing with 208 completions (hitting 63 percent of his passes) in 10 games.

Failed to generate the "big" game that provides national attention, also is reserved off the field and prefers privacy, a handicap in Heisman race.

"Overall, you can't feel that you're any more important than anyone else," Benjamin says in explaining his philosophy on life. "You're just another

Benjamin is just another entry in the Heisman

GIFFORD NIELSEN, 6-5, 203, quarterback, Brigham Young — A mid-race scratch. He suffered an injury in fourth game of year after completing 98 of 156 passes for 1,167 yards and 16 touchdowns with only three interceptions.

Nielsen may have broken little-school image of BYU if he had stayed healthy. A starter on the BYU basketball team as a freshman, Cougars spent great deal of time and money promoting him (including a trip to New York to meet the media), but it all went to pieces when Nielsen was taken out of race with an

Futures

RICK LEACH, 6-1, 190, quarterback, Michigan — Only a junior, Leach has broken all Michigan passing and total offense records and will be early favorite in

"I feel as confident passing as I do running," said three-year starter Leach, whose passing came under heavy criticism his freshman and junior years.

I.M. HIPP, 6-0. 200, running back, Nebraska - A legitimate walk-on, who has run through every de-lense he faced this season. He carried the ball only once in Cornhusker opener against Washington State and was used sparingly in the Alabama game, but still managed to run for 1,301 yards.

Had to borrow $96 from his girl friend back home in Chapin, S.C., to get to Nebraska and has yet to receive an athletic scholarship, but does get plenty of publicity, which he feels he deserves.

"I don't brag but I always have felt there is nobody better than me," said sophomore Hipp, only the fourth Husker in history to gain more than 1,000

By his senior year, Hipp, who has leg pressed 915 pounds, may have the nation agreeing with him.

MARC WILSON, 6-5, 206, quarterback, Brigham Young — A sophomore, who spent most of the first four games on the bench, Wilson got his chance when Nielsen was hurt.

Most of the pain since then has been suffered by BYU opposition. Wilson wound up third in the nation in total offense (22.16 yards a game) and 164 of 277 passes for 2,418 yards and 24 touchdowns.

Campanis plans to enjoy sand, surf

"Last time (1972) we negotiated the acquisition of Andy Messersmith from the Angels," said Campanis. "This time it will be different. I'm going to have time to find out what is so special about Waikiki."

The National League champion Dodgers feel they filled their biggest void last month with the signing of free agent Terry Forster, a left-handed reliever, to a five-year contract worth $850,000.

"We are good enough to win again as we are now constituted," said Campanis. "We will definitely try to improve the bench, but anything else is doubtful."

The Dodgers have been talking to San Francisco about switch-hitter Derrell Thomas, who could fill their need for a lefthand hitter who can play the infield or outfield. They have offered the Giants reserve Lee Lacy, who wants to be traded to a club for whom he can play ever day.

Campanis also has discussed the possibility of a trade involving Don Sutton and Texas' Bert Blyleven. While Campanis enjoys the weather of Waikiki. his Angel counterpart, Buzzie Bayasi, will be confined to the hotel. Bayasi, who did not leave for Hawaii until today, will go to work as soon as he Bavasi. The Angels may not be willing to part with Remy before Tuesday. That is when Bobby Grich, disabled June 9 with back problems, will undergo tests to see how well his back responded to surgery. If Grich is healthy, Remy will be available.

Boston has attempted to get Remy for two years and the Red Sox, especially manager Don Zimmer, are still interested in the Massachusettes native. They have mentioned outlielder Dwight Evans in talks with the Angels.

The Angels also have an interest in outfielders Dave Winfield and George Hendrick of San Diego; St. Louis eatcher Dave Rader, whose $100,000 annual salary has the Angels concerned; catcher Biff Pocoroba of Atlanta; and pitcher Vida Blue of Oakland. The Giants are working on a three-game win streak over the Rockets. They emerged victorious in both meetings last year and scored a 5-1 win in this year's season opener at Blair Field.

The Rockets suffered their second loss of the current season last Sunday when they fell to the Robinson Mets, 1-0. Only score of the game came on a twohome run by Mets third baseman Rick Lamb in the sixth inning.

Craig Gioia and John Lavery will share mound duties for the Rockets again today.

Boy, oh, boy!

Gabriel Melgar starts at the top as an actor

By Bob Martin TV-Radio Editor

It no doubt has been many years since a major movie star was discovered while sitting at the counter in Schwab's drugstore in Hollywood, but, in the magic world of entertainment, it sometimes still pays to be in the right place at the right time.

Just ask young Gabriel Melgar, the Chico of NBC's "Chico and the Man" television series.

When Gabriel went with some friends one Saturday to play the marimba and sing for the tourists and other passers-by on Olvera Street in Los Angeles, in the hopes of earning some nickels, dimes and quar-ters, he couldn't have dreamed of the good luck that was to strike him.

Joyce Selznick, head of casting for James Komack, who produces "Chico and the Man," had gone to Olvera Street the same day on the lookout for a Chicano youngster who might, just might, be able to fill the role of the new Chico on the series, replacing the late Freddie

SHE SPOTTED Gabriel and was attracted by the fun-loving personality and warmth he projected.

"She came over and started asking me questions," Gabriel recalled at lunch the other day in the Commissary at NRC Commissary at NBC Studios in Burbank. "She asked me if I'd like to be on television, if I'd like to be on television, if I'd like to be on 'Chico,' and I said 'Sure,' but I didn't know it was a TV series.

'I thought she just wanted me to audition for a commercial, and I didn't think anything would come of it. I'd auditioned for TV commercials be-fore, and I'd never gotten the job."

But Miss Selznick arranged a meeting with Ko-mack, which led to a screen test with the star of

GABRIEL MELGAR, as Raul (or Chico), displays affection for his adoptive father, cantankerous, lovable Ed Brown (Jack Albertsson), who doesn't like to admit he likes it, on NBC's Friday night comedy series "Chico and the Man."

"Chico and the Man," veteran actor Jack Albertson, and the then 12-yearold Gabriel (he turned 13 on Nov. 26), who hadn't acted before in his life, won a costarring role in the major network comedy series when it entered its fourth season last September.

ALTHOUGH he was a novice actor when selected for "Chico," Gabriel had been performing as a singer and marimba player since the age of 4. His father has a band called the Melgar Brothers, and Gabriel's older brothers have a band called Los Bambinos Melgar, and he has performed with them at Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm, Sea World and Magic Mountain, as well as "at mar-riages and divorces."

Divorces? "Well, you gotta keep the divorced people happy, too," said Gabriel, a mischievous lit-tle fellow who delights in cracking jokes.

Gabriel also had performed with Sammy Davis Jr. at a Lake Tahoe hotel as one of "Sammy's Kids," the singing group that backed the star, before he landed the part of Raul ("Chico" to Albertson's Ed Brown).

GABRIEL spent the first 15 days of his life in Tijuana, Mexico, and the next 10 years in Wilmington. His parents — Gilbert and Sonia, both natives of Mexico — were residents of Wilmington at the time of his birth, but had gone to Tijuana to visit friends when he made his arrival on Thanksgiving Day in 1964

Movie examines violence on TW

By Jerry Buck AP Television Writer

The issue of violence on television is examined dramatically for the first time in a movie on NBC.

"The Storyteller" focuses on a writer whose television movie is blamed for inspiring an act of arson by a 12-year-old boy that results in his death.

"It is a voyage of conscience for the writer to see what, if any, his responsibilities are," said Richard Levinson, who wrote the two-hour script with his long-time partner, William Link. It will be seen on Channel 4 at 9 p.m. Monday. "Is he culpable in any way for the boy's death?"

Link added, "We exam-

Link added, "We examine the responsibilities of the writer, the networks and studios."

Nevertheless, the film

Tis the season

'The Storyteller' focuses on a writer raises more questions than it provides answers to. No solution is offered because the writers say they don't know what the solution is. What it does offer, they say, is an airing of the issues on both sides—the right of parents to protect their children from negative influences vs. the First Amendment right of free speech by the writer.

"BILL AND I have been grappling with this issue for a long time," said Levinson. "It initially started with the Kennedy assassinations. We felt that a constant diet of television violence had to have an effect."

They created "Columbo," a nonviolent police show, but they also freely admit creating such shows as "Mannix" and writing their share of vioient programs in the past. They also turned out such movies as "The Execution of Private Slovik," which ends with a firing squad.

Levinson said, "We began writing the script for "The Storyteller with an antiviolence bias. In the middle of the script, we began to have other thoughts. The emphasis for the new television season was totally away from violence.

"If religious groups could cause General Motors to drop its sponsorship of 'Jesus of Nazareth,' and if the PTA and other groups could force these changes upon television—what kind of a Pandora's Box are they opening?"

LINK SAID, 'If you screen out 'Starsky and Hutch' and 'Hawaii Five-0,' you also screen out 'Private Slovik' and 'The Glass House' and even 'Roots.'"

Levinson said, "The networks and sponsors are not interested in making waves. Who is to say what is gratuitous? A 5-year-old wouldn't see Shakespeare as art. He'd see it as bodies and blood.

"What would happen if you could prove a link between TV violence and antisocial behavior? Then what? Do you put a warning on television, as we did with cigarettes?

"What we're trying to do with this show is explore the issue, not provide any answers. Because there aren't any. There has to be a trade-off between responsibility to society and freedom of expression."

THE MOVIE stars Academy Award-winner Martin Balsam as the storyteller, a writer who got his start in radio and has numerous television projects under his belt.

A TV movie the storyteller wrote is about a demented architect who burns down the buildings he designed until he is caught by the arson squad. His producer informs him the day after the movie airs that a 12year-old boy in Seattle, after seeing the film, tried to burn his school and died of smoke inhalation.

The partners were asked if they had trouble with the network over the show.

"Yes, but not what you think," Levinson replied. "The networks are no longer sitting ducks. They've cleaned up their act, as far as violence is concerned. Their only worry on this show was the ratings. "They say this is an intellectual show. NBC's concern, was numbers, not content."

AFTER a long record of television successes and a long association with Universal Studios, Levinson and Link are moving on. They want to do more feature pictures, such as their "Rollercoaster." They will remain as script consultants for four "Columbos" being done at MARTIN BALSAM stars as at veteran television writer with a conscience in the new TV movie "The Storyteller," on Ch. 4 at 9 p.m. Monday.

Universal, however.

"We'll have more time and more freedom with features," said Levinson. "And the marquee doesn't close overnight. We spent a year working on 'Private Slovik' — all for one night. More people saw it than see a feature, but it was still a letdown."

Link said, "We'll still do television, because when you come up with something tike 'The Storyteller,' television is the perfect medium for an intimate story."

A concrete slab can become a beautiful outdoor room with a Howmet Woodgrain Skylight Patio Cover.

Howmet Skylights climinate the deep shade that is a common problem in conventional patio covers. The skylights interlock with precision formed aluminum panels, finished to look like natural wood but without the upkeep and maintenance that wood requires.

Enclose it with screens or leave it open, either way your patio surfaces are cooler. Fifteen maintenance free baked enamel trim finishes to complement any architectural styling at a surprisingly low cost.

Got a TV question:

By Bettelou Peterson Knight News Service

Q. I enjoyed "79 Park Avenue" and felt the cast all did a fine job. Tell me about the man who played Mike. Have I seen him before? Is he married?

A. David Dukez played

Mike Koshko and, by interesting coincidence, the same night he was rejecting Lesley Ann Warren on "79 Park Avenue," Dukes was playing the man who tried to rape Edith Bunker on "All in the Family." You may have seen him back in 1975 when he played the morose, one armed Robert Lassiter in CBS' "Beacon Hill," Dukes is married and has a son, 11.

Q. My uncle won't believe me that Robert Blake is in his 50s.

A. Good reason: He isn't. Blake, real name Michael James Gubitosi, was born Sept. 18, 1933. He toddled at 3 on stage with his family as part of a vaudeville act, "The Hill-

In 1938, the family moved to California and Mickey made his movie debut in Hal Roach's "Our Gang" comedies (now seen on TV as "Little Rasseek on I vas like task as 10, he had a new name, Bobby Blake. He did a string of movies for Warner Bros., including "Treasure of the Sierra Madre," and then played 'Little Beaver' in the Red Ryder movies.

(Which answers the most-asked questions we get: Was Blake in "Little Rascals"? — Yes, under "YUKON PASSAGE," a National Geographic special chronicling an eight-month 1,800-mile trek through the Klondike in 1975, airs his real name; and was Blake in "Leave It to Beaver"?-No, Jerry Mather was that Beaver).

at 8 p.m. Monday on Ch. 28.

Q. What was the name of the TV series in which Jackie Cooper starred long ago? Wasn't James Komack in it?

American Bidg. Contr. Assoc. California Contractors License No. 81-197641

YOU MAY NEVER SEE A LOWER PRICE!

A. Cooper's done three TV series. The oldest was "The People's Choice" (1955 to 1958) in which he costarred with a soulful basset named Cleo. The latest was "Mobile One" (a few weeks in 1975), in which he tried an acting comeback playing a TV newsman.

The show you mean is "Hennesey" with Cooper as a U.S. Navy doctor and Komack as a dentist. In those days Komack, who is now a TV producer ("Chico and the Man"), was an actor-comedian.

Q: Wasn't Anissa Jones a teen-ager when she played in Family Affair?" When did the show

A. Just. She was 13 when the show went out of production in 1971 after five seasons on the air. She was 8 when she started the show in 1966, her first acting job after two years of commercials. She looked and played a role younger than herself, a common TV practice.

Casting directors prefer children who are small for their age and who have small parents (which indicates the child will stay small, they theorize, thus insuring she won't grow out of her role too soon). Mary Anissa Jones died of a drug overdose in August, 1976. She was 18.

Q. I've bet my husband that one of the men in the therapy class with Rockford and Angel in the Oct. 21 "Rockford Files" was one of Bing Crosby's sons.

A. Collect. It was Gary, the oldest of Crosby's six sons. His acting career has sputtered, but he still turns up on TV occasion-four older brothers and three older sisters, their ages ranging from 23 to

In Wilmington, Gabriel attended the Fries Avenue

"Did you ever visit Long Beach?," he was asked.

"Yeah, I used to go to the Pike and go in swimming in the ocean.'

The family moved to the Boyle Heights district of Los Angeles about three years ago, and, this fall, moved to Burbank to be closer to where Gabriel works. One of his sisters, Sonia, 20, drives him to and from NBC each day, and stays at the studios as his guardian.

"I'm at the studio from about 8:30 to 4:30 Monday through Thursday and till about 10 on Friday," he explained. He has three hours of school a day from a private tutor at the studio. Said Gabriel: "I like it better than regular school."

CHARO, who was working on her second episode of "Chico and the Man" as a guest star in the role of Raul's Aunt Charo, from Spain, stopped at our table to say hello.

"He's a little genius," television's coochi-coochi girl said of Gabriel, in her inimitable accent.

After the sexy entertainer left for her own table, where she was being interviewed by another scribe, young Melgar, who grew up speaking Spanish in the home and speaks English with a bit of an accent himself, commented: 'I can't understand her."

Between bites of steak sandwich and sips of Coke, he answered the following questions:

Q. How does it feel to be a TV star?

A. It's swell, I like it.

Q. Has it changed your life much?

A. Everything's still the same at home. My family's happy. My brothers get more jobs now.

Q. Do you know where your money goes?

A. A bank account, utilities, things like that.

Q. Do you get an allowance?

A. Yeah, but $15 disappears in no time. Everything costs so much. (He said he pays for his own lunch at the studio except when I'm doing an interview").

Q. What do you like to do for fun?

A. I like to go swimming. Sometimes I watch TV or go to the movies.

Q. Do you have any girlfriends?

A. No.

Q. Do you get much fan mail?

A. Yeah. There was this five-page letter I got from one girl in Texas. It was very boring. I just read three pages and sent my picture.

Q. What do you want for Christmas?

A: A car.

Q. Aren't you too young to have a car?

A. I'll tell 'em I'm a midget.

RICH PEOPLE BUY NEW HOUSES SMART PEOPLE ... REMODEL THEIR OLD ONES

When you buy new, you're paying an inflated price for a structure of unproven quality. But when you remodel, you're simply making something that you already know is good ... better!

We at Alamo have been making Southland houses better for over 9 years. People depend on our remodeling services for several simple, but important, reasons:

SAFETY ... every job is inidividually bonded. Protects you from labor or material tiens and assures your job will be completed.

SERVICES ... our creative designing ability is confirmed when you visit any of our beautiful showrooms. Of course, we give free estimates and home consultation.

EXPERIENCE . . . Alamo builds more jobs than 99% of the remodeling contractors in the United States. No business can do this unless they are selling a quality product at a fair ratio.

IMMORTALITY OF MAN #2

Says

It is the claim of the Jehovah's Witnesses, and other materialists, that man does not have a soul, but that he is a soul. In Math. 10:28 we read, "And be not afraid of them that kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather rear him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell."

Joseph Henry Thayer, a world-renowned Greek-English Lexicographer in his Lexicon says of the word psuche, the Greek word translated Soul in the New Testament, that the word may be defined:

(a) breath (Lat. anima) i.e.

the breath of life; the vital force which animates the body and shows itself in breath-

2. Life . . also . . . the life which is lived on earth .

3. that in which there is life; a living being: a living soul

(b) The Soul (Lat. animus)

The seat of the feelings, desires, affections, aversions, (our soul, heart, etc. R.V. almost uniformly soul) .

2, the (human) soul in so far as it is so constituted that by the right use of aids soul regarded as a moral being designed for everlasting life: 3. the soul as an essence which differs from the body and is not dissolved by death (distinguished from to soma, as the other part of human nature the soul freed from the body, a disembodied soul . The word psuche occurs 105 times in the New Testament, It is translated by a variety of words. Soul, 58 times; Life, 40 times; Mind, 3 times; Heart, once; Us, once; You once. In the New Testament, the word is sometimes distinguished from the "spirit." 1) 1 Thess. 5:23—may your spirit and soul and body be... 2) Hebrews 4:12—dividing asunder of soul and spirit.

Killing the body is the limit that man can go. Man cannot kill the soul. God has far more power than man and so is the one to fear. Stephen was fearless in the face of physical death, and said as he was about to die, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit" (Acts 7:59) Also, in the Hebrew letter we read where those who despised Moses law died without mercy under two or three witnesses, "of how much sorer punishment shall he be thought worthy..." (Heb. 10:28-29). So man will live after death and be punished.

Q. I heard President Carter say in a Veterans Day address that he came back from the wars "as something of a hero." In what wars was Jimmy Carter a hero: - M. L., Alexandria, Va.

A. In no wars. Nor does he claim to be a war hero. What he said at Arlington Cemetery in a Veterans Day address this year was: "Although I came back from the wars as something of a hero-although I was not a hero-my son came back unappreciated. sometimes scorned by his peer group who did not join in the conflict." Carter referred to his son Jack, who served with the Navy and was given a general discharge—less than an honorable one—for smoking marijuana. Jimmy Carter was a midshipman at Annapolis in the latter half of World War II, saw no combat duty either in that war or the Korean War.

WOODY ALLEN AND DIANE KEATON

Q. Diane Keaton, Woody Allen's girlfriend-I cannot believe that she was paid only $5000 for starring in "Looking for Mr. Goodbar." How much will she get in her next film, $10,000? And who takes advantage of these young actresses?-M. E., San Diego, Cal.

A. Miss Keaton was paid $50,000 for "Goodbar," will probably win an Oscar nomination for her superb performance in the film. Her agent is asking $500,000 and up for her future roles. She has arrived.

Q. Was Walter Cronkite ever discharged by CBS, or did he ever resign from that network?-Gail K., Mt. Vernon, N.Y.

A. In August of 1964 CBS replaced Cronkite as anchor newsman at the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City. He was replaced by Roger Mudd and Bob Trout because David Brinkley and the late Chet Huntley of NBC were receiving higher ratings. Cronkite then gave a fleeting thought or two to resigning but decided against it. The network never considered discharging him.

LORD SNOWDON AND LUCY LINDSAY-HOGG

O, When Princess Margaret of Great Britain and her husband Lord Snowdon get divorced, will both of them marry their lovers?---F. L., West Palm Beach, Fla. A. Snowdon will probably marry Lucy Lindsay-Hogg, with whom he's been going for some time. But Princess Margaret keeps saying marriage is out for her. Perhaps her young admirer, Roddy Llewellyn, will persuade her otherwise. Although he is 17 years younger than the Princess, Roddy loves her deeply.

O. Now that Bert Lance has departed the Carter Cabinet, who is the big business contact to the White House-Secretary of the Treasury Michael Blumenthal?—N.H., Tucson, Ariz.

A. Although Blumenthal was head of Bendix International, some members of the corporate community regard him as a maverick. The word is that they plan to use Robert Strauss, Carter's trade negotiator, as a conduit to the White House.

Q. Can you tell me anything about Princess Ashraf, the twin sister of the Shah of Iran? Some time ago an assassination attempt was made upon her in the French Riviera.—Dee McInnes, Philadelphia, Pa.

A. Ashraf is 58, has homes in Paris, London, Teheran and Majorca. She has been married three times. Her present husband is Dr. Mehdi Bousheri, an Iranian lawyer. Her brother, the Shah, it is hushed about, keeps her on a tight allowance of $5 million a year. In Monte Carlo she is referred to as "The Black Panther," has been said to drop as much as $500,000 a night at the gambling casinos. Following the recent attempt on her life, Ashraf is constantly escorted by at least three bodyguards, most probably trusted members of Savak, the secret police organization established by the Shah.

O. I am mystified about lack Nicholson, Where was he born? Who is his mother? Has the truth ever been told about him? Isn't he the richest actor in Hollywood? I read that his share of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" has reached $10 million and that he is quitting acting in favor of directing, also that he wears six-inch lifts in his shoes. The truth, please. -V. R., New York City.

IACK NICHOLSON

A. lack Nicholson was born in St. Vincent's Hospital, New York City, to June Nicholson, an Earl Carroll dancer, and Donald F. Rose, a businessman. He was reared by his grandmother, Ethel May Nicholson. His mother and grandmother are both deceased. Nicholson's share of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" has surpassed $5 million at this writing. Nicholson was named after his grandfather, John Nicholson. The actor is anxious to try his hand at directing. A few years ago he directed "Drive, He Said," which was a box-office failure. Nicholson wears high boot heels or lifts in his shoes because at 5 foot 71/2 he is not as tall as some of his leading ladies.

O, I am outraged by the shameless exploitation of the U.S. Presidency by members of the Carter family. Is there anything we can do about this?-T.E., Macon,

A. Yes, publishers, promoters, advertisers, business persons could all decide not to exploit members of the Carter family for their own purpose . . . to make a buck. They might wait until a U.S. President has finished his term of office before offering business proposals to him and members of his family.

GEORGANNE LA PIERE

Q. Who is a Hollywood character named Georganne La Piere? - Molly Ogden, Salt Lake City.

A. Georganne La Piere is the younger sister of Cher-Bono Allman. She has been seen frequently in the company of Robby Benson, who starred in the film "One On One."

The fifty most treasured and most significant postage stamps, as chosen by a panel of leading international philatelic experts.

Authentically re-created in solid sterling silver by The Franklin Mint.

To be issued in limited edition. Subscription deadline: December 31, 1977.

ut of the thousands of stamps valued by collectors throughout the world, only a small number stand out as the most desirable—the most precious.

These are the world's great stamps. Treasured for their beauty. Their historical importance. And their rarity. Indeed, some are so trace that there is only one in existence. Others are so much in demand that they are eagerly sought by collectors at tare stamp auctions, and the prices paid are often extraordinary.

Now, the greatest of all the postage stamps ever issued—anywhete in the world—have been selected by an international panel of experts on philatelic history and stamp values. And these great stamps will be recreated—in authentic detail—in solid sterling silver.

The complete collection of these sterling silver stamps—fifty in all—will be issued by the International Society of Postmasters in Geneva, Switzerland. And to produce these stamps in precious metal, the Society has appointed The Franklin Mint, the world's largest and foremost private mint.

The talented artists and sculptors of The Franklin Mint will meticulously re-create the design for each silver stamp, capturing its fine detail. And the mint's craftsmen will strike these solid sterling silver stamps in flawless Proof quality. The result will be a collection as beautiful and exciting as it is significant.

An official collection

The reverse of each silver stamp will be inscribed with the official symbol of the International Society of Postmasters, the legend Solid Sterling Silver, the proof hall-mark of The Franklin Mint, and the name of the stamp. In addition, a Certificate of Authenticity, bearing the signature of the Secretary-General of the International Society of Postmasters, will be sent to each subscriber. This Certificate will verify that each issue in the collection is an accurate and authentic re-creation in silver of one of the world's greatest stamps.

Each silver stamp will also be accompanied by a specially-written commentary, prepared by a philatelic expert, which tells the fascinating story of that stamp and explains its significance in the history of collecting.

To protect and display the complete set of fifty solid sterling silver stamps, a customdesigned album will be provided to each subscriber as part of the collection. Thus, all of these beautiful silver stamps may be safely stored and conveniently displayed for the pleasure of friends and family.

Issued in limited edition

The Official Sterling Silver Proofs of the World's Greatest Stamps will be issued in strictly limited edition. And the total edition will be reserved exclusively for those who enter subscriptions by the deadline of December 31, 1977.

The silver stamps will be issued to subscribers at the convenient rate of one per month, and the original issue price for each proof-quality sterling silver stamp is $14.50. This favorable price is guaranteed to each subscriber for each issue in the collection.

The subscription rolls for this official series of silver stamps, issued by the International Society of Postmasters, will close forever on December 31, 1977. When all the silver stamps have been sent to subscribers, the dies will be destroyed—so that this collection can never be issued again, anywhere in the world.

The International Society of Postmasters' collection of the world's greatest stamps in sterling silver will embody all the features that collectors value most highly. Official status. Assured rarity. Historical importance. Uniqueness of design. And the lasting beauty of precious metal.

Moteover, as the first stamps in silver ever issued by the world's only international organization of postmasters, this unique series may well occupy a very special place in collecting history.

All applications should be sent to the International Society of Postmasters, c/o The Franklin Mint, Franklin Center, Pennsylvania 19091—and must be postmarked by December 31, 1977.

Can the U.S. Stop the War In Northern Ireland?

by Bernard Gavzer

COVER AND INSIDE PHOTOS BY THE AUTHOR

immy Carter, stay out of Northern Ireland. That's the feeling of a leading member of the Irish Provisional Republican Army, a tough paramilitary group that has split from the official IRA and is the most militant in the battle against the British.

Let's call this Provisional (Provo) Paddy. He's a Roman Catholic who's been fighting the British for years. He knows the locations of "closed dumps," the places where arms and explosives are hidden. He knows the smuggling routes. He trains new members of the IRA. He organizes attacks on British soldiers, hijackings, robberies, arson. He has one son dead, one daughter in Armagh Prison, one son in Magiffigan Camp, two sons in Long Kesh Prison, one son on the run. He sees hope in the future, for his broad still includes three adolescents prepared to carry on the struggle. His story, his uncompromising hatred of the British, is very much like that of so many other families in the Bogside of Derry and in Catholic enclaves in Belfast and throughout Northern Ireland, the six British-ruled counties of Ulster.

Given such fixed attitudes, what prospect for peace can there be in the so-called Carter Initiative? That is the common label given America's somewhat cautious step into the bloody arena of Northern Ireland. It was enunciated by President Carter Aug. 30: If Ulster Protestants and Roman Catholics could settle their differences peacefully, the United States would encourage private investment to rebuild the devastated North.

Carter also urged that Americans stop sending their own dollars to either side in the conflict. It was a theme sounded earlier by a prominent Irish-American, Gov. Hugh Carey of New York, who aimed it at other Irish-Americans. He alluded to the confusion Americans might have about the original IRA, which is now known as the Official IRA, and the militant Provisional IRA, which decided the only way to unite Ireland and get rid of the British is to wage war. Carey outraged many Irish and Irish-Americans when he said the confusion could be cleared "if the Provisionals were simply called 'the Irish killers' and the others, 'the Irish Marxists.'"

Can the Carter Initiative, and the Carey campaign preceding it, halt the deadly chaos, shorten the war, produce a compromise? With a growing list of enemies—the British Army and Royal Ulster Constabulary (RUC) in the North; Irish Defense Force and civil police in the Republic; Roman Catholic and Protestant clergy; peace movement; political groups; Protestant paramilitary forces—and banned by law North and South, is the IRA effectively hurt?

Bleak hope

Traveling Ulster, the Republic of Ireland and across the sea to London to test the feelings and opinions of men, women and children, one comes away with bleak hope.

Most of the people had at best a skeptical reaction to Carter's statement.

"How would you react if I asked you seriously whether Northern Ireland couldn't send aid to help you solve your race riots—that is, aid you'd get if you first quieted down and settled your problems?" asked a Protestant shopkeeper at a Belfast checkpoint.

"Is Carter looking for another Vietnam?" said an embattled IRA campaigner. "You've already had yours. Now the Brits have theirs. They are caught in the mire of an Irish bog and you'll be, too."

Three major possibilities for U.S. involvement in ending the war were mentioned. One was that the U.S. support removal of British troops and replace them with a U.N. peacekeeping force. Another would be to pour direct aid, along with private investment, into rebuilding the North and providing jobs. Another would be to cripple the IRA capacity to purchase weapons and stand aside in the event of a full-scale military campaign to eradicate the IRA.

Careful assessment indicates, at this juncture, that there would be little likelihood of any of these moves bringing peace. That is mainly because of the absolute, dedicated belief of many Irish-Catholics—in the North and in the Republic—that the British today are merely a continuation of the long line of oppressors dating from the Anglo-Norman invasion of the 12th century.

"Brits Out!" That is the slogan on many tongues.

"Carter himself knows that," said an angry mother involved in promoting political status for prisoners. "When he was campaigning for President, did he not march in the St. Pat's parade in New York sporting a "Get England Out of Ireland" button?" He did.

But if the troops go, there is fear of a bloodbath between the million Protestants and half million Catholics. Not so, said the milliant wing of the Sinn Fein (Kevin Street), which is considered the political counterpart of the Provos.

Protestors in Derry call for an end to centuries of British domination. IRA says a unified Ireland will protect rights of all factions.

The solution lies in uniting both Irelands and creating a single, social democratic, independent nation that would protect Protestant interests along with Catholic interests, the Sinn Fein said.

The presence of 14,000 British troops contributes significantly to Northern Ireland's siege mentality. Everyone seems trapped. The round-the-clock presence of heavily armed troops, the checkpoints and barriers between streets and neighborhoods, the roadblocks, the body searches and security checks at stores, hotels, bus depots have cast a funereal pall on daily existence.

Rising death toll

Death ricochets. A bus driver in County Tyrone. An IRA bungler in a Dublin pub. A 16-year-old caught burning a bus. A 24-year-old woman in a spray of bullets that missed her 3-yearold daughter. And then Seamus Costello, head of the Irish-Republican Socialist party. The Provos are suspected, but they paid Costello homage at his funeral-one featuring an illegal gun salute by a uniformed honor guard.

"These killings are a grave deterrent to America and other investors," said a British government official. The killers, he said, "are seeking to turn Northern Ireland into an economic desert." That, the Provos have said, is absolutely true.

If the United States opted to irrigate

"Very little would change," said a veteran British Army officer, born and bred in the Irish North. "They almost live a dream life here, dreaming of a united Ireland, an Ireland that existed 800 years ago. It has nothing whatso-

"Had anyone come here in August 1969 with offers of aid or investment or jobs open to everyone regardless of religion, the IRA would never have got a foothold and would never have grown. That was when it was a civil rights issue."

There is suspicion of American motives. A Marxist IRA man who had driven a bus in New York for 20 years before returning to his homeland said American businesses were principally interested in getting entrée into the European Economic Community and hoped to do so by establishing plants and operations in Northern Ireland, A consultant for an international oil company, on the opposite end of the political spectrum, had the same opinion.

Larger U.S. strategy?

By his statement, Carter for the first time involved the American government in the ancient Irish dispute. Some observers said it was part of a larger strategy concocted by some powerful Irish-Americans: Sens. Edward Kennedy (D., Mass.) and Daniel Moynihan (D., N.Y.), House Speaker Rep. Thomas (Tip) O'Neill (D., Mass.) and Governor Carey. Their aim, it was said, was to make the Irish "troubles" an international issue.

That conceivably could set the stage for an elegant withdrawal of troops by the British and establishment of a peacekeeping U.N. force.

"That would not do," said Mrs. Betty Williams, the Northern Ireland peace leader, the day after she and co-leader Mairead Corrigan were named winners of a Nobel Peace Prize. "The people of the North must and can resolve their problems. The way to peace is not through armies. We want no armies, legal or illegal!"

What then of the third possibility: crushing the IRA?

'We can get them'

"It would be possible by a full-scale military operation, supplemented by suspending the rule of law. We know who they are, where they are, and we can absolutely get them," said an official at Stormont, seat of the Northern Ireland government.

But despite extraordinary powers that outlawed the IRA and allowed unprecedented authority to seize and detain thousands on mere suspicion, the IRA kept fighting. Wholesale detention produced a backlash in which the IRA had a wave of volunteers and a flood of fresh money from angered Irish-Americans. The British ended such detention seizures in December 1975.

While the strength of the Provisional IRA is kept secret, government sources estimate it as a hard-core 300, plus a reliable 900 to 1200 ready to join ranks and take action.

"Tactically," said a Provo commander, "we call the shot, the time, the action, and we set the conditions." Thus they tie up thousands of troops.

Even if the United States could somehow dam the flow of private dollars, most of it channeled through the Irish Northern Aid Committee (Noraid) in New York, "we could still get arms and money," said a Provo leader.

Libya has been identified as a source for arms and explosives. As for money, bank robberies provide a substantial amount-banks have been robbed of £3,786,200 ($8,032,850) in the last six years. The Provos are said to have gotten the lion's share, with Protestant paramilitary groups and ordinary criminals also getting some loot.

The RUC cites reduced bomb explosions in 1977 as one piece of evidence that the Provos have been hurt. A Provo in Belfast offered this explanation, in relation to bomb explosions:

"It requires toting 20 stone [280 pounds] of dynamite to blow up a building. "This," he said, forming the outline of an incendiary device the size and shape of a tape-recorder cassette. "can fit in me back pocket and do just as much damage as a bomb but without a bang."

In other words, there has been a change in tactics.

Rampant smuggling

All the police and troops on both sides of the 300-mile border clearly have failed to stop the smuggling across some 220 points suitable for vehicles. The Provos are active setting up or shifting "closed dumps," where arms and materiel are stored for a "doomsday" situation. That situation could be the day of reckoning for so many young men and women whose lives have been filled with danger, hatred and blood.

Young Seamus, for example, was 12 when he threw burning bottles of gasoline at the police in August 1969. He first hijacked and destroyed a bus when he was 15. He has been on the run ever since . . . five years now . . . during which he has ambushed British soldiers. hauled explosives, set fires. He said he is unafraid. But he seems incapable of relaxing. His fingernails have been bitten to the quick. "We will win," he said.

A disquieting calm

There is now, in the aftermath of the Carter Initiative, a disquieting calm. There are some who feel a major catastrophic act is being planned by the Provos. But there is evidence also that their top level-the 13-member Executive and seven-member Army Councilis keeping tight rein on initiating any outrageous operation. This distresses Provo veteran Paddy. He is so hostile that he can't even abide "sharing the Irish breeze" with British soldiers. He has a scheme:

"What I want to do is truly hurt the British. I am not content to shoot soldiers and burn buildings. The war must be brought home to them, as it has to us. It must be total. Perhaps when wives and children are killed and their homes destroyed, the British will say 800 years has been enough," -

Navy has changed its requirements for Navy ROTC

From now on, 80% of the ROTC graduates who become line officers (commanding ships or divisions) must major in math, physics, chemistry or engineering. Only 20% of those accepted as line officers can be liberal arts majors.

This 80/20 ratio, replacing the former 60/40 ratio, affects 56 universities.

In a recent issue of the U.S. Naval Institute's "Proceedings," Chief of Naval Operations Adm. James L. Holloway III, who issued the ruling, is quoted as saying: "For a navy...whose combat superiority relies extensively on the application of technology, it is necessary to assure that officers are provided with a technically oriented foundation..."

In recent years Navy ROTC has found difficulty in providing the nuclear navy with enough nuclear - . power trainees; approximately 250 officers for the nuclear-power program are needed each year.

Retired Capt. Edward Bouffard, formerly professor of naval science at the University of Minnesota, argues against the new ruling. "The 80/20 ratio is not necessary and probably will not work," he explains. "It may also turn the Navy into an organization of technocrats." Bouffard feels strongly that fewer liberal arts graduates in ROTC will mean less "diversity, flexibility, judgment and perspective provided to the Navy by more nontechnical majors."

According to Bouffard, the Navy is currently facing the highest desertion rate in its history and recently had to reassign an entire nuclear submarine crew because of drug problems. "So understanding how to operate complicated equipment is not the only perspective we need," he says.

Within years more than half the U.S. population will be living in some form of condominium housing.

Condominiums come in many forms: inner-city apartment buildings, suburban town houses, renovated rental properties.

Before you sign up for one, be sure to read a free 48-page booklet from the Department of Housing and Urban Development. "Questions About Condominiums." It is an absolute essential. You can get your copy by sending a postcard to Consumer Information Center, Dept. 597F. Pueblo, Col. 81009. Allow 4-6 weeks for delivery.

There is no federal law that applies to condominiums. They come under a special real estate law in the state where they are located. They are a pretty tricky business. Do not, under any circumstances, sign any sales contract until you have read this booklet and probably consulted your lawyer. Do not make a down payment until you are certain you can get a mortgage loan.

There are flocks of condominium owners today who wish they weren't. Send for this free booklet even if you're only giving a random thought to buying a condominium one day.

TIP FOR A HAPPIER MARRIAGE: MASSAGE WIFE WITH PERFUMED OIL -

If your wife complains of weariness. a sore muscles, a tired back, too much housework, a preference for sleep to sex, here's what to do:

""Gently massage her back, calves, and the. soles of her feet with lightly perfumed oil. Her backache will soon disappear, and your marriage could become happier."

This advice comes from David Gale, President of the British Naturopathic and Osteopathic Association. At a recent conference Gale also said that too many kitchens are designed by men who specify work surfaces at heights that are comfortable for men but too high for women. He contends that all kitchens should be designed by women.

Although there are only about 130,000 motor vehicles--less than one car for every 10 households -- Moscow has become increasingly confronted by the problems of a motorized society.

The accident rate in the Soviet Union's capital is staggering. In the first six months of this year, 302 people were killed and 2400 were injured in about 3000 car accidents.

Much of the blame is placed on pedestrians -- who are accustomed to interpreting the red light in a Communist country as a signal "to progress and move ahead" -- and, of course, to speeding, recklessness and drunken driving.

In the Soviet Union if a driver is stopped for speeding, the policeman punches a hole in the driver's license. Three holes and the license is revoked. An exam must be repeated and passed in order to obtain a new license. If a driver is cited for drunken driving, the license is revoked for two years. Habitually reckless drivers are compelled to sell their cars, which is a severe punishment in a country where it. takes three to six years to get another one.

Most of the automobile traffic in the Soviet Union is concentrated in Moscow and Leningrad, where filling and repair stations are scarce. In Moscow, a city of 8 million, for example, there are only 15 repair stations, and the shortage of spare parts is acute. Car owners remove their windshield wipers and lock their wheels when they park because theft of auto parts is so widespread.

John Wayne LUNG CANCER CURE HATE and Arthur Godfrey and others beat it. But only 10% of patients with lung cancer can be cured, even with the most modern medicine.

That's the finding of a new statistical analysis of the survival rate of 400 lung cancer victims. The finding is reported in the Western Journal of Medicine, put out by the California Medical Association.

According to Col. Ralph Reynolds, in charge of the cancer treatment program at the David Grant Medical Center, Travis Air Force Base, early detection and surgery "remain both the treatment of choice and the most important factors in prolonging survival," but surgery cures no more than one in every 10 patients and postoperative radiation therapy has not proved useful in treating lung cancer.

Conceding that survival prospects for lung cancer victims are "dismal," Colonel Reynolds and his four fellow researchers conclude that "more effective combined modality management of lung cancer is urgently needed."

Besides specialties from 300 of the world's best food companies, Maxim's de Paris will sell linen, glassware, dishes, ashtrays, champagne buckets, copies of other items used in Maxim's restaurant.

Cardin plans to open branches in New York, Los Angeles, Tokyo, other major cities. "I really don't need all this work," he explains, "but I simply could not resist the magic in the name Maxim's."

M American Airlines re-American Affilies cently and quietly agreed to one of the largest civil rights case settlements in this country's history--$2.7 million-plus.

Between 1965 and 1970 the airline dismissed approximately 300 stewardesses because they had become pregnant and taken maternity leave.

The women charged that in firing them the airline had violated the Civil Rights Act of 1964. They hired attorney Charles Pressman to represent them. Suit was filed against the airline in 1970. On Oct. 4 American Airlines agreed to rehire the 300 young women, pay them a total of $2.7 million and make Social Security payments for them during the time their case was in the courts.

more housewife and a Boston businessman were chronic sufferers from repeated, unexplained bouts of abdominal bloating, cramps, and diarrhea. Today, both are completely free of symptoms as the result of using a few simple measures for handling their common problem: milk intolerance, or, more specifically, intolerance of a certain sugar in milk.

It's a widespread problem, affecting at least 30 million Americans. Some have learned to suspect it; many are suffering needlessly.

Until recently, the intolerance was thought rare—largely limited to a few newborn with congenital deficiencies.

"Now, however, that assumption is out the window," says Dr. Theodore M. Bayless, associate professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine and physician to the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

Not only is the intolerance being recognized increasingly as a common reason for mysterious abdominal pain, flatulence, and other disturbances; it's also proving to be an important factor in some patients with the irritable colon syndrome and even such organic troubles as ulcerative colitis and regional enteritis, all of which can produce similar disturbances.

Milk contains lactose, a sugar which, as long as it stays in that form, is indigestible. But the small intestine produces an enzyme, lactase, which splits the lactose into simple sugars that are easily digested.

Intolerance develops when the body loses the capacity to produce adequate amounts of the enzyme. The undigested lactose then passes on through the gut and causes disturbances.

And it now appears that much of the capacity to produce the enzyme is lost at an early age in many people.

Post-weaning falloff

Lactase production is at a peak at birth. It remains high during infancy when milk is a major source of nutrition. Animal studies have clearly shown that in most mammals, lactase levels drop after weaning with the shift to other nourishment. But it used to be thought that man was the exceptional mammal, producing high levels throughout life.

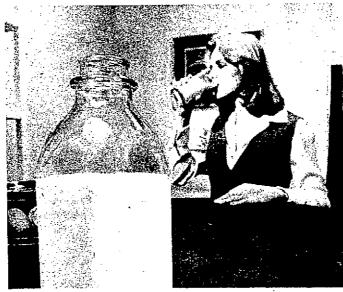

Now it's evident that post-weaning falloff is common in humans, although the degree of decline can vary considerably for different groups.

Recent surveys in North America have discovered that 58 to 100 percent of people of Eskimo, American Indian, sub-Sahara African, and Asian extraction are lactose-intolerant. American whites have a lower incidence—but it still ranges up to 24 percent.

And Dr. Bayless reports that although some of the 30 million sufferers experience symptoms only after a large intake of milk, at least half are likely to be affected by just one or two glasses.

by Lawrence Galton

Millions cannot drink milk without experiencing intestinal distress. This can be avoided by using two new products and heeding dietary precautions.

Actually, some scientists now believe that in adults lactose-intolerance is normal and tolerance abnormal. They suggest that the tolerance abnormality may have developed this way: Before milk-giving animals were domesticated, lactase production universally dropped after weaning. But with dairying, some populations developed "aberrant" individuals who retained high lactase throughout life.

If you have symptoms that might be related to milk intolerance, how can you tell for sure?

One way is for a physician to do a lactose-tolerance test. You consume a specified amount of milk and measurements are then made on a sample of blood. If you have plenty of the enzyme, the blood will temporarily contain high levels of sugar because the lactase is adequate to break down the milk sugar so it can be absorbed and get into the blood. Conversely, low blood levels point to intolerance.

You can also limit your milk intake or stop it entirely for about a week and see if your symptoms disappear,

Or you can drink two glasses of cold milk (cold seems to cause more trouble than warm) on an empty stomach—that may be all that's needed to produce your typical symptoms and point to milk intolerance;

There's nothing complicated about handling the problem. If you're like most of the lactose-intolerant, chances are good you'll be able to take a reasonable amount of milk in cereal or coffee without trouble,

You may also find, as do many, that you are far less likely to have problems if you take your milk with a meal rather than drink it by itself—and also that you do best when you avoid ice-cold milk.

You can also use milk alternatives. Yogurt, hard cheeses, and similar dairy products have a lower lactose content because some of the sugar has fermented and changed during processing.

It could be well worth your while to check for lactose-intolerance and use such measures if you find it present along with irritable colon, ulcerative colitis, or regional enteritis. The intolerance may be exacerbating such a disorder and, although it won't disappear, it can be made much less severe.

A new product

Available now, a new product promises to enable even most people with severe intolerance to enjoy milk without difficulty.

Add a little packet to a quart of milk and it provides the missing or deficient lactase enzyme that breaks down the indigestible lactose into its two easily digested component sugars.

Recent studies with enzyme-treated milk at Johns Hopkins and elsewhere show freedom from symptoms among volunteers who ordinarily react badly to plain milk.

The enzyme comes from yeast and leaves the milk nutritionally identical with regular milk; the one difference is in taste, which is sweeter. Most users have found the taste acceptable; some think it highly desirable.

Treated milk can be used not only for drinking as fresh skim or whole milk but also for making ice cream, puddings, yogurt, cottage cheese, etc.

Called Lact-Aid, the enzyme product is becoming available in supermarkets, drug and other retail stores at a cost of about 89¢ for four packets, $2.49 for 12. If not locally available, it may also be obtained directly from the producer: SugarLo Company, 3540 Atlantic Ave., Box 1017, Atlantic City, N.J. 08404.

Many dairies may soon be pre-treating milk with Lact-Aid. The first to do so is Sumter Dairies, Sumter, S.C.

Sweet acidophilus

Available now, too, is a "new" acidophilus milk reported to be helpful for some people in improving digestion and relieving intestinal disorders not related to lactose-intolerance.

The new milk is the same as regular nonfat fortified fluid milk, with one extra. It contains a controlled culture of Lactobacillus acidophilus bacteria.

Actually, acidophilus milk has been around for half a century but because of its sour taste has never been widely popular. The new product, however, tastes like ordinary milk thanks to a new strain of lactobacillus developed by Dr. Marvin Speck of North Carolina State University.

Why may lactobacilli be a good addition to milk for some people? The intestinal tract normally contains useful bacteria that aid digestion. Sometimes these organisms may be greatly diminished—as, for example, with severe diarrhea or when prolonged antibiotic treatment for an infection decimates the good along with the bad bacteria. Intestinal upsets follow. The new milk may bring relief by replenishing the supply of good bacteria.

Can the lactobacilli also help the milk-intolerant by making up for the deficient lactase enzyme? Some researchers believe it's possible, and there have been favorable reports from those who have tried the new acidophilus milk. But systematic scientific studies are yet to be done.

Awareness of the widespread nature of lactose-intolerance promises to make a significant difference to millions—and in possibly more than one way.

For not only are many with symptoms markedly improved once they know of the connection with milk. As Dr. Bayless observes: "Some, indeed, are quite pleased to learn that their problem—which may have been previously dismissed as a neurotic manifestation—is actually an enzyme deficiency."

How to Wake Up the Financial Genius Inside You

"Millionaires Are Not 100 Times Smarter Than You, They Just Know The Wealth Formula"

Millionaires are not 100 or even 10 times smarter than you. But it is a fact that millionaires are making 10 to 50 and even 100 times more than

Are these wealthy people working that much harder than you? No way!

If you are working only 20 hours a week, it would be physically impossible. (There are only 168 hours in a week, no one gets more.)

These questions used to really stump me. That was just a few years

My wife and I then lived in Denver, Colorado, at 2545 South High Street. We paid $135 a month rent for a cramped, tumbled down house. My wife was expecting our second child and we were flat broke. I felt desperate and forced into a corner. I had to borrow $150 from my father and another $150 from my father-in-law just to buy the groceries and pay the rent. If that wasn't enough, I was several thousand dollars in debt.

Things are much different now. Last year I could have retired and lived off the income of my one million dollars in real estate holdings. (Incidently, almost all of the income from the real estate is tax free).

Since I had worked 20 to 40 hours a week, I know that I didn't work even 10 times longer or harder than you. And with my C-average from Ames High School (located in Ames, Iowa). I'm quite certain that I'm not any smarter than you.

I did a little better later on but I soon realized that a salaried job was not the way to become financially free. If you'll stop and think, you'll realize that millionaires do not work 10, 20, or 50 times harder or longer than you.

If hours, efforts, or brains are not what separates the rich from the average guy who is swamped with debts and very little income, then what is?

I learned the answer to that question from an old fellow in Denver. This fellow worked in a drug store stocking the shelves. Very few people knew that he had $200,000 in the bank, all of which he had earned starting from nothing.

Within a year after meeting him, I was told and shown the same thing by a young man who had recently earned over a million dollars. By this time, I began to realize that what I was being shown was truly a remarkable and workable way to grow rich.

I began to apply the principles and methods I had been shown. The results were amazing. I couldn't believe how easy it was, in fact it seemed too easy.

But then I met an elderly lady (83 years old) who although not very smart, has made $117,090 using the same formula.

I then figured my beginning wasn't luck.

For three and one half years, I worked hard to refine and improve on the formula that I had been shown, so that it would be easy to get quicker results.

Mark Haroldsen, pictured with his wife Lois, spent four years perfecting a "wealth formula" and became a millionaire in the process: "I've found," says Haroldsen, "that most people just need a very specific road map to follow... they can do what I've done."

As I did this, my assets multiplied very rapidly (160% per year) to the point that I didn't have to work any longer.

I guess I am bragging now, but I did start spending alot of time in our back yard pool, traveling around the country, and doing a lot of loafing.

Then one day a friend asked me how he could do what I had done.

So I began to outline the formula that I had improved to show him really how simple it was, and how he could do the same thing.

By the time he approached me, I had written almost a complete volume on the easy way for him to copy my results.

I wrote this in simple, straightforward language so anyone could understand it.

This time my friend's questions were very specific. (He had already begun buying properties with the formulas I had been giving him). Now he had a property he wanted to buy, but was out of cash. How could he buy it?

I not only showed him how to buy without cash, but by the time the deal was complete, he had $5,000 cash in his pocket to boot.

I also showed him how to buy a $26,000 property for $75 down.

You, or anyone, can do exactly what I did, or my close friends have done/ in fact, you may well do it better. (I began doing this in my spare time only).

It doesn't matter where you live or the size of your town or city, my formula will show you exactly how to:

- Buy income properties for as little as $100 down.
 - Begin without any cash.
- Put $1,000, $16,000, or even more cash in your pocket when you buy (without selling property).
- Double your assets regularly and consistently.
- Legally avoid, reduce or postpone paying federal or state income taxes.
- Buy bargains at a fraction of their market value.

When you send me a check or money order for $10, I will send you all my formulas and methods, and you are free to use them anywhere and as often as you would like.

Now, if you were a personal friend of mine, I know you would believe me and not need any kind of guarantee that you will be completely satisfied and that my formula will work for you if you apply it. I will back up that guarantee by not cashing your check for 30 days, and if you for any reason change your mind, let me know and I will send your uncashed check back.

You may ask, why am I willing to share my formula for wealth? Well, simply because those of you who order my material will be helping to increase my net worth.

You shouldn't care if I profit as long as you profit. I guarantee that you'll be satisfied that my methods will help you or I'll send your money back!

To order, simply take any size paper, write the words "Financial Freedom", and send your name and address, along with a check for $10.00 to Mark O. Haroldsen, Inc., Dept. C-150, Tudor Mansion Bldg., 4751 Holladay Blvd., Salt Lake City, Utah 84117.

If you send for my material immediately, I will also send you documents that will show you precisely how you can borrow substantial amounts of cash at 2% above the prime rate using just your signature as collateral.

By the way, if you feel a little uneasy about sending me a check or money order for $10.00, simply post-date it by 30 days which will completely eliminate your risk. If you would like to check a financial reference, I have listed one below:

Vice President Walter Mondale and wife Joan, an activist for aid to American artists, practice what she preaches. At home they surround themselves with art and crafts, like this teapot and vase, collected from 15 American museums.

Joan Mondale:

The Arts Come First With the Second Lady

by Marion Fox

When it comes to art, Mrs. Mondale has President Carter on her side. In a recent White House ceremony, he received lithographs by noted U.S. artists.

he Second Ladyship used to be a kind of dutiful role that meant nothing more strenuous than a lot of tea parties, a few trips, and a great deal of applauding somebody else. That is, until Joan Mondale began her mission "to bring art into focus and within reach of every American."

In the 10 months since her husband's inauguration as Vice President, she has awakened many business leaders and government officials—including President Carter and her husband—to the needs of American artists and the value of art to our lives. She has also managed to reassure the artists and craftspeople that government wants to help.

Mrs. Mondale's efforts have had an impact. In August; she met with Jay Solomon, director of the General Services Administration. "We must put more art in government buildings," she told him. "One percent of a building's cost should be set aside for art."

The result: a new program, now in effect, to improve the appearance of government buildings around the country. It includes (1) funding to place art in such buildings, (2) displaying works by local artists as well as nationally famous ones, (3) having artists confer with architects in the planning of new buildings, (4) seeking buildings of historic interest to be restored, and (5) showing photography and handicrafts as well as painting and sculpture in government buildings.

In addition, recent talks between Mrs. Mondale and Secretary of Transportation Brock Adams have led to a series of regulations to improve the design of future public transportation facilities—bridges, highways, airports, etc.—so that they fit in with their environment and do not become eyesores. She has also launched a pilot project to sell locally made crafts in concession areas of our national parks.

Joan Mondale is continually seeking ways for artists and craftspeople to support themselves by doing what they do best: "A potter should pot," she says, "and a dancer should dance—full time. They shouldn't be forced to dig ditches to stay employed."

She has logged more than 35,000 miles crisscrossing the country in order to diagnose the problems of artists and to find solutions. "I am determined to serve as a lightning rod on the problems of art," she pledges.

Polling artists' needs

"What can government do for you?" she asked as-yet-unrecognized artists in their New York City lofts.

"Are you able to earn a living?" she asked potter Nancy Sweazy at her log cabin in Seagrove, N.C. Their discussion ranged from more effective apprenticeships to government subsidies.

"I favor direct subsidies," Mrs. Mondale says. "In fact, I highly subscribe to the philosophy of the National Endowment for the Arts and Humanities. They are doing that now."

At the annual meeting of the Business Committee for the Arts, held at the Museum of Modern Art in New York, she admonished executives: "Dig deeper into your pockets. Hang art in your offices, support living American artists, and don't forget to save your own Main Street."

Word has spread among artists that Joan Mondale means business. So at a lunch in New York hosted by gallery owner Leo Castelli, luminaries of the art. world—including artists Jasper Johns, Robert Rauschenberg, Roy Lichtenstein and Louise Nevelson—turned out to hear her. "What could the government have done when you were struggling?" she asked. Discovering she spoke their language, initial curiosity turned to enthusiasm. Johns referred to her as a "rare kind of specimen."

"President Carter," she says, "is definitely interested in the arts. He often kids me about being his arts adviser."

She is ever on the lookout for possible purchases for government agencies. At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Steves in San Antonio, Tex., she was moved by a "sampler" of work by 16 local craftsmen. "If the General Services Administration could see work like this and put it in their buildings," she said, "it would enliv-

"Vantage is changing a lot of my feelings about smoking

"I like to smoke, and what; I like is a cigarette that isn't timid on taste. But I'm not living in some ivory tower. I hear the things being said against high-tar smoking as well as the next guy.

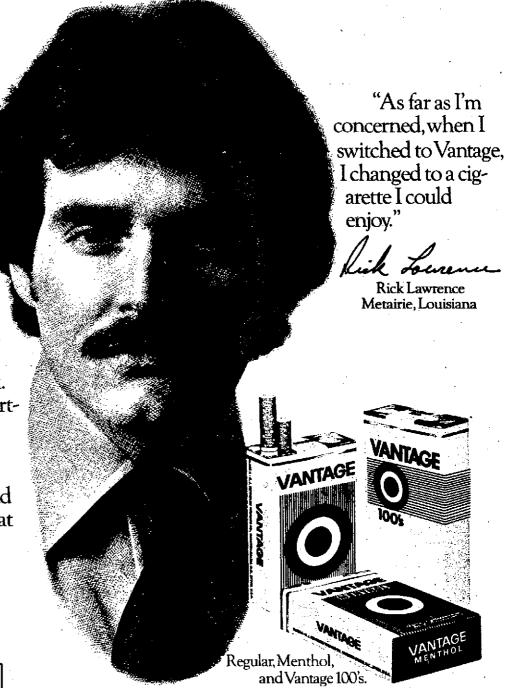

"And so I started looking. For a low-tar smoke that had some honest-to-goodness cigarette taste.

"It wasn't easy. The low-tar cigarettes I tried tasted like chalk. And high-tar cigarettes were starting to taste rougher as I went along.

Then I tried a pack of Vantage. It was smooth yet it had taste. And a lot less tar than what en and enrich everyone's day."

Joan Mondale has set an example in refurbishing the imposing Vice Presidential mansion, installing an exhibit of art and handicrafts collected from 15 museums around the country. Works of major contemporary artists appear throughout, mingled with an abundance of plants, American Indian crafts, and pottery. Antique furniture left by the Rockefellers completes the decor.

Outside, a scarecrow in a motorcycle helmet and gloves presides over the vegetable garden. A swing in the massive oak tree and bikes in the garage signal that a real family with three children lives here.

Family profile

Daughter Eleanor, 17, is an expert horsewoman whose trophies line a top-floor window. William, 15, is a student at St. Alban's School in Washington, D.C. Teddy, 19, lives in Maryland near the motor-cycle shop where he works.

The Mondales are a closely knit family but not given to overt affection. An old friend, who describes the Mondale marriage as "a love match," explains: "They're not handholders or kissers in public, and there is a reserved attitude that some people say comes from being raised in Minnesota, or as ministers' children."

Another friend recalls that Joan was unnerved when she came to Washington by all the touching and kissing among people who hardly knew each other: "I've only seen them kiss publicly once, and that was on election night. But there is a kind of playfulness in their private relationship which is ever youthful."

Walter Mondale and Joan Adams were married by her minister father on Dec. 27, 1955, in the Student Union Building at Macalester College in St. Paul. Joan jokes, "I was 25 years old. At that time, that was really an old maid!"

Being a minister's child helped prepare her for politics, she says. "It's like being raised in the diplomatic corps.".

Seasoned as a campaigner in Minnesota politics, Joan Mondale followed her own stumping schedule in the 1976 race. For two months, five days a week, the Vice Presidential candidate's wife spoke out on issues, plowed through crowds and lived in hotels.

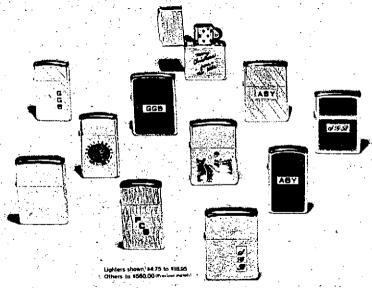

"Somebody asked me if I was prepared for all this," she recalls. "I said, 'Of course, I'm a political wife and I'm prepared for anything."

A former Second and First Lady, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, invited Joan to stop over at the LBJ Ranch during a recent trip to promote art in Texas. At a dinner I do what I want to," she says.

Joan Mondale feels as if she has been preparing for her role as art advocate all her life. At Macalester College she studied art; later she worked as an assistant slide librarian at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and as a volunteer tour-lecturer at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

But she spends increasing time alerting government officials to artists' problems—like finding affordable housing, discussed in recent meetings with Department of Housing and Urban Development officials. Now on the drawing board is a pilot project to convert unused or run-down urban buildings to housing for artists—similar to the HUD-party, when Mrs. Mondale toasted her, Lady Bird replied, "Just keep right on with what you're doing. And above all stick to your guns."

Which she apparently does. Joan and the Vice President frequently discuss what she has discovered during her travels and what she thinks should be done. "I always consult him first. funded program at New York's Manhattan Plaza, which allots a designated number of its apartments to performing artists.

With Labor Department officials she emphasizes the special problems faced by unemployed, underemployed or injured-on-the-job artists (dancers who sprain ankles, for example). Because "artist" is not a category in present Labor Department statistics, current guidelines for unemployment or disability compensation bear little relation to the way artists work and make it difficult for them to collect benefits. Mrs. Mondale has been urging department officials to make these guidelines more sensitive to artists' needs.

Sex discrimination

Also under attack is sex discrimination in the arts, such as the difficulties women painters face in obtaining exhibitions or positions in art schools—obstacles that in turn make it harder to win grants. Mrs. Mondale has brought these issues to the attention of Midge Costanza, President Carter's special assistant who has been working primarily to end sex discrimination.

In Joan Mondale, artists may have at last an effective advocate in government; future Second Ladies may have a new model for activism.

Keeping Up... With Youth

ANNA BERGMAN IN AFRO WIG

Name-Bearers

There's no denying it. In Hollywood it pays to be the offspring of show biz celebrities. It opens doors. Take Carrie Fisher, 21, daughter of Debbie Reynolds and Eddie Fisher. First a bit part opposite Warren Beatty in "Shampoo." Then a big break in the fabulously successful "Star Wars." And now an offer to star in a film about the Beatles called "I Want to Hold Your Hand."

In this movie, to be produced by Universal, Carrie will play a typical teenager who joins three other girls in their journey to New York to catch the Beatles' debut on the 1964 Ed Sullivan TV show.

Universal doesn't refer to the four girls as "groupies" but describes them as "teenagers of the 1960's who pursue the Beatles all over Manhattan..."

Another bearer of a famous name in the film industry is Anna Bergman, 27, daughter of the great Swedish motion picture director Ingmar Bergman.

Blonde, photogenic Anna, however, hasn't had it nearly as easy as Carrie Fisher. Anna acts in English porn films. Her husband Peter looks after their 11-year-old son, Niki, in a three-room flat in a London suburb.

Anna Bergman was born in Sweden, but her parents separated when she was 3. "At 13," she recalls, "I returned to Sweden to be with my father. But he shipped me off to Torquay in the south of England where I went to work as an au pair girl." A year later, after leaving school, she met her husband-to-be, then a policeman assigned to Buckingham Palace to guard Princess Anne and Princess Margaret. Not long after, Anna gave birth to Niki.

Following a street fight in which he was shot in the stomach, her husband quit the police force. Today he takes care of their home front while Anna concentrates on her career, acting in such films as "The Memories of a Taxi Driver" and "Penelope Takes It Off." She also poses half-nude for various girlie magazines.

Anna Bergman says her famous father is extremely proud of her. But she finds considerable difficulty in extracting advice from him. "If you want to do something," he says to me, "do it."

Anna Bergman is trying desperately to make it on her own. But despite the famous name she bears, it's a rough road she's traveling in show biz. Reportedly, she's going to Hollywood, if she isn't already there. The film colony holds the name Bergman in high regard, and she probably could find more work—with her clothes on.

Lake Placid, N.Y., was the site of the 1932 Winter Olympics. The town will host the Games again in 1980, thanks to a 20-year drive by local enthusiasts.

Lake Placid

The Little Town That Could

by L. H. Whittemore

hen the XIII Winter Olympic Games begin here in 1980, the proudest winners will be a few dozen "country boys" from this peaceful village in the Adirondack Mountains.

Theirs is the story of amateurs and volunteers who against all odds beat the world's most formidable competition. Their goal, to host an Olympic contest for the second time, was achieved after more than 20 years of struggle and perseverance.

"We attempted the ridiculous and achieved the impossible," declares the Rev. 1. Bernard Fell, 55, a leading force behind Lake Placid's victory.

"Like a puppy pulling on a rug," echoes Dr. Robert Madden, 56, an ebullient, easygoing orthodontist, "we just kept at it."

Lake Placid was the site of the Winter Games in 1932, when Fell and Madden were 10 and 11 years old. They and the other country boys shared the experience of walking alongside Olympic champions on their own Main Street.

The Adirondack boys never forgot that moment of glory. They nurtured a love for their village, a strong community spirit and a lifelong passion for winter sports. Their heroes were not big-league baseball players but goldmedal skiers, skaters and bobsledders.

They also came to realize the benefits the 1932 games brought their village. "My father took tickets in the skating arena," "Doc" Madden recalls. "It was the Depression, but he had a job."

The little community --- consisting then of 2930 residents-became worldfamous, attracting a lively tourist trade as its sole economic support.

After World War II, "we-needed another shot in the arm," as Rev. Fell puts it. "Young people were heading elsewhere to raise their families, population was decreasing, and hosting another Olympics became our main hope for survival."

First attempt fails

"We started talking seriously about it in the early '50's," Doc Madden recalls. In 1956 a small bidding team was sent to Chicago with high hopes of capturing the U.S. Olympic Committee nomination for the 1960 Games. The USOC chose Squaw Valley, Cal., instead.

By 1963 it was time to try again. Rev. Fell led the bidding team to Chicago, gave the USOC a "sermon on redemption" and returned victorious. Lake Placid had become the American entry for the 1968 Games.

Now the team from Lake Placid faced the task of wooing members of the International Olympic Committee to their cause. "We divided up the world," recalls Norman Hess, 53, a lawyer. "We spread out across Europe in search of IOC delegates." Among Lake Placid's ambassadors were the postmaster, a milkman, a motel operator and the owner of a lumber mill.

Supplied with state funds, the bidding team wound up in Innsbruck, Austria, in 1964 to make its official presentation to the IOC. "We had a fantastic exhibit," recalls Luke Patnode, now 48 and a former director of the local Chamber of Commerce. "It was full of electronics, including printouts in different languages."

Dog-race reruns

For all the newfangled gadgetry, however, the IOC members were most interested in a simple slide presentation put together by Doc Madden. Delegates from many countries sat fascinated as they watched over and over the slides of dog-team races in the Adirondacks.

Nevertheless, Lake Placid got just three votes out of nearly 60 as the IOC picked Grenoble, France, for 1968.

Crushed, the boys returned, only to face apathy and pessimism in their own backyard. They had to start again at the bottom and were turned down twice before they finally persuaded Lake Placid to bid for the 1972 Games.

Off_again to Chicago, where the USOC promptly chose Salt Lake City, Utah, which lost to Sapporo, Japan.

In 1967 Lake Placid automatically entered the competition for the 1976 Games, but Denver won.

Denver got the IOC's blessing for the 1976 Games, but in 1972 Colorado voters turned against the Olympics. The USOC was embarrassed in front of the world and, naturally, Lake Placid offered to step in. But the USOC picked Salt Lake City again—which also withdrew. It looked as if the United States would make no bid at all.

The USOC finally called on Lake Placid and gave it five days to enter a bid in Lausanne, Switzerland. They did so and impressed the IOC.

Even though the winner that year was Innsbruck, it was clear that Lake Placid would be next. "It was a gradual development over the years into becoming the best spot," Rev. Fell comments. In 1973 Lake Placid was the only community in the United States to offer itself for the 1980 Winter Games, and in 1974 the IOC gave its blessing.

Right now the country boys are busy with preparations. All of them belong to the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee, responsible for every facet of the Games.

Rev. Fell is the committee's executive director. When he's not preaching to his congregation of 55 members, he is dealing with Olympic representatives from around the world. Doc Madden is in charge of public affairs for the Games.

The 'tightest guy'

Favor Smith, who manages a local farm, is treasurer because he is the "tightest guy when it comes to money." He earned his reputation as a member of the town board, and it was felt that he could best hold the Olympic budget to less than $100 million.

Ron MacKenzie, the town justice, a former athlete who is still muscular at 75, is president of the committee. Art Devlin, 56, a former Olympic ski jumper, is vice president.

The Adirondack boys feel strongly that the Winter Games should no longer be held in big cities. "They used the Games as springboards for massive urban-renewal projects," Hess argues. "Grenoble spent over $400 million and Sapporo nearly $1 billion."

"We'll do it for under $100 million," Rev. Fell insists, referring to the various renovation and building projects going on with federal and state funding. "We fight to maintain that commitment."

They also feel that they have a rare chance to help the future of amateur winter sports. They see Lake Placid becoming an "official training center" for America's amateur athletes.

"It's the kind of thing our country needs if we're to keep up," Ron MacKenzie believes.

For the Adirondack boys, the 1980 Games will not come too soon. Already the village population is down to a little more than 2700, less than it was during the 1932 Games.

'Permanent' sites

One widespread feeling is that the Winter Games themselves are in danger of becoming priced out of existence. The country boys envision the development of only three or four "permanent" sites for Winter Olympic Games around the world, with Lake Placid as one of them. A rotation system would be used.

"We feel that the Winter Games are going to live or die depending on how we handle things in 1980." Rev. Fell déclares. The irony is that one small American town, in the process of trying so hard to save itself, may end up preserving a cherished tradition for the entire world.

When I was in my 20's I went crazy over a girl. For a long time we had a love-hate relationship: I loved her, she hated me.

This was probably due to our religious differences: I was broke and she worshiped money.

In fact, it was very difficult for me to get married. I had an enormous problem finding someone who loved me as much as I did.

The grand old man at the rest home was celebrating his 119th birthday, and the cub reporter from the local newspaper asked him: "Tell me, to what do you attribute your long life?" The old man sighed, then said: "Well, I suppose it must be because I was born such a long time ago."
